SUBJECT: Report of the Advisory Committee on Criminal Rules

DATE: May 10, 2001

I. Introduction

The Advisory Committee on the Rules of Criminal Procedure met on April 25-26 in Washington, D.C. and acted on the proposed restyling of the Rules of Criminal Procedure and on proposed substantive amendments to some of those rules. The Minutes of that meeting are included at Appendix E.

II. Action Items—Summary and Recommendations.

This report contains two action items:

- Approval and forwarding to the Judicial Conference of restyled Criminal Rules 1 through 60 (Appendix A); and
- Approval and forwarding to the Judicial Conference of substantive amendments to eight rules—Rules 5, 5.1, 10, 12.2, 26, 30, 35, and 43 (Appendix B).

III. ACTION ITEM—Approval and Forwarding to Judicial Conference of Restyled Criminal Rules 1-60 (Appendix A)

A. Restyling Project—An Overview

In 1998, the Committee was informed that following successful completion of the restyling of the Appellate Rules, the Style Subcommittee of the Standing Committee would prepare an initial draft of proposed style changes to the Criminal Rules, with the first installment being presented in late 1998. The Advisory Committee was formed into two separate subcommittees to review the rules as they were completed by the Style Subcommittee. In April, June, and October 1999, the Committee considered style revisions to Rules 1 through 31 and presented those rules to the Standing Committee at its January 2000 meeting in Miami. The Committee considered style changes to Rules 32 to 60 in the Spring of 2000, and presented those rules to the Standing Committee at its June 2000 meeting. Rules 1-60 were subsequently published for public comment, along with a separate package of "substantive" amendments to ten of those rules.

Following the public comment period, the two subcommittees met and considered the written comments submitted on the proposed amendments and offered a number of suggested additional style changes. In April 2001, the Advisory Committee considered those proposals and approved the style package—Rules 1-60 (Appendix A).

In conducting the restyling project, the Committee focused on several key points. First, the Committee has attempted to standardize key terms and phrases that appear throughout the rules.

Second, the Committee attempted to avoid any unforeseen substantive changes and attempted in the Committee Notes to clearly state when the Committee was making a change in practice.

Third, in several rules, the Committee deleted provisions that it believed were no longer necessary, usually because the caselaw has evolved since the rule was initially promulgated (or last amended).

Fourth, during the restyling effort, several rules were completely reorganized to make them easier to read and apply. See, e.g., Rules 11, 16, 32, and 32.1. In several others, sections from one rule have been transferred to another rule. See, e.g., Rules 4, 9, and 40.

Fifth, in some rules, significant substantive changes were made. Some of those changes had been under discussion but were deferred pending the restyling projects. Still others were identified and included during the project. As noted, below, those proposed amendments were published in a separate pamphlet for public comment.

B. Publication of Style and Substantive Packages for Public Comment

In June 2000, the Standing Committee authorized publication for public comment of two packages of amendments. The purpose of presenting the proposed amendments in two separate pamphlets was to highlight for the public that in addition to the "style" changes in Rules 1 to 60, a number of significant (perhaps controversial) amendments were also being proposed.

1. The "Style" Package

The first package (Appendix A)—referred to as the "style" package, included Rules 1 to 60. For those rules where the Committee was proposing significant substantive changes (Rules 5, 5.1, 10, 12.2, 26, 30, 35, 41, and 43), the language containing those changes was deleted from the "style" package. A "Reporter's Note" explained to the public that additional substantive changes for that particular rule were being published simultaneously in a separate package.

2. The "Substantive" Package

The second package (Appendix B)—referred to as the "substantive" package, consisted of Rules 5, 5.1, 10, 12.2, 26, 30, 32, 35, 41, and 43, which all provide for significant changes in practice. This version of the package included not only the restyled version of the rule but also the language that would effect the change in practice. The Committee Notes reflect those changes and again, a "Reporter's Note" explained that another version of each of these rules (which included only style changes) was being published simultaneously in a separate package.

C. Post-Publication Changes to the "Style" Package

1. Suggested Style Changes—Style Subcommittee

During the public comment period, Professor Kimble and Mr. Spaniol reviewed the style package several times and offered a number of suggested. Those proposed changes were considered first by the two subcommittees and then by the full Advisory Committee.

2. Suggested Style Changes From the Public (Appendices C & D)

The Committee received approximately 80 comments from the public. Those comments, which focused on the substantive amendments to the rules, are summarized at Appendix C. In addition, the Administrative Office sorted out those public comments that appeared to focus only on the style package. Those are summarized at Appendix D. Finally, the Committee considered the testimony of five witnesses at the beginning of its meeting on April 25, 2001.

3. Changes Resulting from Intervening Legislation

In addition to the suggested changes from the Style Subcommittee and the public commentators, several changes were required because of intervening legislation, for example, the recently enacted Military Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Act (Pub. L. No. 106-523, 114 Stat. 2488).

4. Consideration of Possible Global Style Changes

During the public comment period, the Committee—at the suggestion of the Style Subcommittee—considered whether to make a number of post-publication global changes to the style package. The Committee adopted several of the proposed changes but rejected several others.

- Numbering. The Committee originally decided on a method for using Arabic numerals for any number less than 10 (ten) unless the number was "1." It seemed awkward to write the number 1 in those instances. The Style Subcommittee proposed a different system. The Advisory Committee adopted yet another system: Any number other than 1 or a number appearing at the beginning of a sentence or section, will be represented by the Arabic numerals—in order to make the rules more user-friendly.
- Internal Cross-referencing. The Committee addressed the issue whether to specifically identify any cross-references to other provisions within each rule, or whether simply to refer to "this rule." The Committee decided to address this issue on a rule-by-rule basis.
- Titles of Rules and Subdivisions. The Style Subcommittee recommended a number of additions and changes to the titles of subdivisions and paragraphs; in particular they note the preference for using the "ing" form of the word. The Committee adopted most of those recommended changes on a rule-by-rule basis.
- Designating Deleted Rules. A number of rules have been deleted over the years, and several were eliminated as a result of the current restyling effort. At one point during the project the Committee decided to keep the rule numbers in place and indicate in brackets that the rule has been abrogated. The Committee decided to use the designation "[Reserved]" for those rules that were abrogated a number of years ago. The designations "[Transferred]" or "[Deleted]" are used to designate the Committee's actions in this round of amendments.

- Use of the Terms "Unable" and "Cannot." In a number of rules the Style Subcommittee has recommended that the word "cannot" be substituted for the word "unable." In the current rules both terms are used. The Committee decided to consider this proposal on a case-by-case basis.
- "Law Enforcement Officer." The current rules do not hyphenate this term and for the most part neither do the cases or commentators. Although the style subcommittee recommended that the term be hyphenated, the Committee decided otherwise.

5. Rule-by-Rule Summary of Changes Made to Style Package Following Publication

The following discussion identifies those rules where a change—other than a minor stylistic change—was made following publication. The changes are incorporated in the copy of the Rules, and the accompanying Committee Notes, at Appendix A.

a. Rule 1. Scope; Definitions

The Committee amended Rule 1(a)(5) by adding another subparagraph (F) that addresses proceedings against a witness in a foreign country under 28 U.S.C. § 1784. That provision had been inadvertently omitted from an early draft of the restyled Rule.

b. Rule 4. Arrest Warrant or Summons on a Complaint

Rule 4(c)(2) was changed to reflect the recently enacted Military Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Act (Pub. L. No. 106-523, 114 Stat. 2488). That act now recognizes that arrest warrants may be executed outside the United States.

c. Rule 5. Initial Appearance

The Committee changed Rule 5(a)(1)(B) to reflect the recently enacted Military Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Act (Pub. L. No. 106-523, 114 Stat. 2488). The Committee was concerned that if the amendment is not made, an argument could be made that the restyle rule would supersede the Act.

In addition, the Committee adopted a redrafted and restructured Rule 5(c)(2) to expand the options for a case when the accused is arrested in a district other than the district where the offense was allegedly committed. New Rule 5(c)(2) provides that the initial appearance should occur in the district where the prosecution is pending if that district is adjacent to the district of arrest and the appearance will occur on the day of the arrest.

The Committee also changed Rule 5 to refer to "where the offense was allegedly committed" rather than "where the prosecution is pending" for clarity and consistency.

d. Rule 5.1. Preliminary Hearing

The Committee redrafted Rule 5.1(a) to fill a possible gap as to the right to preliminary hearings for persons who are charged with misdemeanors and consent to be tried by a magistrate judge.

e. Rule 6. The Grand Jury

The Committee amended Rule 6(e)(3)(A) by adding a new item (iii) that would provide an exception for disclosures authorized under 18 U.S.C. § 3322 (authorizing disclosures for civil forfeiture and civil banking laws, etc.). The Committee also redrafted Rule 6(a)(2) concerning the selection of alternate grand jurors—to parallel a similar provision for petit jurors in Rule 24.

f. Rule 7. The Indictment and the Information

The introductory language of Rule 7(a)(1) was changed by referencing an exception for criminal contempt proceedings.

g. Rule 11. Pleas

In Rule 11(e), the Committee changed the reference to "28 U.S.C. § 2255" to "collateral attack" to recognize that a plea may be set aside during some other form of collateral attack and not just under § 2255. See, e.g., United States v. Jeffers, 234 F.3d 277 (5th Cir. 2000) (noting that petition under § 2241 may be used where relief under § 2255 is inadequate).

The Committee also decided to change Rule 11(f). Rather than attempting to restyle language in Rule 11(f), which now tracks language in Federal Rule of Evidence 410—and risk possible inconsistencies—Rule 11(f) now simply cross-references Rule 410.

h. Rule 17. Subpoena

The Committee changed Rule 17(g) to reflect the authority of a magistrate judge to find a person in contempt.

i. Rule 26. Taking Testimony

Originally, the style version, but not the substantive version, of Rule 26 included the word "orally." The Committee decided, however, to delete the term "orally" from the restyled version as well as change the Committee Note to reflect the purpose of that amendment. The Committee was concerned that if the more substantive change to Rule 26, concerning the remote transmission of live testimony were to be rejected, the noncontroversial change in Rule 26 removing the restriction on oral testimony (as opposed to testimony from someone who communicates through signing) would not be approved.

j. Rule 32. Sentencing and Judgment

The Committee revised Rule 32(d) to clarify the provision dealing with the contents of the presentence report.

The Committee also adopted a revised version of Rule 32(h) and have now designated it as subdivision (h) and redesignated the remaining provisions as new subdivisions. Subdivision (h) is now what had been Rule 32(h)(5) in the restyled version published for comment.

Rule 32(i) (formerly 32(h)) also includes a change in (i)(B) to reflect a recommendation that Rule 32(h)(1)(B) be amended to include a requirement that the judge provide the excluded information to the government as well as to the defendant.

Finally, Rule 32(i)(4)(C) (currently (h)(4)(C) in the published version, which addresses in camera hearings) now includes a "good cause" requirement.

k. Rule 32.1. Revoking or Modifying Probation or Supervised Release

The Committee decided to delete Rule 32.1(a)(3) that would have required the magistrate judge to give rights warnings to a person appearing before the magistrate judge for possible revocation of probation proceedings.

l. Rule 35. Correcting or Reducing a Sentence

The published version of Rule 35 uses the term "sentencing" to describe the triggering element for the two "time" requirements in the rule—the seven-day requirement and the one-year requirement. At the suggestion of the Standing Committee, the Advisory Committee discussed the issue of further defining or clarifying the term "sentencing." Although the initial decision was to use the term "oral announcement of sentence"—which reflects the majority view of the courts that have addressed the issue—upon further consideration, the Committee decided to define sentencing as the entry of the judgment. Even though that may result in the change in practice in some circuits, it is more consistent with describing the triggering event, for example, of an appeal of a sentence.

m. Rule 42. Criminal Contempt

Rule 42(b) has been modified to reflect the authority of magistrate judges to hold contempt proceedings—per the recent Federal Courts Improvement Act.

n. Rule 45. Computing and Extending Time

The term "President's Day" has been changed back to "Washington's Birthday," which is consistent with the recommendation of the Appellate Rules Committee to make the same change to its rules.

o. Rule 52. Harmless and Plain Error

In Rule 52(b), the Committee has deleted the words "or defect" to clarify an ambiguity in the wording "a plain error or defect..." The Supreme Court has concluded that that wording should be read more simply as meaning "error" and that the use of the disjunctive is misleading. See United States v. Olano, 507 U.S. 725, 732 (1993) (incorrect to read Rule 52(a) in the disjunctive); United States v. Young, 470 U.S. 1, 15 n.12 (1985) (use of disjunctive in Rule 52(a) is misleading). No changes were made to Rule 52(a).

p. Rule 58. Petty Offenses and Other Misdemeanors

Rule 58(b)(2)(E)(i) and (b)(3)(A) and (B) were changed to reflect recent statutory changes. The term "Class B misdemeanor motor vehicle offense, Class C misdemeanor, or an infraction" has been changed to read "petty offense."

q. Rule 60. Title

The Committee has restored Rule 60, which was originally deleted from the style package of the rules, as being unnecessary. After further discussion, the Committee believed that removing the official designation of the title of the Criminal Rules might create uncertainty or inconsistency in the designation or citation of the rules.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee on the Criminal Rules recommends that the "style" package, consisting of Rules 1-60, be approved and transmitted to the Judicial Conference with a recommendation that it be sent to the Supreme Court for approval.

IV. ACTION ITEM—Approval and Forwarding to Judicial Conference of Amendments to Rules 5, 5.1, 10, 12.2, 12.4, 26, 30, 35, and 43 in the Substantive Package (Appendix B)

A. The Substantive Package of Amendments—An Overview

In June 2000, the Standing Committee approved publication of a separate package of amendments, known as the "substantive" package. That package originally consisted of Rules 5, 5.1, 10, 12.2, 26, 30, 32, 35, 41, and 43, which all provide for significant changes in practice. This version of the package includes not only the restyled version of the rule but also the language that would effect the change in practice. The Committee Notes reflect those changes and a "Reporter's Note" explained to the public that another version of each of these rules (which includes only style changes) was being published simultaneously in a separate package.

The Advisory Committee received approximately 80 written comments, and heard the testimony of five witnesses, on the proposed substantive amendments. Most of the comments focused on the proposed amendments to Rules 5, 10, and 26, which would provide for video teleconferencing of initial appearances and arraignments and for video transmission of trial testimony. Those comments and testimony are summarized by rule at Appendix C.

B. Presentation of Substantive Package to Judicial Conference

As noted, above, the Advisory Committee published two separate packages of amendments: the "style" package and the "substantive" package. Throughout the post-publication review of the public comments and revisions, and for purposes of discussion by the Standing Committee, the Advisory Committee has maintained the two distinct packages.

The "style" package of amendments to Rules 1-60 is designed to stand on its own and could be presented to the Judicial Conference and Supreme Court in that format. The proposed amendments in the separate, "substantive" package include not only the style changes to those particular rules, but more importantly, the significant substantive amendments that may generate some controversy. Following the public comment, the Committee made a number of changes to the proposed to Rules 5 and 10 and withdrew two amendments that seemed particularly controversial—the amendments to Rule 32 and 41. The Committee does not believe that the substantive amendments as presently written will draw significant controversy.

The Standing Committee must decide whether to submit the style and substantive packages separately to the Judicial Conference. Whatever the Standing Committee decides to do in this respect, the Advisory Committee assumes that the rules that the Judicial Conference approves will be blended together for submission to the Supreme Court.

C. Rule-by-Rule Summary of Post-Publication Changes to the "Substantive" Package

1. Rule 5. Initial Appearance: Video Teleconferencing

The substantive change to Rule 5 is in new Rule 5(d), which permits video teleconferencing for an appearance under this rule—if the defendant consents. This change reflects the growing practice among state courts to use video teleconferencing to conduct initial proceedings. A similar amendment was proposed to Rule 10 concerning arraignments. In amending Rules 5, 10, and 43 (which generally requires the defendant's presence at all proceedings), the Committee was very much aware of the argument that permitting a defendant to appear by video teleconferencing might be considered an erosion of an important element of the judicial process.

As originally presented to the Standing Committee in January 2000, the proposed rule included a provision to use video teleconferencing for initial appearances—if the defendant consents. Upon further reflection, the Advisory Committee recommended, and the Standing Committee adopted, a proposal to publish not only that provision but also an alternate provision that would permit the court to conduct such procedures, even without the defendant's consent. Thus, the published version offered two alternatives.

After further discussion, the Advisory Committee recommends, by a vote of 7 to 4, that the Standing Committee approve the version that requires the defendant's consent.

The public comment (which included responses from district judges and magistrate judges) on the proposed amendments was mixed. For example, on behalf of the Committee on Defender Services, its chair objected to the use of video teleconferencing without the defendant's consent and expressed reservations about its use under any circumstances. The Committee nonetheless believes that in appropriate circumstances the court and the defendant should have the option of using video teleconferencing, as long as the defendant consents to that procedure. The question of when it would be appropriate for a defendant to consent is not spelled out in the rule. That is left to the defendant and the court in each case. Nor does the rule specify any particular technical requirements for the video conferencing system to be used.

The Committee Note to Rule 5 has been expanded to include additional discussion on the factors that a court may wish to consider in deciding whether to use video teleconferencing for initial appearances.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee recommends that the substantive amendment to Rule 5 be approved and forwarded to the Judicial Conference with the recommendation that if it is approved, the "substantive" version be substituted for the "style" version.

2. Rule 5.1. Preliminary Hearing: Authority of Magistrate Judge to Grant Continuance Rule 5.1(c) contains a substantive change that creates a conflict between the rule and a federal statute—18 U.S.C. § 3060(c). The proposed amendment is being offered at the recommendation of the Judicial Conference at its Spring 1998 meeting.

In 1997, the Advisory Committee considered a proposed amendment to Rule 5(c), which would permit a magistrate judge to continue a preliminary hearing even if, the defendant objects. The Committee decided to recommend to the Standing Committee that it first propose legislative changes to § 3060(c). The Standing Committee, however, believed it more appropriate for the Advisory Committee to propose a change to Rule 5(c) through the Rules Enabling Act and remanded the issue to the Advisory Committee. At its October 1997 meeting, the Committee considered the issue and decided not to pursue the issue any further, and reported that position to the Standing Committee at its January 1998 meeting.

The matter was ultimately presented to the Judicial Conference during its Spring 1998 meeting. In its summary of actions, the Conference remanded the issue to the Advisory Committee with:

instructions to the Rules Committee to propose an amendment to Criminal Rule 5.1(c) consistent with the amendment to 18 U.S.C. § 3060 which has been proposed by the Magistrate Judges Committee.

Revised Rule 5.1 includes language that expands the authority of a magistrate judge to grant a continuance for a preliminary hearing conducted under the rule. Currently, if the defendant does not consent, then the government must present the matter to a district judge. As noted above, the proposed amendment conflicts with 18 U.S.C. § 3060, which tracks the original language of the rule and permits only a district judge to grant a continuance when the defendant objects. The Committee believes that this restriction is an anomaly. The Committee also believes that the change will promote judicial economy and that it is entirely appropriate to seek this change to the rule through the Rules Enabling Act procedures. See 28 U.S.C. § 2072(b). Under those procedures, approval by Congress of this rule change would supersede the parallel provisions in 18 U.S.C. § 3060. The Committee understands that if the amendment is approved, the appropriate Congressional staff will be advised and an amendment of the existing law pursued.

No post-publication changes were made to Rule 5.1, other than minor stylistic changes.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee recommends that the substantive amendment to Rule 5.1 be approved and forwarded to the Judicial Conference with the recommendation that if it is approved, the "substantive" version be substituted for the "style" version.

3. Rule 10. Arraignment

The proposed amendments to Rule 10 create two exceptions to the requirement that the defendant be personally present in court for an arraignment. First, revised Rule 10(b) permits the court to hold an arraignment in the defendant's absence when the defendant has waived the right to be present in writing and the court consents to that waiver. Second, revised Rule 10(c) permits the court to hold arraignments by video teleconferencing—with the defendant's consent. A conforming amendment will also be made to Rule 43.

a. Waiver of Appearance at Arraignment: Rule 10(b)

Although the Committee considered the traditional objections to permitting a defendant to waive a personal appearance, the Committee nonetheless believed that in appropriate circumstances the court, and the defendant, should have the option of conducting the arraignment in the defendant's absence—a procedure used in some state courts. Under Rule 10(b), the defendant must give his or her consent in writing and it must be signed by both the defendant and the defendant's attorney. Finally, the amendment requires that the waiver specifically state that the defendant has received a copy of the charging instrument.

The amendment does not permit waiver of an appearance when the defendant is charged with a felony information. In that instance, the defendant is required by Rule 7(b) to be present in court to waive the indictment. Nor does the amendment permit a waiver of appearance when the defendant is standing mute, or entering a conditional plea, a nolo contendere plea, or a guilty plea. In each of those instances the Committee believed that it was more appropriate for the defendant to appear personally.

The amendment does not permit the defendant to waive the arraignment itself, which may be a triggering mechanism for time limits in other rules.

The Committee voted unanimously to recommend approval of Rule 10(b).

b. Video Teleconferencing for Arraignments: Rule 10(c).

Rule 10(c) addresses the second substantive change in the rule. That rule would permit the court to conduct arraignments through video teleconferencing. Although the practice is now used in state courts and in some federal courts, Rules 10 and 43 have generally prevented federal courts from using that method for arraignments in criminal cases over the defendant's objection. See, e.g., Valenzuela-Gonzales v. United States, 915 F.2d 1276, 1280 (9th Cir. 1990) (Rules 10 and 43 require personal appearance; thus, pilot program for video teleconferencing not permitted). A similar amendment was proposed by the Committee in 1993 and published for public comment but was later withdrawn from consideration in order to consider the results of several planned pilot programs. Upon further consideration, the Committee believed that the benefits of using video teleconferencing outweighed the costs of doing so. This amendment also parallels a proposed change Rule 5(d) that would permit initial appearances to be conducted by video teleconferencing.

When this rule was published for public comment, an alternative version was also provided. The alternative version of Rule 10(c) would have permitted the court to use teleconferencing without the defendant's consent.

In deciding to adopt the amendment, the Committee was persuaded in part by the fact that some districts deal with a very high volume of arraignments of defendants who are in custody and because of the distances involved, must be transported long distances. That procedure can also present security risks to law enforcement and court personnel.

Unlike the waiver for any appearance whatsoever at an arraignment, noted above, this particular provision would not require that the waiver for video teleconferencing be in writing. Nor does it require that the defendant waive that appearance in person, in open court.

The Committee voted 8 to 3 to recommend this amendment to Rule 10. As with Rule 5, above, the Committee Note has been expanded to address issues that the court may wish to consider in using video teleconferencing.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee recommends that the substantive amendments to Rule 10 be approved and forwarded to the Judicial Conference with the recommendation that if they are approved, the "substantive" version be substituted for the "style" version.

4. Rule 12.2. Notice of Insanity Defense; Mental Examination

Rule 12.2, which addresses the notice requirements for presenting an insanity defense or evidence of mental condition on the merits, contains several significant amendments.

First, Rule 12.2(c) clarifies that a court may order a mental examination for a defendant who has indicated an intention to raise a defense of mental condition bearing on the issue of guilt. Second, under Rule 12.2(b), the defendant is required to give notice of an intent to present expert evidence of the defendant's mental condition during a capital sentencing proceeding. Third, Rule 12.2(c) addresses the ability of the trial court to order a mental examination for a defendant who has given notice of an intent to present evidence of mental condition during capital sentencing proceedings and sets out when the results of that examination may be disclosed. Fourth, the amendment addresses the timing of disclosure of the results and reports of the defendant's expert examination. Finally, the amendment extends the sanctions for failure to comply with the rule's requirements to the punishment phase of a capital case. Rule 12.2(d).

The Committee made several post-publication changes to Rule 12.2. First, it deleted the words "upon motion of the government" from Rule 12.2 (c)(1) to reflect that examinations may also be requested by either the defendant or the government. Second, Rule 12.2(c)(4)(A) has been modified to clarify that a defendant's statements are admissible only after the defendant has introduced evidence requiring the notice in Rule 12.2(a) or (b)(1). Finally, Rule 12.2(c)(4)(B) has been amended to clarify that introduction of expert testimony in a capital sentencing proceeding requiring notice under Rule 12.2(b)(2) will trigger use of a defendant's statements.

The Committee voted unanimously to recommend approval of the substantive amendments to Rule 12.2.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee recommends that the substantive amendments to Rule 12.2 be approved and forwarded to the Judicial Conference with the recommendation that if they are approved, the "substantive" version be substituted for the "style" version.

5. Rule 12.4. Disclosure Statement (New Rule)

The Committee made several post-publication changes to new Rule 12.4. First, regarding Rule 12.4(a)(2), the Committee recognized the potential difficulty in requiring the prosecution to learn all of the disclosable information about an organizational defendant early in the proceedings. Thus, the Committee added the words, "to the extent it can be obtained through due diligence" at the end of that section. Second, the language in Rule 12.4(b)(1) was intended to track similar language in the Civil Rules counterpart to this rule but that approach creates problems in applying the requirements to a criminal proceeding. Thus, the Committee modified Rule 12.4(b)(1) to indicate that the disclosure requirements are triggered with the defendant's initial appearance. Finally, the Committee has recommended deleting the reference in Rule 12.4(a)(1)(B), which delegates authority to the Judicial Conference to prescribe additional disclosure requirements that may preempt local rules governing disclosure.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee recommends that Rule 12.4 be approved and forwarded to the Judicial Conference with the recommendation that it be approved.

6. Rule 26. Taking Testimony: Video Transmission of Testimony

The proposed amendment to Rule 26(b) would permit the court to use remote transmission of live testimony. Current Rule 26 indicates that normally only testimony given in open court will be considered, unless otherwise provided by the rules, an Act of Congress, or any other rule adopted by the Supreme Court. For example, Rule 15 recognizes that depositions, in conjunction with Federal Rule of Evidence 804, may be used to preserve and present testimony if there are exceptional circumstances in the case and it is in the interest of justice to do so. The revision to Rule 26(b) extends the logic underlying that exception to contemporaneous video testimony of an unavailable witness. The amendment generally parallels a similar provision in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 43.

As a result of public comments, the Committee modified the rule in several respects. First, the rule was changed to make it clear that the Committee envisions two-way video transmission. Second, the term "compelling circumstances" was changed to "exceptional circumstances" to reflect the standard for taking depositions in Rule 15 and the standard applied by courts that have addressed the Confrontation Clause issue. Finally, the Committee Note has been expanded.

Although a number of public comments raised concerns about whether the amendment would violate a defendant's rights under the Confrontation Clause, the Committee believes that the rule is constitutional and that permitting use of video transmission of testimony only in those instances when certain requirements are met, is appropriate. See United States v. Gigante, 166 F.3d 75 (2d Cir. 1999) (use of remote transmission of unavailable witness' testimony did not violate confrontation clause).

The amendment recognizes that there is a need for the trial court to impose appropriate safeguards and procedures to insure the accuracy and quality of the transmission, the ability of the jurors to hear and view the testimony, and the ability of the judge, counsel, and the witness to hear and understand each other during questioning. Deciding what safeguards are appropriate is left to the sound discretion of the trial court. That topic is discussed in an expanded Committee Note.

The Committee voted unanimously to recommend approval of the amendment to Rule 26.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee recommends that the substantive amendment to Rule 26 be approved and forwarded to the Judicial Conference with the recommendation that if it is approved, the "substantive" version be substituted for the "style" version.

7. Rule 30. Jury Instructions

The amendment to Rule 30 would permit the court to request the parties to submit their requested instructions before trial. The current rule indicates that a court may request those instructions after the trial has started. Several public comments raised concerns that permitting the court to require the defense to disclose its theory of the case prior to trial might be problematic. The Committee concluded, however, that the court should have the option of requesting pretrial submission of requested instructions and has included a comment in the Note to the effect that the amendment is not intended to change the practice of submitting supplemental requests after trial has started.

The Committee has also addressed the issue of waiver of objections to the instructions by adding a sentence at the end of Rule 30(d). The Committee decided not to address more explicitly the issue of whether a party must renew an objection after the instructions are given.

The Committee voted 9 to 2 to recommend approval of the amendment to Rule 30.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee recommends that the substantive amendment to Rule 30 be approved and forwarded to the Judicial Conference with the recommendation that if it is approved, the "substantive" version be substituted for the "style" version.

8. Rule 35. Correcting or Reducing Sentence

Rule 35 contains several changes. First, as noted, supra, the published version of Rule 35 used the term "sentencing" to describe the triggering element for the two "time" requirements in the rule. While the rule was out for public comment, and at the suggestion of the Standing Committee, the Advisory Committee discussed the issue of further defining or clarifying the term "sentencing." The Committee's initial decision was to use the term "oral announcement of the sentence." That is the view of the majority of the courts that have addressed the issue. Upon further reflection, however, the Committee decided to add a new provision (now Rule 35(a)) and define sentencing as the entry of the judgment. Even though that may result in the change in practice in some circuits, it is more consistent with describing the triggering event, for example, of an approval of a sentence.

Rule 35(c) (published as Rule 35(b)) includes a substantive change that had been under consideration apart from the restyling project. Rule 35(c) includes new language to the effect that the government may file a late motion to reduce a sentence if it demonstrates that the defendant had presented information, the usefulness of which could not reasonably be known until more than one year following sentencing. The current rule, however, did not address the issue and the courts were split on the issue. Compare United States v. Morales, 52 F.3d 7 (1st Cir. 1995) (permitting filing and granting of motion) with United States v. Orozco, 160 F.3d 1309 (11th Cir. 1998) (denying relief and citing cases). Although the court in Orozco felt constrained to deny relief under Rule, the court urged an amendment of the rule to:

address the apparent unforeseen situation presented in this case where a convicted defendant provides information to the government prior to the expiration of the jurisdictional, one-year period from sentence imposition, but that information does not become useful to the government until more than one year after sentence imposition. Id. at 1316, n.13.

The amendment to Rule 35(c) is intended to address the instances identified by the court in Orozco. The proposed amendment would not eliminate the one-year requirement as a generally operative element.

Following additional consideration of the rule, the Committee has recommended, post-publication, a slight expansion in Rule 35(c) that would permit the government to file a motion for sentence reduction when the defendant is not aware of the helpful nature of the information until after one year, but provides it to the government promptly upon learning of its usefulness.

The Committee voted unanimously to recommend the approval of the proposed amendments to Rule 35.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee recommends that the substantive amendments to Rule 35 be approved and forwarded to the Judicial Conference with the recommendation that if they are approved, the "substantive" version be substituted for the "style" version.

9. Rule 43. Defendant's Presence

The amendments to Rule 43 are conforming changes, that hinge on approval of Rules 5 and 10 concerning video teleconferencing, and Rule 10 that permits the defendant to waive appearance at an arraignment. The Committee made no post-publication changes to Rule 43.

Recommendation: The Advisory Committee recommends that the substantive amendment to Rule 43 be approved and forwarded to the Judicial Conference with the recommendation that if it is approved, the "substantive" version be substituted for the "style" version.

VI. INFORMATION ITEM—Withdrawal of Substantive Amendment to Rule 32 and Deferral of Substantive Amendment to Rule 41

A. Rule 32. Sentencing: Ruling on Material Matters.

The Standing Committee approved publication of an amendment to Rule 32 that would have required the sentencing judge to resolve objections to "material" matters in the presentencing report—even if those matters would not directly affect the actual sentence. The rationale for that proposed change rested on the understanding that the presentence report is used by the Bureau of Prisons in making important post-sentencing decisions regarding such issues as the ability of the defendant to receive drug treatment. Upon further consideration, and after considering comments from the Bureau of Prisons, the Committee decided to withdraw the recommendation. Nonetheless, the Committee decided to include information in the Committee Note that would draw attention to the potential problems associated with incorrect information in the presentence report.

B. Rule 41. Search and Seizure: Covert Searches

The Standing Committee approved publication of an amendment to Rule 41 that would have addressed the procedures for issuing a warrant for covert entries. After considering the public comments on the rule, and further discussion, the Committee has decided to defer further action on that amendment. The Committee envisions continued discussions of the amendment and contemporaneous consideration of amendments to Rule 41 that would address the topic of issuing what are often referred to as "tracking device" warrants.

VII. INFORMATION ITEM—Rules Governing § 2254 and § 2255 Proceedings

Proposed amendments to several rules in the Rules Governing § 2254 and § 2255 Proceedings were published for public comment. A number of commentators observed that the amendments did not go far enough. The Committee has decided to defer further action on those rules, pending further research on the substantive questions and consideration of a "restyled" version of the rules.

I. SCOPE, PURPOSE, AND CONSTRUCTION	TITLE I. APPLICABILITY
	Rule 1. Scope; Definitions
Rule 1. Scope These rules govern the procedure in all criminal proceedings in the courts of the United States, as provided in Rule 54(a); and, whenever specifically provided in one of the rules, to preliminary, supplementary, and special proceedings before United States magistrate judges and at proceedings before state and local judicial officers. Rule 54. Application and Exception (a) Courts. These rules apply to all criminal proceedings in the United States District Courts; in the District of Guam; in the District Court for the Northern Mariana Islands, except as otherwise provided in articles IV and V of the covenant provided by the Act of March 24, 1976 (90 Stat. 263); and in the District Court of the Virgin Islands; in the United States Courts of Appeals; and in the Supreme Court of the United States; except that the prosecution of offenses in the District Court of the Virgin Islands shall be by indictment or information as otherwise provided by law.	(a) Scope. (1) In General. These rules govern the procedure in all criminal proceedings in the United States district courts, the United States courts of appeals, and the Supreme Court of the United States. (2) State or Local Judicial Officer. When a rule so states, it applies to a proceeding before a state or local judicial officer. (3) Territorial Courts. These rules also govern the procedure in all criminal proceedings in the following courts: (A) the district court of Guam; (B) the district court for the Northern Mariana Islands, except as otherwise provided by law; and (C) the district court of the Virgin Islands, except that the prosecution of offenses in that court must be by indictment or information as otherwise provided by law.

(1) Removed Proceedings. These rules apply to criminal prosecutions removed to the United States district courts from state courts and govern all procedure after removal, except that dismissal by the attorney for the prosecution shall be governed by state law.

(2) Offenses Outside a District or State. These rules apply to proceedings for offenses committed upon the high seas or elsewhere out of the jurisdiction of any particular state or district, except that such proceedings may be had in any district authorized by 18 U.S.C. § 3238.

(3) Peace Bonds. These rules do not alter the power of judges of the United States or of United States magistrate judges to hold security of the peace and for good behavior under Revised Statutes, § 4069, 50 U.S.C. § 23, but in such cases the procedure shall conform to these rules so far as they are applicable.

(4) Proceedings Before United States Magistrate Judges. Proceedings involving misdemeanors and other petty offenses are governed by Rule 58.

(5) Other Proceedings. These rules are not applicable to extradition and rendition of fugitives; civil forfeiture of property for violation of a statute of the United States; or the collection of fines and penalties. Except as provided in Rule 20(d) they do not apply to proceedings under 18 U.S.C. Chapter 403 — Juvenile Delinquency — so far as they are inconsistent with that chapter. They do not apply to summary trials for offenses against the navigation laws under Revised Statutes §§ 4300-4305, 33 U.S.C. §§ 391-396, or to proceedings involving disputes between seamen under Revised Statutes §§ 4079-4081, as amended, 22 U.S.C. §§ 256-258, or to proceedings for fishery offenses under the Act of June 28, 1937, c. 392, 50 Stat. 325-327, 16 U.S.C. §§ 772-772i, or to proceedings against a witness in a foreign country under 28 U.S.C. § 1784.

(4) Removed Proceedings. Although these rules govern all proceedings after removal from a state court, state law governs a dismissal by the prosecution.

(5) Excluded Proceedings. Proceedings not governed by these rules include:

- (A) the extradition and rendition of a fugitive;
- (B) a civil property forfeiture for violating a federal statute;
- (C) the collection of a fine or penalty;
- (D) a proceeding under a statute governing juvenile delinquency to the extent the procedure is inconsistent with the statute, unless Rule 20(d) provides otherwise;
- (E) a dispute between seamen under 22 U.S.C. §§ 256-258; and

(c) Application of Terms. (Rule 54 continued) As used in these rules the following terms have the designated meanings.

“Act of Congress” includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of Columbia, in Puerto Rico, in a territory or in any insular possession.

“Attorney for the government” means the Attorney General, an authorized assistant of the Attorney General, a United States Attorney, an authorized assistant of a United States Attorney, when applicable to cases arising under the laws of Guam the Attorney General of Guam or such other person or persons as may be authorized by the laws of Guam to act therein, and when applicable to cases arising under the laws of the Northern Mariana Islands the Attorney General of the Northern Mariana Islands or any other person or persons as may be authorized by the laws of the Northern Marianas to act therein.

“Civil action” refers to a civil action in a district court.

The words “demurrer,” “motion to quash,” “plea in abatement,” “plea in bar” and “special plea in bar,” or words to the same effect, in any act of Congress shall be construed to mean the motion raising a defense or objection provided in Rule 12.

“District court” includes all district courts named in subdivision (a) of this rule.

(F) a proceeding against a witness in a foreign country under 28 U.S.C. § 1784.

(b) Definitions. The following definitions apply to these rules:

(1) “Attorney for the government” means:

- (A) the Attorney General or an authorized assistant;
- (B) a United States attorney or an authorized assistant;
- (C) when applicable to cases arising under Guam law, the Guam Attorney General or other person whom Guam law authorizes to act in the matter; and
- (D) any other attorney authorized by law to conduct proceedings under these rules as a prosecutor.

“Federal magistrate judge” means a United States magistrate judge as defined in 28 U.S.C. §§ 631-639, a judge of the United States or another judge or judicial officer specifically empowered by statute in force in any territory or possession, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or the District of Columbia, to perform a function to which a particular rule relates.

“Judge of the United States” includes a judge of the district court, court of appeals, or the Supreme Court.

“Law” includes statutes and judicial decisions.

“Magistrate judge” includes a United States magistrate judge as defined in 28 U.S.C. §§ 631-639, a judge of the United States, another judge or judicial officer specifically empowered by statute in force in any territory or possession, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or the District of Columbia, to perform a function to which a particular rule relates, and a state or local judicial officer, authorized by 18 U.S.C. § 3041 to perform the functions prescribed in Rules 3, 4, and 5.

“Petty offense” is defined in 18 U.S.C. § 19.

“State” includes District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, territory and insular possession.

“United States magistrate judge” means the officer authorized by 28 U.S.C. §§ 631-639.

(2) “Court” means a federal judge performing functions authorized by law.

(3) “Federal judge” means:

(A) a justice or judge of the United States as these terms are defined in 28 U.S.C. § 451;

(B) a magistrate judge; and

(C) a judge confirmed by the United States Senate and empowered by statute in any commonwealth, territory, or possession to perform a function to which a particular rule relates.

(4) “Judge” means a federal judge or a state or local judicial officer.

(5) “Magistrate judge” means a United States magistrate judge as defined in 28 U.S.C. §§ 631-639.

(6) “Oath” includes an affirmation.

(7) “Organization” is defined in 18 U.S.C. § 18.

(8) “Petty offense” is defined in 18 U.S.C. § 19.

(9) “State” includes the District of Columbia, and any commonwealth, territory, or possession of the United States.

(10) “State or local judicial officer” means:

(A) a state or local officer authorized to act under 18 U.S.C. § 3041; and

(B) a judicial officer empowered by statute in the District of Columbia or in any commonwealth, territory, or possession to perform a function to which a particular rule relates.

(c) Authority of a Justice or Judge of the United States. When these rules authorize a magistrate judge to act, any other federal judge may also act.

COMMITTEE NOTE

Rule 1 is entirely revised and expanded to incorporate Rule 54, which deals with the application of the rules. Consistent with the title of the existing rule, the Committee believed that a statement of the scope of the rules should be placed at the beginning to show readers which proceedings are governed by these rules. The Committee also revised the rule to incorporate the definitions found in Rule 54(c) as a new Rule 1(b).

Rule 1(a) contains language from Rule 54(b). But language in current Rule 54(b)(2)-(4) has been deleted for several reasons: First, Rule 54(b)(2) refers to a venue statute that governs an offense committed on the high seas or somewhere outside the jurisdiction of a particular district; it is unnecessary and has been deleted because once venue has been established, the Rules of Criminal Procedure automatically apply. Second, Rule 54(b)(3) currently deals with peace bonds; that provision is inconsistent with the governing statute and has therefore been deleted. Finally, Rule 54(b)(4) references proceedings conducted before United States Magistrate Judges, a topic now covered in Rule 58.

Rule 1(a)(5) consists of material currently located in Rule 54(b)(5), with the exception of the references to the navigation laws and to fishery offenses. Those provisions were considered obsolete. But if those proceedings were to arise, they would be governed by the Rules of Criminal Procedure.

Rule 1(b) is composed of material currently located in Rule 54(c), with several exceptions. First, the reference to an "Act of Congress" has been replaced with the term "statute," which means a federal statute. Second, the language concerning demurrers, pleas in abatement, etc., has been deleted as being anachronistic. Third, the definitions of "civil action" and "district court" have been deleted. Fourth, the term "attorney for the government" has been expanded to include reference to those attorneys who may serve as special or independent counsel under applicable federal statutes. The term "attorney for the government" contemplates an attorney of record in the case.

Fifth, the Committee added a definition for the term "court" in Rule 1(b)(2). Although that term originally was almost always synonymous with the term "district judge," the term might be misleading or unduly narrow because it may not cover the many functions performed by magistrate judges. See generally 28 U.S.C. §§ 132, 636. Additionally, the term does not cover circuit judges who may be authorized to hold a district court. See 28 U.S.C. § 291. The proposed definition continues the traditional view that "court" means district judge, but also reflects the current understanding that magistrate judges act as the "court" in many proceedings. Finally, the Committee intends that the term "court" be used principally to describe a judicial officer, except where a rule uses the term in a spatial sense, such as describing proceedings in "open court."

Sixth, the term "Judge of the United States" has been replaced with the term "Federal judge." That term includes Article III judges and magistrate judges and, as noted in Rule 1(b)(3)(C), federal judges other than Article III judges who may be authorized by statute to perform a particular act specified in the Rules of Criminal Procedure. The term does not include local judges in the District of Columbia. Seventh, the definition of "Law" has been deleted as being superfluous and possibly misleading because it suggests that administrative regulations are excluded.

Eighth, the current rules include three definitions of "magistrate judge." The term used in amended Rule 1(b)(5) is limited to United States magistrate judges. In the current rules the term magistrate judge includes not only United States magistrate judges, but also district court judges, court of appeals judges, Supreme Court justices, and where authorized, state and local officers. The Committee believed that the rules should reflect current practice, i.e., the wider and almost exclusive use of United States magistrate judges, especially in preliminary matters. The definition, however, is not intended to restrict the use of other federal judicial officers to perform those functions. Thus, Rule 1(c) has been added to make it clear that where the rules authorize a magistrate judge to act, any other federal judge or justice may act.

Finally, the term "organization" has been added to the list of definitions.

The remainder of the rule has been amended as part of the general restyling of the rules to make them more easily understood. In addition to changes made to improve the clarity, the Committee has changed language to make style and terminology consistent throughout the Criminal Rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 2. Purpose and Construction	Rule 2. Interpretation
These rules are intended to provide for the just determination of every criminal proceeding. They shall be construed to secure simplicity in procedure, fairness in administration and the elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay.	These rules are to be interpreted to provide for the just determination of every criminal proceeding, to secure simplicity in procedure and fairness in administration, and to eliminate unjustifiable expense and delay.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 2 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic. No substantive change is intended.

In particular, Rule 2 has been amended to clarify the purpose of the Rules of Criminal Procedure. The words "are intended" have been changed to read "are to be interpreted." The Committee believed that that was the original intent of the drafters and more accurately reflects the purpose of the rules.

II. PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS	TITLE II. PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS
Rule 3. The Complaint	Rule 3. The Complaint
The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged. It shall be made upon oath before a magistrate judge.	The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged. It must be made under oath before a magistrate judge or, if none is reasonably available, before a state or local judicial officer.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 3 is amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic and no substantive change is intended, except as described below.

The amendment makes one change in practice. Currently, Rule 3 requires the complaint to be sworn before a “magistrate judge,” which under current Rule 54 could include a state or local judicial officer. Revised Rule 1 no longer includes state and local officers in the definition of magistrate judges for the purposes of these rules. Instead, the definition includes only United States magistrate judges. Rule 3 requires that the complaint be made before a United States magistrate judge or before a state or local officer. The revised rule does, however, make a change to reflect prevailing practice and the outcome desired by the Committee — that the procedure take place before a federal judicial officer if one is reasonably available. As noted in Rule 1(c), where the rules, such as Rule 3, authorize a magistrate judge to act, any other federal judge may act.

Rule 4. Arrest Warrant or Summons Upon Complaint	Rule 4. Arrest Warrant or Summons on a Complaint
(a) Issuance. If it appears from the complaint, or from an affidavit or affidavits filed with the complaint, that there is probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed and that the defendant has committed it, a warrant for the arrest of the defendant shall issue to any officer authorized by law to execute it. Upon the request of the attorney for the government a summons instead of a warrant shall issue. More than one warrant or summons may issue on the same complaint. If a defendant fails to appear in response to the summons, a warrant shall issue.	(a) Issuance. If the complaint or one or more affidavits filed with the complaint establish probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed and that the defendant committed it, the judge must issue an arrest warrant to an officer authorized to execute it. At the request of an attorney for the government, the judge must issue a summons, instead of a warrant, to a person authorized to serve it. A judge may issue more than one warrant or summons on the same complaint. If a defendant fails to appear in response to a summons, a judge may, and upon request of an attorney for the government must, issue a warrant.
(b) Probable Cause. The finding of probable cause may be based upon hearsay evidence in whole or in part.
(c) Form. (1) Warrant. The warrant shall be signed by the magistrate judge and shall contain the name of the defendant or, if the defendant's name is unknown, any name or description by which the defendant can be identified with reasonable certainty. It shall describe the offense charged in the complaint. It shall command that the defendant be arrested and brought before the nearest available magistrate judge. (2) Summons. The summons shall be in the same form as the warrant except that it shall summon the defendant to appear before a magistrate at a stated time and place.	(b) Form. (1) Warrant. A warrant must: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (A) contain the defendant's name or, if it is unknown, a name or description by which the defendant can be identified with reasonable certainty; (B) describe the offense charged in the complaint; (C) command that the defendant be arrested and brought without unnecessary delay before a magistrate judge or, if none is reasonably available, before a state or local judicial officer; and (D) be signed by a judge. (2) Summons. A summons must be in the same form as a warrant except that it must require the defendant to appear before a magistrate judge at a stated time and place.

(d) Execution or Service; and Return. (1) By Whom. The warrant shall be executed by a marshal or by some other officer authorized by law. The summons may be served by any person authorized to serve a summons in a civil action. (2) Territorial Limits. The warrant may be executed or the summons may be served at any place within the jurisdiction of the United States.	(c) Execution or Service, and Return. (1) By Whom. Only a marshal or other authorized officer may execute a warrant. Any person authorized to serve a summons in a federal civil action may serve a summons. (2) Location. A warrant may be executed, or a summons served, within the jurisdiction of the United States or anywhere else a federal statute authorizes an arrest.
(3) Manner. The warrant shall be executed by the arrest of the defendant. The officer need not have the warrant at the time of the arrest but upon request shall show the warrant to the defendant as soon as possible. If the officer does not have the warrant at the time of the arrest, the officer shall then inform the defendant of the offense charged and of the fact that a warrant has been issued. The summons shall be served upon a defendant by delivering a copy to the defendant personally, or by leaving it at the defendant's dwelling house or usual place of abode with some person of suitable age and discretion then residing therein and by mailing a copy of the summons to the defendant's last known address.	(3) Manner. (A) A warrant is executed by arresting the defendant. Upon arrest, an officer possessing the warrant must show it to the defendant. If the officer does not possess the warrant, the officer must inform the defendant of the warrant's existence and of the offense charged and, at the defendant's request, must show the warrant to the defendant as soon as possible. (B) A summons is served on an individual defendant: (i) by delivering a copy to the defendant personally; or (ii) by leaving a copy at the defendant's residence or usual place of abode with a person of suitable age and discretion residing at that location and by mailing a copy to the defendant's last known address. (C) A summons is served on an organization by delivering a copy to an officer, to a managing or general agent, or to another agent appointed or legally authorized to receive service of process. A copy must also be mailed to the organization's last known address within the district or to its principal place of business elsewhere in the United States.

(4) Return. The officer executing a warrant shall make return thereof to the magistrate judge or other officer before whom the defendant is brought pursuant to Rule 5. At the request of the attorney for the government any unexecuted warrant shall be returned to and canceled by the magistrate judge by whom it was issued. On or before the return day the person to whom a summons was delivered for service shall make return thereof to the magistrate judge before whom the summons is returnable. At the request of the attorney for the government made at any time while the complaint is pending, a warrant returned unexecuted and not canceled or summons returned unserved or a duplicate thereof may be delivered by the magistrate judge to the marshal or other authorized person for execution or service.

(4) Return.

- (A) After executing a warrant, the officer must return it to the judge before whom the defendant is brought in accordance with Rule 5. At the request of an attorney for the government, an unexecuted warrant must be brought back to and canceled by a magistrate judge or, if none is reasonably available, by a state or local judicial officer.
- (B) The person to whom a summons was delivered for service must return it on or before the return day.
- (C) At the request of an attorney for the government, a judge may deliver an unexecuted warrant, an unserved summons, or a copy of the warrant or summons to the marshal or other authorized person for execution or service.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 4 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic, except as noted below.

The first non-stylistic change is in Rule 4(a), which has been amended to provide an element of discretion in those situations when the defendant fails to respond to a summons. Under the current rule, the judge must in all cases issue an arrest warrant. The revised rule provides discretion to the judge to issue an arrest warrant if the attorney for the government does not request that an arrest warrant be issued for a failure to appear.

Current Rule 4(b), which refers to the fact that hearsay evidence may be used to support probable cause, has been deleted. That language was added to the rule in 1974, apparently to reflect emerging federal case law. See Advisory Committee Note to 1974 Amendments to Rule 4 (citing cases). A similar amendment was made to Rule 41 in 1972. In the intervening years, however, the case law has become perfectly clear on that proposition. Thus, the Committee believed that the reference to hearsay was no longer necessary. Furthermore, the limited reference to hearsay evidence was misleading to the extent that it might have suggested that other forms of inadmissible evidence could not be considered. For example, the rule made no reference to considering a defendant's prior criminal record, which clearly may be considered in deciding whether probable cause exists. See, e.g., Brinegar v. United States, 338 U.S. 160 (1949) (officer's knowledge of defendant's prior criminal activity). Rather than address that issue, or any other similar issues, the Committee believed that the matter was best addressed in Rule 1101(d)(3), Federal Rules of Evidence. That rule explicitly provides that the Federal Rules of Evidence do not apply to "preliminary examinations in criminal cases, . . . issuance of warrants for arrest, criminal summonses, and search warrants." The Advisory Committee Note accompanying that rule recognizes that: "The nature of the proceedings makes application of the formal rules of evidence inappropriate and impracticable." The Committee did not intend to make any substantive changes in practice by deleting the reference to hearsay evidence.

New Rule 4(b), which is currently Rule 4(c), addresses the form of an arrest warrant and a summons and includes two non-stylistic changes. First, Rule 4(b)(1)(C) mandates that the warrant require that the defendant be brought "without unnecessary delay" before a judge. The Committee believed that this was a more appropriate standard than the current requirement that the defendant be brought before the "nearest available" magistrate judge. This new language accurately reflects the thrust of the original rule, that time is of the essence and that the defendant should be brought with dispatch before a judicial officer in the district. Second, the revised rule states a preference that the defendant be brought before a federal judicial officer.

Rule 4(b)(2) has been amended to require that if a summons is issued, the defendant must appear before a magistrate judge. The current rule requires the appearance before a "magistrate," which could include a state or local judicial officer. This change is consistent with the preference for requiring defendants to appear before federal judicial officers stated in revised Rule 4(b)(1).

Rule 4(c) (currently Rule 4(d)) includes three changes. First, current Rule 4(d)(2) states the traditional rule recognizing the territorial limits for executing warrants. Rule 4(c)(2) includes new language that reflects the recent enactment of the Military Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Act (Pub. L. No. 106-523, 114 Stat. 2488) that permits arrests of certain military and Department of Defense personnel overseas. See also 14 U.S.C. § 89 (Coast Guard authority to effect arrests outside territorial limits of United States). Second, current Rule 4(d)(3) provides that the arresting officer is only required to inform the defendant of the offense charged and that a warrant exists if the officer does not have a copy of the warrant. As revised, Rule 4(c)(3)(A) explicitly requires the arresting officer in all instances to inform the defendant of the offense charged and of the fact that an arrest warrant exists. The new rule continues the current provision that the arresting officer need not have a copy of the warrant, but if the defendant requests to see it, the officer must show the warrant to the defendant as soon as possible. The rule does not attempt to define any particular time limits for showing the warrant to the defendant.

Second, Rule 4(c)(3)(C) is taken from former Rule 9(c)(1). That provision specifies the manner of serving a summons on an organization. The Committee believed that Rule 4 was the more appropriate location for general provisions addressing the mechanics of arrest warrants and summonses. Revised Rule 9 liberally cross-references the basic provisions appearing in Rule 4. Under the amended rule, in all cases in which a summons is being served on an organization, a copy of the summons must be mailed to the organization.

Third, a change is made in Rule 4(c)(4). Currently, Rule 4(d)(4) requires that an unexecuted warrant must be returned to the judicial officer or judge who issued it. As amended, Rule 4(c)(4)(A) provides that after a warrant is executed, the officer must return it to the judge before whom the defendant will appear under Rule 5. At the government's request, however, an unexecuted warrant must be canceled by a magistrate judge. The change recognizes the possibility that at the time the warrant is returned, the issuing judicial officer may not be available.

Rule 5. Initial Appearance Before the Magistrate Judge

(a) In General. Except as otherwise provided in this rule, an officer making an arrest under a warrant issued upon a complaint or any person making an arrest without a warrant shall take the arrested person without unnecessary delay before the nearest available federal magistrate judge or, if a federal magistrate judge is not reasonably available, before a state or local judicial officer authorized by 18 U.S.C. § 3041. If a person arrested without a warrant is brought before a magistrate judge, a complaint, satisfying the probable cause requirements of Rule 4(a), shall be promptly filed. When a person, arrested with or without a warrant or given a summons, appears initially before the magistrate judge, the magistrate judge shall proceed in accordance with the applicable subdivisions of this rule.

Rule 5. Initial Appearance

(a) In General.

(1) Appearance Upon an Arrest.

- (A) A person making an arrest within the United States must take the defendant without unnecessary delay before a magistrate judge, or before a state or local judicial officer as Rule 5(c) provides, unless a statute provides otherwise.
- (B) A person making an arrest outside the United States must take the defendant without unnecessary delay before a magistrate judge.

An officer making an arrest under a warrant issued upon a complaint charging solely a violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1073 need not comply with this rule if the person arrested is transferred without unnecessary delay to the custody of appropriate state or local authorities in the district of arrest and an attorney for the government moves promptly, in the district in which the warrant was issued, to dismiss the complaint.

(2) Exceptions.

- (A) An officer making an arrest under a warrant issued upon a complaint charging solely a violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1073 need not comply with this rule if:
 - (i) the person arrested is transferred without unnecessary delay to the custody of appropriate state or local authorities in the district of arrest; and
 - (ii) an attorney for the government moves promptly, in the district where the warrant was issued, to dismiss the complaint.
- (B) If a defendant is arrested for violating probation or supervised release, Rule 32.1 applies.
- (C) If a defendant is arrested for failing to appear in another district, Rule 40 applies.

(3) Appearance Upon a Summons. When a defendant appears in response to a summons under Rule 4, a magistrate judge must proceed under Rule 5(d) or (e), as applicable.

(b) Arrest Without a Warrant. If a defendant is arrested without a warrant, a complaint meeting Rule 4(a)'s requirement of probable cause must be promptly filed in the district where the offense was allegedly committed.

(c) Place of Initial Appearance; Transfer to Another District.

(1) Arrest in the District Where the Offense Was Allegedly Committed. If the defendant is arrested in the district where the offense was allegedly committed:

(A) the initial appearance must be in that district; and

(B) if a magistrate judge is not reasonably available, the initial appearance may be before a state or local judicial officer.

(2) Arrest in District Other Than Where the Offense Was Allegedly Committed. If the defendant was arrested in a district other than where the offense was allegedly committed, the initial appearance must be:

(A) in the district of arrest; or

(B) in an adjacent district if:

(i) the appearance can occur more promptly there; or

(ii) the offense was allegedly committed there and the initial appearance will occur on the day of arrest.

(3) Procedures in a District Other Than Where the Offense Was Allegedly Committed. If the initial appearance occurs in a district other than where the offense was allegedly committed, the following procedures apply:

(A) the magistrate judge must inform the defendant about the provisions of Rule 20;

(B) if the defendant was arrested without a warrant, the district court where the offense was allegedly committed must first issue a warrant before the magistrate judge transfers the defendant to that district;

(C) the magistrate judge must conduct a preliminary hearing if required by Rule 5.1 or Rule 58(b)(2)(G);

(D) the magistrate judge must transfer the defendant to the district where the offense was allegedly committed if:

(c) Offenses Not Triable by the United States

Magistrate Judge. If the charge against the defendant is not triable by the United States magistrate judge, the defendant shall not be called upon to plead. The magistrate judge shall inform the defendant of the complaint against the defendant and of any affidavit filed therewith, of the defendant's right to retain counsel or to request the assignment of counsel if the defendant is unable to obtain counsel, and of the general circumstances under which the defendant may secure pretrial release. The magistrate judge shall inform the defendant that the defendant is not required to make a statement and that any statement made by the defendant may be used against the defendant. The magistrate judge shall also inform the defendant of the right to a preliminary examination. The magistrate judge shall allow the defendant reasonable time and opportunity to consult counsel and shall detain or conditionally release the defendant as provided by statute or in these rules.

* * * * *

(i) the government produces the warrant, a certified copy of the warrant, a facsimile of either, or other appropriate form of either; and

(ii) the judge finds that the defendant is the same person named in the indictment, information, or warrant; and

(E) when a defendant is transferred and discharged, the clerk must promptly transmit the papers and any bail to the clerk in the district where the offense was allegedly committed.

(d) Procedure in a Felony Case.

(1) Advice. If the defendant is charged with a felony, the judge must inform the defendant of the following:

(A) the complaint against the defendant, and any affidavit filed with it;

(B) the defendant's right to retain counsel or to request that counsel be appointed if the defendant cannot obtain counsel;

(C) the circumstances, if any, under which the defendant may secure pretrial release;

(D) any right to a preliminary hearing; and

(E) the defendant's right not to make a statement, and that any statement made may be used against the defendant.

(2) Consulting with Counsel. The judge must allow the defendant reasonable opportunity to consult with counsel.

(3) Detention or Release. The judge must detain or release the defendant as provided by statute or these rules.

(4) Plea. A defendant may be asked to plead only under Rule 10.

(b) Misdemeanors and Other Petty Offenses. If the charge against the defendant is a misdemeanor or other petty offense triable by a United States magistrate judge under 18 U.S.C. § 3401, the magistrate judge shall proceed in accordance with Rule 58.

(e) Procedure in a Misdemeanor Case. If the defendant is charged with a misdemeanor only, the judge must inform the defendant in accordance with Rule 58(b)(2).

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 5 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic, except as noted below.

Rule 5 has been completely revised to more clearly set out the procedures for initial appearances and to recognize that such appearances may be required at various stages of a criminal proceeding, for example, where a defendant has been arrested for violating the terms of probation.

Rule 5(a), which governs initial appearances by an arrested defendant before a magistrate judge, includes several changes. The first is a clarifying change; revised Rule 5(a)(1) provides that a person making the arrest must bring the defendant "without unnecessary delay" before a magistrate judge, instead of the current reference to "nearest available" magistrate. This language parallels changes in Rule 4 and reflects the view that time is of the essence. The Committee intends no change in practice. In using the term, the Committee recognizes that on occasion there may be necessary delay in presenting the defendant, for example due to weather conditions or other natural causes. A second change is non-stylistic, and reflects the stated preference (as in other provisions throughout the rules) that the defendant be brought before a federal judicial officer. Only if a magistrate judge is not available should the defendant be taken before a state or local officer.

The third sentence in current Rule 5(a), which states that a magistrate judge must proceed in accordance with the rule when a defendant is arrested without a warrant or given a summons, has been deleted as unnecessary.

Rule 5(a)(1)(B) codifies the case law reflecting that the right to an initial appearance applies not only when a person is arrested within the United States but also when an arrest occurs outside the United States. See, e.g., United States v. Purvis, 768 F.2d 1237 (11th Cir. 1985); United States v. Yunis, 859 F.2d 953 (D.C. Cir. 1988). In these circumstances, the Committee believes — and the rule so provides — that the initial appearance should be before a federal magistrate judge rather than a state or local judicial officer. The rule has been amended by adding the words, "unless a statute provides otherwise," to reflect recent enactment of the Military Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Act (Pub. L. No. 106-523, 114 Stat. 2488) that permits certain persons overseas to appear before a magistrate judge by telephone communications.

Rule 5(a)(2)(A) consists of language currently located in Rule 5, that addresses the procedure to be followed when a defendant has been arrested under a warrant issued on a complaint charging solely a violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1073 (unlawful flight to avoid prosecution). Rule 5(a)(2)(B) and 5(a)(2)(C) are new provisions. They are intended to make it clear that when a defendant is arrested for violating probation or supervised release or for failing to appear in another district, Rules 32.1 and 40 apply. No change in practice is intended.

Rule 5(a)(3) is new and fills a perceived gap in the rules. It recognizes that a defendant may be subjected to an initial appearance under this rule if a summons was issued under Rule 4, instead of an arrest warrant. If the defendant is appearing pursuant to a summons in a felony case, Rule 5(d) applies and if the defendant is appearing in a misdemeanor case, Rule 5(e) applies.

Rule 5(b) carries forward the requirement in former Rule 5(a) that if the defendant is arrested without a warrant, a complaint must be promptly filed.

Rule 5(c) is a new provision setting out where an initial appearance is to take place. If the defendant is arrested in the district where the offense was allegedly committed, under Rule 5(c)(1), the defendant must be taken to a magistrate judge in that district. If no magistrate judge is reasonably available, a state or local judicial officer may conduct the initial appearance. On the other hand, if the defendant is arrested in a district other than the district where the offense was allegedly committed, Rule 5(c)(2) governs. In those instances, the defendant must be taken to a magistrate judge within the district of arrest, unless the appearance can take place more promptly in an adjacent district. And under Rule 5(c)(2)(B)(ii), the initial appearance must occur in the district where the offense was allegedly committed if that district is adjacent to the district of the arrest and the initial appearance will take place on the day of the arrest. The Committee recognized that in some cases, the nearest magistrate judge might actually be across a district's lines. Rule 5(c)(3) includes material formerly located in Rule 40.

Rule 5(d) is derived from current Rule 5(c) and has been retitled to more clearly reflect the subject of that subdivision — the procedure to be used if the defendant is charged with a felony. Rule 5(d)(4) has been added to make clear that a defendant may only be called upon to enter a plea under the provisions of Rule 10. That language is intended to reflect and reaffirm current practice.

The remaining portions of current Rule 5(c) have been moved to Rule 5.1, which deals with preliminary hearings in felony cases.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication was to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 5 was one of those rules. In restyling and reformatting Rule 5, the Committee decided to also propose a substantive change that would permit video teleconferencing of initial appearances. Another version of Rule 5, which includes a new subdivision (f) governing such procedures, is in what has been referred to as the "substantive" package.

	Rule 5.1. Preliminary Hearing
Rule 5(c). Offenses Not Triable by the United States Magistrate Judge. * * * * * A defendant is entitled to a preliminary examination, unless waived, when charged with any offense, other than a petty offense, which is to be tried by a judge of the district court. If the defendant waives preliminary examination, the magistrate judge shall forthwith hold the defendant to answer in the district court. If the defendant does not waive the preliminary examination, the magistrate judge shall schedule a preliminary examination.	(a) In General. If a defendant is charged with an offense other than a petty offense, a magistrate judge must conduct a preliminary hearing unless: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) the defendant waives the hearing; (2) the defendant is indicted; (3) the government files an information under Rule 7(b) charging the defendant with a felony; (4) the government files an information charging the defendant with a misdemeanor; or (5) the defendant is charged with a misdemeanor and consents to trial before a magistrate judge.
	(b) Selecting a District. A defendant arrested in a district other than where the offense was allegedly committed may elect to have the preliminary hearing conducted in the district where the prosecution is pending.
Such examination shall be held within a reasonable time but in any event not later than 10 days following the initial appearance if the defendant is in custody and no later than 20 days if the defendant is not in custody, provided, however, that the preliminary examination shall not be held if the defendant is indicted or if an information against the defendant is filed in district court before the date set for the preliminary examination.	(c) Scheduling. The magistrate judge must hold the preliminary hearing within a reasonable time, but no later than 10 days after the initial appearance if the defendant is in custody and no later than 20 days if not in custody.
With the consent of the defendant and upon a showing of good cause, taking into account the public interest in the prompt disposition of criminal cases, time limits specified in this subdivision may be extended one or more times by a federal magistrate judge. In the absence of such consent by the defendant, time limits may be extended by a judge of the United States only upon a showing that extraordinary circumstances exist and that delay is indispensable to the interests of justice.	(d) Extending the Time. With the defendant's consent and upon a showing of good cause — taking into account the public interest in the prompt disposition of criminal cases — a magistrate judge may extend the time limits in Rule 5.1(c) one or more times. If the defendant does not consent, a justice or judge of the United States (as these terms are defined in 28 U.S.C. § 451) may extend the time limits only on a showing that extraordinary circumstances exist and justice requires the delay.

Rule 5.1. Preliminary Examination

(a) Probable Cause Finding. If from the evidence it appears that there is probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed and that the defendant committed it, the federal magistrate judge shall forthwith hold the defendant to answer in district court. The finding of probable cause may be based upon hearsay evidence in whole or in part. The defendant may cross-examine adverse witnesses and may introduce evidence. Objections to evidence on the ground that it was acquired by unlawful means are not properly made at the preliminary examination. Motions to suppress must be made to the trial court as provided in Rule 12.

(b) Discharge of Defendant. If from the evidence it appears that there is no probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed or that the defendant committed it, the federal magistrate judge shall dismiss the complaint and discharge the defendant. The discharge of the defendant shall not preclude the government from instituting a subsequent prosecution for the same offense.

(c) Records. After concluding the proceeding the federal magistrate judge shall transmit forthwith to the clerk of the district court all papers in the proceeding. The magistrate judge shall promptly make or cause to be made a record or summary of such proceeding.

(1) On timely application to a federal magistrate judge, the attorney for a defendant in a criminal case may be given the opportunity to have the recording of the hearing on preliminary examination made available to that attorney in connection with any further hearing or preparation for trial. The court may, by local rule, appoint the place for and define the conditions under which such opportunity may be afforded counsel.

(e) Hearing and Finding. At the preliminary hearing, the defendant may cross-examine adverse witnesses and may introduce evidence but may not object to evidence on the ground that it was unlawfully acquired. If the magistrate judge finds probable cause to believe an offense has been committed and the defendant committed it, the magistrate judge must promptly require the defendant to appear for further proceedings.

(f) Discharging the Defendant. If the magistrate judge finds no probable cause to believe an offense has been committed or the defendant committed it, the magistrate judge must dismiss the complaint and discharge the defendant. A discharge does not preclude the government from later prosecuting the defendant for the same offense.

(g) Recording the Proceedings. The preliminary hearing must be recorded by a court reporter or by a suitable recording device. A recording of the proceeding may be made available to any party upon request. A copy of the recording and a transcript may be provided to any party upon request and upon any payment required by applicable Judicial Conference regulations.

(2) On application of a defendant addressed to the court or any judge thereof, an order may issue that the federal magistrate judge make available a copy of the transcript, or of a portion thereof, to defense counsel. Such order shall provide for prepayment of costs of such transcript by the defendant unless the defendant makes a sufficient affidavit that the defendant is unable to pay or to give security therefor, in which case the expense shall be paid by the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts from available appropriated funds. Counsel for the government may move also that a copy of the transcript, in whole or in part, be made available to it, for good cause shown, and an order may be entered granting such motion in whole or in part, on appropriate terms, except that the government need not prepay costs nor furnish security therefor.

(d) Production of Statements.

- (1) In General. Rule 26.2(a)-(d) and (f) applies at any hearing under this rule, unless the court, for good cause shown, rules otherwise in a particular case.
- (2) Sanctions for Failure to Produce Statement. If a party elects not to comply with an order under Rule 26.2(a) to deliver a statement to the moving party, the court may not consider the testimony of a witness whose statement is withheld.

(h) Producing a Statement.

- (1) In General. Rule 26.2(a)-(d) and (f) applies at any hearing under this rule, unless the magistrate judge for good cause rules otherwise in a particular case.
- (2) Sanctions for Not Producing a Statement. If a party disobeys a Rule 26.2 order to deliver a statement to the moving party, the magistrate judge must not consider the testimony of a witness whose statement is withheld.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 5.1 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic, except as noted below.

First, the title of the rule has been changed. Although the underlying statute, 18 U.S.C. § 3060, uses the phrase preliminary examination, the Committee believes that the phrase preliminary hearing is more accurate. What happens at this proceeding is more than just an examination; it includes an evidentiary hearing, argument, and a judicial ruling. Further, the phrase preliminary hearing predominates in actual usage.

Rule 5.1(a) is composed of the first sentence of the second paragraph of current Rule 5(c). Rule 5.1(b) addresses the ability of a defendant to elect where a preliminary hearing will be held. That provision is taken from current Rule 40(a).

Rules 5.1(c) and (d) include material currently located in Rule 5(c): scheduling and extending the time limits for the hearing. The Committee is aware that in most districts, magistrate judges perform these functions. That point is also reflected in the definition of "court" in Rule 1(b), which in turn recognizes that magistrate judges may be authorized to act.

Rule 5.1(e), addressing the issue of probable cause, contains the language currently located in Rule 5.1(a), with the exception of the sentence, "The finding of probable cause may be based upon hearsay evidence in whole or in part." That language was included in the original promulgation of the rule in 1972. Similar language was added to Rule 41 in 1972 and to Rule 4 in 1974. In the original Committee Note, the Advisory Committee explained that the language was included to make it clear that a finding of probable cause may be based upon hearsay, noting that there had been some uncertainty in the federal system about the propriety of relying upon hearsay at the preliminary examination. See Advisory Committee Note to Rule 5.1 (citing cases and commentary). Federal law is now clear on that proposition. Thus, the Committee believed that the reference to hearsay was no longer necessary. Further, the Committee believed that the matter was best addressed in Rule 1101(d)(3), Federal Rules of Evidence. That rule explicitly states that the Federal Rules of Evidence do not apply to "preliminary examinations in criminal cases, . . . issuance of warrants for arrest, criminal summonses, and search warrants." The Advisory Committee Note accompanying that rule recognizes that: "The nature of the proceedings makes application of the formal rules of evidence inappropriate and impracticable." The Committee did not intend to make any substantive changes in practice by deleting the reference to hearsay evidence.

Rule 5.1(f), which deals with the discharge of a defendant, consists of former Rule 5.1(b).

Rule 5.1(g) is a revised version of the material in current Rule 5.1(c). Instead of including detailed information in the rule itself concerning records of preliminary hearings, the Committee opted simply to direct the reader to the applicable Judicial Conference regulations governing records. The Committee did not intend to make any substantive changes in the way in which those records are currently made available.

Finally, although the rule speaks in terms of initial appearances being conducted before a magistrate judge, Rule 1(c) makes clear that a district judge may perform any function in these rules that a magistrate judge may perform.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication is to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 5.1 was one of those rules. In revising Rule 5.1, the Committee decided to also propose a significant substantive change that would permit a United States Magistrate Judge to grant a continuance for a preliminary hearing conducted under the rule even if the defendant has not consented to such a continuance. That version is presented in what has been referred to as the "substantive" package.

III. INDICTMENT AND INFORMATION	TITLE III. THE GRAND JURY, THE INDICTMENT, AND THE INFORMATION
Rule 6. The Grand Jury	Rule 6. The Grand Jury
(a) Summoning Grand Juries. (1) Generally. The court shall order one or more grand juries to be summoned at such time as the public interest requires. The grand jury shall consist of not less than 16 nor more than 23 members. The court shall direct that a sufficient number of legally qualified persons be summoned to meet this requirement. (2) Alternate Jurors. The court may direct that alternate jurors may be designated at the time a grand jury is selected. Alternate jurors in the order in which they were designated may thereafter be impanelled as provided in subdivision (g) of this rule. Alternate jurors shall be drawn in the same manner and shall have the same qualifications as the regular jurors, and if impanelled shall be subject to the same challenges, shall take the same oath and shall have the same functions, powers, facilities and privileges as the regular jurors.	(a) Summoning a Grand Jury. (1) In General. When the public interest so requires, the court must order that one or more grand juries be summoned. A grand jury must have 16 to 23 members, and the court must order that enough legally qualified persons be summoned to meet this requirement. (2) Alternate Jurors. When a grand jury is selected, the court may also select alternate jurors. Alternate jurors must have the same qualifications and be selected in the same manner as any other juror. Alternate jurors replace jurors in the same sequence in which the alternates were selected. An alternate juror who replaces a juror is subject to the same challenges, takes the same oath, and has the same authority as the other jurors.
(b) Objections to Grand Jury and to Grand Jurors. (1) Challenges. The attorney for the government or a defendant who has been held to answer in the district court may challenge the array of jurors on the ground that the grand jury was not selected, drawn or summoned in accordance with law, and may challenge an individual juror on the ground that the juror is not legally qualified. Challenges shall be made before the administration of the oath to the jurors and shall be tried by the court. (2) Motion to Dismiss. A motion to dismiss the indictment may be based on objections to the array or on the lack of legal qualification of an individual juror, if not previously determined upon challenge. It shall be made in the manner prescribed in 28 U.S.C. § 1867(e) and shall be granted under the conditions prescribed in that statute. An indictment shall not be dismissed on the ground that one or more members of the grand jury were not legally qualified if it appears from the record kept pursuant to subdivision (c) of this rule that 12 or more jurors, after deducting the number not legally qualified, concurred in finding the indictment.	(b) Objection to the Grand Jury or to a Grand Juror. (1) Challenges. Either the government or a defendant may challenge the grand jury on the ground that it was not lawfully drawn, summoned, or selected, and may challenge an individual juror on the ground that the juror is not legally qualified. (2) Motion to Dismiss an Indictment. A party may move to dismiss the indictment based on an objection to the grand jury or on an individual juror's lack of legal qualification, unless the court has previously ruled on the same objection under Rule 6(b)(1). The motion to dismiss is governed by 28 U.S.C. § 1867(e). The court must not dismiss the indictment on the ground that a grand juror was not legally qualified if the record shows that at least 12 qualified jurors concurred in the indictment.

(c) Foreperson and Deputy Foreperson. The court shall appoint one of the jurors to be foreperson and another to be deputy foreperson. The foreperson shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations and shall sign all indictments. The foreperson or another juror designated by the foreperson shall keep record of the number of jurors concurring in the finding of every indictment and shall file the record with the clerk of the court, but the record shall not be made public except on order of the court. During the absence of the foreperson, the deputy foreperson shall act as foreperson.

(c) Foreperson and Deputy Foreperson. The court will appoint one juror as the foreperson and another as the deputy foreperson. In the foreperson's absence, the deputy foreperson will act as the foreperson. The foreperson may administer oaths and affirmations and will sign all indictments. The foreperson — or another juror designated by the foreperson — will record the number of jurors concurring in every indictment and will file the record with the clerk, but the record may not be made public unless the court so orders.

(d) Who May Be Present.

(1) While Grand Jury is in Session. Attorneys for the government, the witness under examination, interpreters when needed and, for the purpose of taking the evidence, a stenographer or operator of a recording device may be present while the grand jury is in session.

(2) During Deliberations and Voting. No person other than the jurors, and any interpreter necessary to assist a juror who is hearing or speech impaired, may be present while the grand jury is deliberating or voting.

(d) Who May Be Present.

(1) While the Grand Jury Is in Session. The following persons may be present while the grand jury is in session: attorneys for the government, the witness being questioned, interpreters when needed, and a court reporter or an operator of a recording device.

(2) During Deliberations and Voting. No person other than the jurors, and any interpreter needed to assist a hearing-impaired or speech-impaired juror, may be present while the grand jury is deliberating or voting.

(e) Recording and Disclosure of Proceedings.

(1) Recording of Proceedings. All proceedings, except when the grand jury is deliberating or voting, shall be recorded stenographically or by an electronic recording device. An unintentional failure of any recording to reproduce all or any portion of a proceeding shall not affect the validity of the prosecution. The recording or reporter's notes or any transcript prepared therefrom shall remain in the custody or control of the attorney for the government unless otherwise ordered by the court in a particular case.

(2) General Rule of Secrecy. A grand juror, an interpreter, a stenographer, an operator of a recording device, a typist who transcribes recorded testimony, an attorney for the government, or any person to whom disclosure is made under paragraph (3)(A)(ii) of this subdivision shall not disclose matters occurring before the grand jury, except as otherwise provided for in these rules. No obligation of secrecy may be imposed on any person except in accordance with this rule. A knowing violation of Rule 6 may be punished as a contempt of court.

(e) Recording and Disclosing the Proceedings.

(1) Recording the Proceedings. Except while the grand jury is deliberating or voting, all proceedings must be recorded by a court reporter or by a suitable recording device. But the validity of a prosecution is not affected by the unintentional failure to make a recording. Unless the court orders otherwise, an attorney for the government will retain control of the recording, the reporter's notes, and any transcript prepared from those notes.

(2) Secrecy.

(A) No obligation of secrecy may be imposed on any person except in accordance with Rule 6(e)(2)(B).

(B) Unless these rules provide otherwise, the following persons must not disclose a matter occurring before the grand jury:

- (i) a grand juror;
- (ii) an interpreter;
- (iii) a court reporter;
- (iv) an operator of a recording device;
- (v) a person who transcribes recorded testimony;
- (vi) an attorney for the government; or
- (vii) a person to whom disclosure is made under Rule 6(e)(3)(A)(ii) or (iii).

(3) Exceptions.

(A) Disclosure otherwise prohibited by this rule of matters occurring before the grand jury, other than its deliberations and the vote of any grand juror, may be made to—

- (i) an attorney for the government for use in the performance of such attorney's duty; and
- (ii) such government personnel (including personnel of a state or subdivision of a state) as are deemed necessary by an attorney for the government to assist an attorney for the government in the performance of such attorney's duty to enforce federal criminal law.

(B) Any person to whom matters are disclosed under subparagraph (A)(ii) of this paragraph shall not utilize that grand jury material for any purpose other than assisting the attorney for the government in the performance of such attorney's duty to enforce federal criminal law. An attorney for the government shall promptly provide the district court, before which was impaneled the grand jury whose material has been so disclosed, with the names of the persons to whom such disclosure has been made, and shall certify that the attorney has advised such persons of their obligation of secrecy under this rule.

(3) Exceptions.

(A) Disclosure of a grand-jury matter — other than the grand jury's deliberations or any grand juror's vote — may be made to:

- (i) an attorney for the government for use in performing that attorney's duty;
- (ii) any government personnel — including those of a state or state subdivision or of an Indian tribe — that an attorney for the government considers necessary to assist in performing that attorney's duty to enforce federal criminal law; or
- (iii) a person authorized by 18 U.S.C. § 3322.

(B) A person to whom information is disclosed under Rule 6(e)(3)(A)(ii) may use that information only to assist an attorney for the government in performing that attorney's duty to enforce federal criminal law. An attorney for the government must promptly provide the court that impaneled the grand jury with the names of all persons to whom a disclosure has been made, and must certify that the attorney has advised those persons of their obligation of secrecy under this rule.

(C) Disclosure otherwise prohibited by this rule of matters occurring before the grand jury may also be made—

(i) when so directed by a court preliminarily to or in connection with a judicial proceeding;

(ii) when permitted by a court at the request of the defendant, upon a showing that grounds may exist for a motion to dismiss the indictment because of matters occurring before the grand jury;

(iii) when the disclosure is made by an attorney for the government to another federal grand jury; or

(iv) when permitted by a court at the request of an attorney for the government, upon a showing that such matters may disclose a violation of state criminal law, to an appropriate official of a state or subdivision of a state for the purpose of enforcing such law.

If the court orders disclosure of matters occurring before the grand jury, the disclosure shall be made in such manner, at such time, and under such conditions as the court may direct.

(C) An attorney for the government may disclose any grand-jury matter to another federal grand jury.

(D) The court may authorize disclosure — at a time, in a manner, and subject to any other conditions that it directs — of a grand-jury matter:

(i) preliminarily to or in connection with a judicial proceeding;

(ii) at the request of a defendant who shows that a ground may exist to dismiss the indictment because of a matter that occurred before the grand jury;

(iii) at the request of the government if it shows that the matter may disclose a violation of state or Indian tribal criminal law, as long as the disclosure is to an appropriate state, state-subdivision, or Indian tribal official for the purpose of enforcing that law; or

(iv) at the request of the government if it shows that the matter may disclose a violation of military criminal law under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, as long as the disclosure is to an appropriate military official for the purpose of enforcing that law.

(D) A petition for disclosure pursuant to subdivision (e)(3)(C)(i) shall be filed in the district where the grand jury convened. Unless the hearing is ex parte, which it may be when the petitioner is the government, the petitioner shall serve written notice of the petition upon (i) the attorney for the government, (ii) the parties to the judicial proceeding if disclosure is sought in connection with such a proceeding, and (iii) such other persons as the court may direct. The court shall afford those persons a reasonable opportunity to appear and be heard.

(E) A petition to disclose a grand-jury matter under Rule 6(e)(3)(D)(i) must be filed in the district where the grand jury convened. Unless the hearing is ex parte — as it may be when the government is the petitioner — the petitioner must serve the petition on, and the court must afford a reasonable opportunity to appear and be heard to:

- (i) an attorney for the government;
- (ii) the parties to the judicial proceeding; and
- (iii) any other person whom the court may designate.

(E) If the judicial proceeding giving rise to the petition is in a federal district court in another district, the court shall transfer the matter to that court unless it can reasonably obtain sufficient knowledge of the proceeding to determine whether disclosure is proper. The court shall order transmitted to the court to which the matter is transferred the material sought to be disclosed, if feasible, and a written evaluation of the need for continued grand jury secrecy. The court to which the matter is transferred shall afford the aforementioned persons a reasonable opportunity to appear and be heard.

(F) If the petition to disclose arises out of a judicial proceeding in another district, the petitioned court must transfer the petition to the other court unless the petitioned court can reasonably determine whether disclosure is proper. If the petitioned court decides to transfer, it must send to the transferee court the material sought to be disclosed, if feasible, and a written evaluation of the need for continued grand-jury secrecy. The transferee court must afford those persons identified in Rule 6(e)(3)(E) a reasonable opportunity to appear and be heard.

(4) Sealed Indictments. The federal magistrate judge to whom an indictment is returned may direct that the indictment be kept secret until the defendant is in custody or has been released pending trial. Thereupon the clerk shall seal the indictment and no person shall disclose the return of the indictment except when necessary for the issuance and execution of a warrant or summons.

(5) Closed Hearing. Subject to any right to an open hearing in contempt proceedings, the court shall order a hearing on matters affecting a grand jury proceeding to be closed to the extent necessary to prevent disclosure of matters occurring before a grand jury.

(6) Sealed Records. Records, orders and subpoenas relating to grand jury proceedings shall be kept under seal to the extent and for such time as is necessary to prevent disclosure of matters occurring before a grand jury.

(4) Sealed Indictment. The magistrate judge to whom an indictment is returned may direct that the indictment be kept secret until the defendant is in custody or has been released pending trial. The clerk must then seal the indictment, and no person may disclose the indictment's existence except as necessary to issue or execute a warrant or summons.

(5) Closed Hearing. Subject to any right to an open hearing in a contempt proceeding, the court must close any hearing to the extent necessary to prevent disclosure of a matter occurring before a grand jury.

(6) Sealed Records. Records, orders, and subpoenas relating to grand-jury proceedings must be kept under seal to the extent and as long as necessary to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of a matter occurring before a grand jury.

(7) Contempt. A knowing violation of Rule 6 may be punished as a contempt of court.

(f) Finding and Return of Indictment. A grand jury may indict only upon the concurrence of 12 or more jurors. The indictment shall be returned by the grand jury, or through the foreperson or deputy foreperson on its behalf, to a federal magistrate judge in open court. If a complaint or information is pending against the defendant and 12 persons do not vote to indict, the foreperson shall so report to a federal magistrate judge in writing as soon as possible.

(g) Discharge and Excuse. A grand jury shall serve until discharged by the court, but no grand jury may serve more than 18 months unless the court extends the service of the grand jury for a period of six months or less upon a determination that such extension is in the public interest. At any time for cause shown the court may excuse a juror either temporarily or permanently, and in the latter event the court may impanel another person in place of the juror excused.

(f) Indictment and Return. A grand jury may indict only if at least 12 jurors concur. The grand jury — or its foreperson or deputy foreperson — must return the indictment to a magistrate judge in open court. If a complaint or information is pending against the defendant and 12 jurors do not concur in the indictment, the foreperson must promptly and in writing report the lack of concurrence to the magistrate judge.

(g) Discharging the Grand Jury. A grand jury must serve until the court discharges it, but it may serve more than 18 months only if the court, having determined that an extension is in the public interest, extends the grand jury's service. An extension may be granted for no more than 6 months, except as otherwise provided by statute.

(h) Excusing a Juror. At any time, for good cause, the court may excuse a juror either temporarily or permanently, and if permanently, the court may impanel an alternate juror in place of the excused juror.

(i) "Indian Tribe" Defined. "Indian tribe" means an Indian tribe recognized by the Secretary of the Interior on a list published in the Federal Register under 25 U.S.C. § 479a-1.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 6 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic, except as noted below.

The first change is in Rule 6(b)(1). The last sentence of current Rule 6(b)(1) provides that "Challenges shall be made before the administration of the oath to the jurors and shall be tried by the court." That language has been deleted from the amended rule. The remainder of this subdivision rests on the assumption that formal proceedings have begun against a person, i.e., an indictment has been returned. The Committee believed that although the first sentence reflects current practice of a defendant being able to challenge the composition or qualifications of the grand jurors after the indictment is returned, the second sentence does not comport with modern practice. That is, a defendant will normally not know the composition of the grand jury or identity of the grand jurors before they are administered their oath. Thus, there is no opportunity to challenge them and have the court decide the issue before the oath is given.

In Rule 6(d)(1), the term "court stenographer" has been changed to "court reporter." Similar changes have been made in Rule 6(e)(1) and (2).

Rule 6(e) continues to spell out the general rule of secrecy of grand-jury proceedings and the exceptions to that general rule. The last sentence in current Rule 6(e)(2), concerning contempt for violating Rule 6, now appears in Rule 6(e)(7). No change in substance is intended.

Rule 6(e)(3)(A)(ii) includes a new provision recognizing the sovereignty of Indian Tribes and the possibility that it would be necessary to disclose grand-jury information to appropriate tribal officials in order to enforce federal law. Similar language has been added to Rule 6(e)(3)(D)(iii).

Rule 6(e)(3)(A)(iii) is a new provision that recognizes that disclosure may be made to a person under 18 U.S.C. § 3322 (authorizing disclosures to an attorney for the government and banking regulators for enforcing civil forfeiture and civil banking laws). This reference was added to avoid the possibility of the amendments to Rule 6 superseding that particular statute.

Rule 6(e)(3)(C) consists of language located in current Rule 6(e)(3)(C)(iii). The Committee believed that this provision, which recognizes that prior court approval is not required for disclosure of a grand-jury matter to another grand jury, should be treated as a separate subdivision in revised Rule 6(e)(3). No change in practice is intended.

Rule 6(e)(3)(D)(iv) is a new provision that addresses disclosure of grand-jury information to armed forces personnel where the disclosure is for the purpose of enforcing military criminal law under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, 10 U.S.C. §§ 801-946. See, e.g., Department of Defense Directive 5525.7 (January 22, 1985); 1984 Memorandum of Understanding Between Department of Justice and the Department of Defense Relating to the Investigation and Prosecution of Certain Crimes; Memorandum of Understanding Between the Departments of Justice and Transportation (Coast Guard) Relating to the Investigations and Prosecution of Crimes Over Which the Two Departments Have Concurrent Jurisdiction (October 9, 1967).

In Rule 6(e)(3)(E)(ii), the Committee considered whether to amend the language relating to "parties to the judicial proceeding" and determined that in the context of the rule it is understood that the parties referred to are the parties in the same judicial proceeding identified in Rule 6(e)(3)(D)(i).

The Committee decided to leave in subdivision (e) the provision stating that a "knowing violation of Rule 6" may be punished by contempt notwithstanding that, due to its apparent application to the entirety of the Rule, the provision seemingly is misplaced in subdivision (e). Research shows that Congress added the provision in 1977 and that it was crafted solely to deal with violations of the secrecy prohibitions in subdivision (e). See S. Rep. No. 95-354, p. 8 (1977). Supporting this narrow construction, the Committee found no reported decision involving an application or attempted use of the contempt sanction to a violation other than of the disclosure restrictions in subdivision (e). On the other hand, the Supreme Court in dicta did indicate on one occasion its arguable understanding that the contempt sanction would be available also for a violation of Rule 6(d) relating to who may be present during the grand jury's deliberations. Bank of Nova Scotia v. United States, 487 U.S. 250, 263 (1988).

In sum, it appears that the scope of the contempt sanction in Rule 6 is unsettled. Because the provision creates an offense, altering its scope may be beyond the authority bestowed by the Rules Enabling Act, 28 U.S.C. §§ 2071 et seq. See 28 U.S.C. § 2072(b) (Rules must not "abridge, enlarge, or modify any substantive right"). The Committee decided to leave the contempt provision in its present location in subdivision (e), because breaking it out into a separate subdivision could be construed to support the interpretation that the sanction may be applied to a knowing violation of any of the Rule's provisions rather than just those in subdivision (e). Whether or not that is a correct interpretation of the provision — a matter on which the Committee takes no position — must be determined by case law, or resolved by Congress.

Current Rule 6(g) has been divided into two new subdivisions, Rule 6(g), Discharge, and Rule 6(h), Excuse. The Committee added the phrase in Rule 6(g) "except as otherwise provided by statute," to recognize the provisions of 18 U.S.C. § 3331 relating to special grand juries.

Rule 6(i) is a new provision defining the term "Indian Tribe," a term used only in this rule.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 7 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic.

The Committee has deleted the references to "hard labor" in the rule. This punishment is not found in current federal statutes.

The Committee added an exception for criminal contempt to the requirement in Rule 7(a)(1) that a prosecution for felony must be initiated by indictment. This is consistent with case law, e.g., United States v. Eichhorst, 544 F.2d 1383 (7th Cir. 1976), which has sustained the use of the special procedures for instituting criminal contempt proceedings found in Rule 42. While indictment is not a required method of bringing felony criminal contempt charges, however, it is a permissible one. See United States v. Williams, 622 F.2d 830 (5th Cir. 1980). No change in practice is intended.

The title of Rule 7(c)(3) has been amended. The Committee believed that potential confusion could arise with the use of the term "harmless error." Rule 52, which deals with the issues of harmless error and plain error, is sufficient to address the topic. Potentially, the topic of harmless error could arise with regard to any of the other rules and there is insufficient need to highlight the term in Rule 7. Rule 7(c)(3), on the other hand, focuses specifically on the effect of an error in the citation of authority in the indictment. That material remains but without any reference to harmless error.

Rule 8. Joinder of Offenses and of Defendants	Rule 8. Joinder of Offenses or Defendants
(a) Joinder of Offenses. Two or more offenses may be charged in the same indictment or information in a separate count for each offense if the offenses charged, whether felonies or misdemeanors or both, are of the same or similar character or are based on the same act or transaction or on two or more acts or transactions connected together or constituting parts of a common scheme or plan.	(a) Joinder of Offenses. (b) Joinder of Defendants. Two or more defendants may be charged in the same indictment or information if they are alleged to have participated in the same act or transaction or in the same series of acts or transactions constituting an offense or offenses. Such defendants may be charged in one or more counts together or separately and all of the defendants need not be charged in each count.	(b) Joinder of Defendants. The language of Rule 8 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 9. Warrant or Summons Upon Indictment or Information	Rule 9. Arrest Warrant or Summons on an Indictment or Information
(a) Issuance. Upon the request of the attorney for government the court shall issue a warrant for each defendant named in an information supported by a showing of probable cause under oath as is required by Rule 4(a), or in an indictment. Upon the request of the attorney for the government a summons instead of a warrant shall issue. If no request is made, the court may issue either a warrant or a summons in its discretion. More than one warrant or summons may issue for the same defendant. The clerk shall deliver the warrant or summons to the marshal or other person authorized by law to execute or serve it. If a defendant fails to appear in response to the summons, a warrant shall issue. When a defendant arrested with a warrant or given a summons appears initially before a magistrate judge, the magistrate judge shall proceed in accordance with the applicable subdivisions of Rule 5.	(a) Issuance. The court must issue a warrant — or at the government’s request, a summons — for each defendant named in an indictment or named in an information if one or more affidavits accompanying the information establish probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed and that the defendant committed it. The court may issue more than one warrant or summons for the same defendant. If a defendant fails to appear in response to a summons, the court may, and upon request of an attorney for the government must, issue a warrant. The court must issue the arrest warrant to an officer authorized to execute it or the summons to a person authorized to serve it.
(b) Form. (1) Warrant. The form of the warrant shall be as provided in Rule 4(c)(1) except that it shall be signed by the clerk, it shall describe the offense charged in the indictment or information and it shall command that the defendant be arrested and brought before the nearest available magistrate judge. The amount of bail may be fixed by the court and endorsed on the warrant. (2) Summons. COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 9 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Rule 9 has been changed to reflect its relationship to Rule 4 procedures for obtaining an arrest warrant or summons. Thus, rather than simply repeating material that is already located in Rule 4, the Committee determined that where appropriate, Rule 9 should simply direct the reader to the procedures specified in Rule 4.

Rule 9(a) has been amended to permit a judge discretion whether to issue an arrest warrant when a defendant fails to respond to a summons on a complaint. Under the current language of the rule, if the defendant fails to appear, the judge must issue a warrant. Under the amended version, if the defendant fails to appear and the government requests that a warrant be issued, the judge must issue one. In the absence of such a request, the judge has the discretion whether to do so. This change mirrors language in amended Rule 4(a).

A second amendment has been made in Rule 9(b)(1). The rule has been amended to delete language permitting the court to set the amount of bail on the warrant. The Committee believes that this language is inconsistent with the 1984 Bail Reform Act. See United States v. Thomas, 992 F. Supp. 782 (D.V.I. 1998) (bail amount endorsed on warrant that has not been determined in proceedings conducted under Bail Reform Act has no bearing on decision by judge conducting Rule 40 hearing).

The language in current Rule 9(c)(1), concerning service of a summons on an organization, has been moved to Rule 4.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication was to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 10 was one of those rules. Another version of Rule 10, which includes several significant changes, was published simultaneously in a separate pamphlet. That version includes a proposed amendment that would permit a defendant to waive altogether an appearance at the arraignment and another amendment that would permit use of video teleconferencing for arraignments.

Rule 11. Pleas	Rule 11. Pleas
(a) Alternatives. (1) In General. A defendant may plead guilty, not guilty, or nolo contendere. If a defendant refuses to plead, or if a defendant organization, as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 18, fails to appear, the court shall enter a plea of not guilty. (2) Conditional Pleas. With the approval of the court and the consent of the government, a defendant may enter a conditional plea of guilty or nolo contendere, reserving in writing the right, on appeal from the judgment, to review of the adverse determination of any specified pretrial motion. A defendant who prevails on appeal shall be allowed to withdraw the plea.	(a) Entering a Plea. (1) In General. A defendant may plead not guilty, guilty, or (with the court's consent) nolo contendere. (2) Conditional Plea. With the consent of the court and the government, a defendant may enter a conditional plea of guilty or nolo contendere, reserving in writing the right to have an appellate court review an adverse determination of a specified pretrial motion. A defendant who prevails on appeal may then withdraw the plea.

(c) Advice to Defendant. Before accepting a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, the court must address the defendant personally in open court and inform the defendant of, and determine that the defendant understands, the following:

(1) the nature of the charge to which the plea is offered, the mandatory minimum penalty provided by law, if any, and the maximum possible penalty provided by law, including the effect of any special parole or supervised release term, the fact that the court is required to consider any applicable sentencing guidelines but may depart from those guidelines under some circumstances, and, when applicable, that the court may also order the defendant to make restitution to any victim of the offense; and

(2) if the defendant is not represented by an attorney, that the defendant has the right to be represented by an attorney at every stage of the proceeding, and, if necessary, one will be appointed to represent the defendant; and

(3) that the defendant has the right to plead not guilty or to persist in that plea if it has already been made, the right to be tried by a jury and at that trial the right to the assistance of counsel, the right to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses, and the right against compelled self-incrimination; and

(4) that if a plea of guilty or nolo contendere is accepted by the court there will not be a further trial of any kind, so that by pleading guilty or nolo contendere the defendant waives the right to a trial; and

(5) if the court intends to question the defendant under oath, on the record, and in the presence of counsel about the offense to which the defendant has pleaded, that the defendant's answers may later be used against the defendant in a prosecution for perjury or false statement; and

(b) Considering and Accepting a Guilty or Nolo Contendere Plea.

(1) Advising and Questioning the Defendant.

Before the court accepts a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, the defendant may be placed under oath, and the court must address the defendant personally in open court. During this address, the court must inform the defendant of, and determine that the defendant understands, the following:

(A) the government's right, in a prosecution for perjury or false statement, to use against the defendant any statement that the defendant gives under oath;

(B) the right to plead not guilty, or having already so pleaded, to persist in that plea;

(C) the right to a jury trial;

(D) the right to be represented by counsel — and if necessary have the court appoint counsel — at trial and at every other stage of the proceeding;

(E) the right at trial to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses, to be protected from compelled self-incrimination, to testify and present evidence, and to compel the attendance of witnesses;

(F) the defendant's waiver of these trial rights if the court accepts a plea of guilty or nolo contendere;

(G) the nature of each charge to which the defendant is pleading;

(6) the terms of any provision in a plea agreement waiving the right to appeal or to collaterally attack the sentence.

- (H) any maximum possible penalty, including imprisonment, fine, and term of supervised release;
- (I) any mandatory minimum penalty;
- (J) any applicable forfeiture;
- (K) the court's authority to order restitution;
- (L) the court's obligation to impose a special assessment;
- (M) the court's obligation to apply the Sentencing Guidelines, and the court's discretion to depart from those guidelines under some circumstances; and
- (N) the terms of any plea-agreement provision waiving the right to appeal or to collaterally attack the sentence.

(d) Insuring That the Plea is Voluntary. The court shall not accept a plea of guilty or nolo contendere without first, by addressing the defendant personally in open court, determining that the plea is voluntary and not the result of force or threats or of promises apart from a plea agreement. The court shall also inquire as to whether the defendant's willingness to plead guilty or nolo contendere results from prior discussions between the attorney for the government and the defendant or the defendant's attorney.

- (2) Ensuring That a Plea Is Voluntary. Before accepting a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, the court must address the defendant personally in open court and determine that the plea is voluntary and did not result from force, threats, or promises (other than promises in a plea agreement).
- (3) Determining the Factual Basis for a Plea. Before entering judgment on a guilty plea, the court must determine that there is a factual basis for the plea.

(e) Plea Agreement Procedure.

(1) In General. The attorney for the government and the attorney for the defendant — or the defendant when acting pro se — may agree that, upon the defendant's entering a plea of guilty or nolo contendere to a charged offense, or to a lesser or related offense, the attorney for the government will:

(A) move to dismiss other charges; or

(B) recommend, or agree not to oppose the defendant's request for a particular sentence or sentencing range, or that a particular provision of the Sentencing Guidelines, or policy statement, or sentencing factor is or is not applicable to the case. Any such recommendation or request is not binding on the court; or

(C) agree that a specific sentence or sentencing range is the appropriate disposition of the case, or that a particular provision of the Sentencing Guidelines, or policy statement, or sentencing factor is or is not applicable to the case. Such a plea agreement is binding on the court once it is accepted by the court.

The court shall not participate in any discussions between the parties concerning any such plea agreement.

(c) Plea Agreement Procedure.

(1) In General. An attorney for the government and the defendant's attorney, or the defendant when proceeding pro se, may discuss and reach a plea agreement. The court must not participate in these discussions. If the defendant pleads guilty or nolo contendere to either a charged offense or a lesser or related offense, the plea agreement may specify that an attorney for the government will:

(A) not bring, or will move to dismiss, other charges;

(B) recommend, or agree not to oppose the defendant's request, that a particular sentence or sentencing range is appropriate or that a particular provision of the Sentencing Guidelines, or policy statement, or sentencing factor does or does not apply (such a recommendation or request does not bind the court); or

(C) agree that a specific sentence or sentencing range is the appropriate disposition of the case, or that a particular provision of the Sentencing Guidelines, or policy statement, or sentencing factor does or does not apply (such a recommendation or request binds the court once the court accepts the plea agreement).

(2) Notice of Such Agreement. If a plea agreement has been reached by the parties, the court shall, on the record, require the disclosure of the agreement in open court or, upon a showing of good cause, in camera, at the time the plea is offered. If the agreement is of the type specified in subdivision (e)(1)(A) or (C), the court may accept or reject the agreement, or may defer its decision as to the acceptance or rejection until there has been an opportunity to consider the presentence report. If the agreement is of the type specified in subdivision (e)(1)(B), the court shall advise the defendant that if the court does not accept the recommendation or request the defendant nevertheless has no right to withdraw the plea.

(2) Disclosing a Plea Agreement. The parties must disclose the plea agreement in open court when the plea is offered, unless the court for good cause allows the parties to disclose the plea agreement in camera.

(3) Acceptance of a Plea Agreement. If the court accepts the plea agreement, the court shall inform the defendant that it will embody in the judgment and sentence the disposition provided for in the plea agreement.

(3) Judicial Consideration of a Plea Agreement.

- (A) To the extent the plea agreement is of the type specified in Rule 11(c)(1)(A) or (C), the court may accept the agreement, reject it, or defer a decision until the court has reviewed the presentence report.
- (B) To the extent the plea agreement is of the type specified in Rule 11(c)(1)(B), the court must advise the defendant that the defendant has no right to withdraw the plea if the court does not follow the recommendation or request.

(4) Accepting a Plea Agreement. If the court accepts the plea agreement, it must inform the defendant that to the extent the plea agreement is of the type specified in Rule 11(c)(1)(A) or (C), the agreed disposition will be included in the judgment.

(4) Rejection of a Plea Agreement. If the court rejects the plea agreement, the court shall, on the record, inform the parties of this fact, advise the defendant personally in open court or, on a showing of good cause, in camera, that the court is not bound by the plea agreement, afford the defendant the opportunity to then withdraw the plea, and advise the defendant that if the defendant persists in a guilty plea or plea of nolo contendere the disposition of the case may be less favorable to the defendant than that contemplated by the plea agreement.

(5) Rejecting a Plea Agreement. If the court rejects a plea agreement containing provisions of the type specified in Rule 11(c)(1)(A) or (C), the court must do the following on the record and in open court (or, for good cause, in camera):

- (A) inform the parties that the court rejects the plea agreement;
- (B) advise the defendant personally that the court is not required to follow the plea agreement and give the defendant an opportunity to withdraw the plea; and
- (C) advise the defendant personally that if the plea is not withdrawn, the court may dispose of the case less favorably toward the defendant than the plea agreement contemplated.

(5) Time of Plea Agreement Procedure. Except for good cause shown, notification to the court of the existence of a plea agreement shall be given at the arraignment or at such other time, prior to trial, as may be fixed by the court.

(d) Withdrawing a Guilty or Nolo Contendere Plea. A defendant may withdraw a plea of guilty or nolo contendere:

- (1) before the court accepts the plea, for any reason or no reason; or
- (2) after the court accepts the plea, but before it imposes sentence if:
 - (A) the court rejects a plea agreement under Rule 11(c)(5); or
 - (B) the defendant can show a fair and just reason for requesting the withdrawal.

(e) Finality of a Guilty or Nolo Contendere Plea. After the court imposes sentence, the defendant may not withdraw a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, and the plea may be set aside only on direct appeal or collateral attack.

(6) Inadmissibility of Pleas, Plea Discussions, and Related Statements. Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, evidence of the following is not, in any civil or criminal proceeding, admissible against the defendant who made the plea or was a participant in the plea discussions:

- (A) a plea of guilty which was later withdrawn;
- (B) a plea of nolo contendere;
- (C) any statement made in the course of any proceedings under this rule regarding either of the foregoing pleas; or
- (D) any statement made in the course of plea discussions with an attorney for the government which do not result in a plea of guilty or which result in a plea of guilty later withdrawn.

(f) Admissibility or Inadmissibility of a Plea, Plea Discussions, and Related Statements. The admissibility or inadmissibility of a plea, a plea discussion, and any related statement is governed by Federal Rule of Evidence 410.

However, such a statement is admissible (i) in any proceeding wherein another statement made in the course of the same plea or plea discussions has been introduced and the statement ought in fairness be considered contemporaneously with it, or (ii) in a criminal proceeding for perjury or false statement if the statement was made by the defendant under oath, on the record, and in the presence of counsel.

(f) Determining Accuracy of Plea. Notwithstanding the acceptance of a plea of guilty, the court should not enter a judgment upon such plea without making such inquiry as shall satisfy it that there is a factual basis for the plea.
(g) Record of Proceedings. A verbatim record of the proceedings at which the defendant enters a plea shall be made and, if there is a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, the record shall include, without limitation, the court's advice to the defendant, the inquiry into the voluntariness of the plea including any plea agreement, and the inquiry into the accuracy of a guilty plea.	(g) Recording the Proceedings. The proceedings during which the defendant enters a plea must be recorded by a court reporter or by a suitable recording device. If there is a guilty plea or a nolo contendere plea, the record must include the inquiries and advice to the defendant required under Rule 11(b) and (c).
(h) Harmless Error. Any variance from the procedures required by this rule which does not affect substantial rights shall be disregarded.	(h) Harmless Error. A variance from the requirements of this rule is harmless error if it does not affect substantial rights.

The language of Rule 11 has been amended and reorganized as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Amended Rule 11(b)(1) requires the court to apprise the defendant of his or her rights before accepting a plea of guilty or nolo contendere. The Committee determined to expand upon the incomplete listing in the current rule of the elements of the "maximum possible penalty" and any "mandatory minimum" penalty to include advice as to the maximum or minimum term of imprisonment, forfeiture, fine, and special assessment, in addition to the two types of maximum and minimum penalties presently enumerated: restitution and supervised release. The outmoded reference to a term of "special parole" has been eliminated.

Amended Rule 11(b)(2), formerly Rule 11(d), covers the issue of determining that the plea is voluntary, and not the result of force, threats, or promises (other than those in a plea agreement). The reference to an inquiry in current Rule 11(d) whether the plea has resulted from plea discussions with the government has been deleted. That reference, which was often a source of confusion to defendants who were clearly pleading guilty as part of a plea agreement with the government, was considered unnecessary.

Rule 11(c)(1)(A) includes a change, which recognizes a common type of plea agreement — that the government will "not bring" other charges.

The Committee considered whether to address the practice in some courts of using judges to facilitate plea agreements. The current rule states that "the court shall not participate in any discussions between the parties concerning such plea agreement." Some courts apparently believe that that language acts as a limitation only upon the judge taking the defendant's plea and thus permits other judges to serve as facilitators for reaching a plea agreement between the government and the defendant. See, e.g., United States v. Torres, 999 F.2d 376, 378 (9th Cir. 1993) (noting practice and concluding that presiding judge had not participated in a plea agreement that had resulted from discussions involving another judge). The Committee decided to leave the Rule as it is with the understanding that doing so was in no way intended either to approve or disapprove the existing law interpreting that provision.

Amended Rules 11(c)(3) to (5) address the topics of consideration, acceptance, and rejection of a plea agreement. The amendments are not intended to make any change in practice. The topics are discussed separately because in the past there has been some question about the possible interplay between the court's consideration of the guilty plea in conjunction with a plea agreement and sentencing and the ability of the defendant to withdraw a plea. See United States v. Hyde, 520 U.S. 670 (1997) (holding that plea and plea agreement need not be accepted or rejected as a single unit; "guilty pleas can be accepted while plea agreements are deferred, and the acceptance of the two can be separated in time."). Similarly, the Committee decided to more clearly spell out in Rule 11(d) and 11(e) the ability of the defendant to withdraw a plea. See United States v. Hyde, supra.

Amended Rule 11(e) is a new provision, taken from current Rule 32(e), that addresses the finality of a guilty or nolo contendere plea after the court imposes sentence. The provision makes it clear that it is not possible for a defendant to withdraw a plea after sentence is imposed.

The reference to a "motion under 28 U.S.C. § 2255" has been changed to the broader term "collateral attack" to recognize that in some instances a court may grant collateral relief under provisions other than § 2255. See United States v. Jeffers, 234 F.3d 277 (5th Cir. 2000) (petition under § 2241 may be appropriate where remedy under § 2255 is ineffective or inadequate).

Currently, Rule 11(e)(5) requires that unless good cause is shown, the parties are to give pretrial notice to the court that a plea agreement exists. That provision has been deleted. First, the Committee believed that although the provision was originally drafted to assist judges, under current practice few counsel would risk the consequences in the ordinary case of not informing the court that an agreement exists. Secondly, the Committee was concerned that there might be rare cases where the parties might agree that informing the court of the existence of an agreement might endanger a defendant or compromise an on-going investigation in a related case. In the end, the Committee believed that, on balance, it would be preferable to remove the provision and reduce the risk of pretrial disclosure.

Finally, revised Rule 11(f), which addresses the issue of admissibility or inadmissibility of pleas and statements made during the plea inquiry, cross references Federal Rule of Evidence 410.

Rule 12. Pleadings and Motions Before Trial; Defenses and Objections.	Rule 12. Pleadings and Pretrial Motions
(a) Pleadings and Motions. Pleadings in criminal proceedings shall be the indictment and the information, and the pleas of not guilty, guilty and nolo contendere. All other pleas, and demurrers and motions to quash are abolished, and defenses and objections raised before trial which heretofore could have been raised by one or more of them shall be raised only by motion to dismiss or to grant appropriate relief, as provided in these rules.	(a) Pleadings. The pleadings in a criminal proceeding are the indictment, the information, and the pleas of not guilty, guilty, and nolo contendere.
(b) Pretrial Motions. Any defense, objection, or request which is capable of determination without the trial of the general issue may be raised before trial by motion. Motions may be written or oral at the discretion of the judge. The following must be raised prior to trial: (1) Defenses and objections based on defects in the institution of the prosecution; or (2) Defenses and objections based on defects in the indictment or information (other than that it fails to show jurisdiction in the court or to charge an offense which objections shall be noticed by the court at any time during the pendency of the proceedings); or (3) Motions to suppress evidence; or (4) Requests for discovery under Rule 16; or (5) Requests for a severance of charges or defendants under Rule 14.	(b) Pretrial Motions. (1) In General. Rule 47 applies to a pretrial motion. (2) Motions That May Be Made Before Trial. A party may raise by pretrial motion any defense, objection, or request that the court can determine without a trial of the general issue. (3) Motions That Must Be Made Before Trial. The following must be raised before trial: (A) a motion alleging a defect in instituting the prosecution; (B) a motion alleging a defect in the indictment or information — but at any time while the case is pending, the court may hear a claim that the indictment or information fails to invoke the court's jurisdiction or to state an offense; (C) a motion to suppress evidence; (D) a Rule 14 motion to sever charges or defendants; and (E) a Rule 16 motion for discovery.

	(4) Notice of the Government's Intent to Use Evidence. (A) At the Government's Discretion. At the arraignment or as soon afterward as practicable, the government may notify the defendant of its intent to use specified evidence at trial in order to afford the defendant an opportunity to object before trial under Rule 12(b)(3)(C). (B) At the Defendant's Request. At the arraignment or as soon afterward as practicable, the defendant may, in order to have an opportunity to move to suppress evidence under Rule 12(b)(3)(C), request notice of the government's intent to use (in its evidence-in-chief at trial) any evidence that the defendant may be entitled to discover under Rule 16.
(c) Motion Date. Unless otherwise provided by local rule, the court may, at the time of the arraignment or as soon thereafter as practicable, set a time for the making of pretrial motions or requests and, if required, a later date of hearing.	(c) Motion Deadline. The court may, at the arraignment or as soon afterward as practicable, set a deadline for the parties to make pretrial motions and may also schedule a motion hearing.
(d) Notice by the Government of the Intention to Use Evidence. (1) At the Discretion of the Government. At the arraignment or as soon thereafter as is practicable, the government may give notice to the defendant of its intention to use specified evidence at trial in order to afford the defendant an opportunity to raise objections to such evidence prior to trial under subdivision (b)(3) of this rule. (2) At the Request of the Defendant. At the arraignment or as soon thereafter as is practicable the defendant may, in order to afford an opportunity to move to suppress evidence under subdivision (b)(3) of this rule, request notice of the government's intention to use (in its evidence in chief at trial) any evidence which the defendant may be entitled to discover under Rule 16 subject to any relevant limitations prescribed in Rule 16.

(e) Ruling on Motion. A motion made before trial shall be determined before trial unless the court, for good cause, orders that it be deferred for determination at the trial of the general issue or until after verdict, but no such determination shall be deferred if a party's right to appeal is adversely affected. Where factual issues are involved in determining a motion, the court shall state its essential findings on the record.	(d) Ruling on a Motion. The court must decide every pretrial motion before trial unless it finds good cause to defer a ruling. The court must not defer ruling on a pretrial motion if the deferral will adversely affect a party's right to appeal. When factual issues are involved in deciding a motion, the court must state its essential findings on the record.
(f) Effect of Failure To Raise Defenses or Objections. Failure by a party to raise defenses or objections or to make requests which must be made prior to trial, at the time set by the court pursuant to subdivision (c), or prior to any extension thereof made by the court, shall constitute waiver thereof, but the court for cause shown may grant relief from the waiver.	(e) Waiver of a Defense, Objection, or Request. A party waives any Rule 12(b)(3) defense, objection, or request not raised by the deadline the court sets under Rule 12(c) or by any extension the court provides. For good cause, the court may grant relief from the waiver.
(g) Records. A verbatim record shall be made of all proceedings at the hearing, including such findings of fact and conclusions of law as are made orally.	(f) Recording the Proceedings. All proceedings at a motion hearing, including any findings of fact and conclusions of law made orally by the court, must be recorded by a court reporter or a suitable recording device.
(h) Effect of Determination. If the court grants a motion based on a defect in the institution of the prosecution or in the indictment or information, it may also order that the defendant be continued in custody or that bail be continued for a specified time pending the filing of a new indictment or information. Nothing in this rule shall be deemed to affect the provisions of any Act of Congress relating to periods of limitations.	(g) Defendant's Continued Custody or Release Status. If the court grants a motion to dismiss based on a defect in instituting the prosecution, in the indictment, or in the information, it may order the defendant to be released or detained under 18 U.S.C. § 3142 for a specified time until a new indictment or information is filed. This rule does not affect any federal statutory period of limitations.
(i) Production of Statements at Suppression Hearing. Rule 26.2 applies at a hearing on a motion to suppress evidence under subdivision (b)(3) of this rule. For purposes of this subdivision, a law enforcement officer is deemed a government witness.	(h) Producing Statements at a Suppression Hearing. Rule 26.2 applies at a suppression hearing under Rule 12(b)(3)(C). At a suppression hearing, a law enforcement officer is considered a government witness.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 12 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

The last sentence of current Rule 12(a), referring to the elimination of "all other pleas, and demurrers and motions to quash" has been deleted as unnecessary.

Rule 12(b) is modified to more clearly indicate that Rule 47 governs any pretrial motions filed under Rule 12, including form and content. The new provision also more clearly delineates those motions that must be filed pretrial and those that may be filed pretrial. No change in practice is intended.

Rule 12(b)(4) is composed of what is currently Rule 12(d). The Committee believed that that provision, which addresses the government's requirement to disclose discoverable information for the purpose of facilitating timely defense objections and motions, was more appropriately associated with the pretrial motions specified in Rule 12(b)(3).

Rule 12(c) includes a non-stylistic change. The reference to the "local rule" exception has been deleted to make it clear that judges should be encouraged to set deadlines for motions. The Committee believed that doing so promotes more efficient case management, especially when there is a heavy docket of pending cases. Although the rule permits some discretion in setting a date for motion hearings, the Committee believed that doing so at an early point in the proceedings would also promote judicial economy.

Moving the language in current Rule 12(d) caused the relettering of the subdivisions following Rule 12(c).

Although amended Rule 12(e) is a revised version of current Rule 12(f), the Committee intends to make no change in the current law regarding waivers of motions or defenses.

Rule 12.1. Notice of Alibi	Rule 12.1. Notice of an Alibi Defense
(a) Notice by Defendant. Upon written demand of the attorney for the government stating the time, date, and place at which the alleged offense was committed, the defendant shall serve within ten days, or at such different time as the court may direct, upon the attorney for the government a written notice of the defendant's intention to offer a defense of alibi. Such notice by the defendant shall state the specific place or places at which the defendant claims to have been at the time of the alleged offense and the names and addresses of the witnesses upon whom the defendant intends to rely to establish such alibi.	(a) Government's Request for Notice and Defendant's Response. (1) Government's Request. The attorney for the government may request in writing that the defendant notify an attorney for the government of any intended alibi defense. The request must state the time, date, and place of the alleged offense. (2) Defendant's Response. Within 10 days after the request, or at some other time the court sets, the defendant must serve written notice on an attorney for the government of any intended alibi defense. The defendant's notice must state: (A) each specific place where the defendant claims to have been at the time of the alleged offense; and (B) the name, address, and telephone number of each alibi witness on whom the defendant intends to rely.
(b) Disclosure of Information and Witness. Within ten days thereafter, but in no event less than ten days before trial, unless the court otherwise directs, the attorney for the government shall serve upon the defendant or the defendant's attorney a written notice stating the names and addresses of the witnesses upon whom the government intends to rely to establish the defendant's presence at the scene of the alleged offense and any other witnesses to be relied upon to rebut testimony of any of the defendant's alibi witnesses.	(b) Disclosing Government Witnesses. (1) Disclosure. If the defendant serves a Rule 12.1(a)(2) notice, an attorney for the government must disclose in writing to the defendant or the defendant's attorney: (A) the name, address, and telephone number of each witness the government intends to rely on to establish the defendant's presence at the scene of the alleged offense; and (B) each government rebuttal witness to the defendant's alibi defense. (2) Time to Disclose. Unless the court directs otherwise, an attorney for the government must give its Rule 12.1(b)(1) disclosure within 10 days after the defendant serves notice of an intended alibi defense under Rule 12.1(a)(2), but no later than 10 days before trial.

(c) Continuing Duty to Disclose. If prior to or during trial, a party learns of an additional witness whose identity, if known, should have been included in the information furnished under subdivision (a) or (b), the party shall promptly notify the other party or the other party's attorney of the existence and identity of such additional witness.	(c) Continuing Duty to Disclose. Both an attorney for the government and the defendant must promptly disclose in writing to the other party the name, address, and telephone number of each additional witness if: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) the disclosing party learns of the witness before or during trial; and (2) the witness should have been disclosed under Rule 12.1(a) or (b) if the disclosing party had known of the witness earlier.
(d) Failure to Comply. Upon failure of either party to comply with the requirements of this rule, the court may exclude the testimony of any undisclosed witness offered by such party as to the defendant's absence from or presence at the scene of the alleged offense. This rule shall not limit the right of the defendant to testify.	(d) Exceptions. For good cause, the court may grant an exception to any requirement of Rule 12.1(a)-(c).
(e) Exceptions. For good cause shown, the court may grant an exception to any of the requirements of subdivisions (a) through (d) of this rule.	(e) Failure to Comply. If a party fails to comply with this rule, the court may exclude the testimony of any undisclosed witness regarding the defendant's alibi. This rule does not limit the defendant's right to testify.
(f) Inadmissibility of Withdrawn Alibi. Evidence of an intention to rely upon an alibi defense, later withdrawn, or of statements made in connections with such intention, is not, in any civil or criminal proceeding, admissible against the person who gave notice of the intention.	(f) Inadmissibility of Withdrawn Intent. Evidence of an intent to rely on an alibi defense, later withdrawn, or of a statement made in connection with that intent, is not, in any civil or criminal proceeding, admissible against the person who gave notice of the intent.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 12.1 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Current Rules 12.1(d) and 12.1(e) have been switched in the amended rule to improve the organization of the rule.

Finally, the amended rule includes a new requirement that in providing the names and addresses of alibi and any rebuttal witnesses, the parties must also provide the phone numbers of those witnesses. See Rule 12.1(a)(2), Rule 12.1(b)(1), and Rule 12.1(c). The Committee believed that requiring such information would facilitate locating and interviewing those witnesses.

Rule 12.2. Notice of Insanity Defense or Expert Testimony of Defendant's Mental Condition	Rule 12.2. Notice of an Insanity Defense; Mental Examination
(a) Defense of Insanity. If a defendant intends to rely upon the defense of insanity at the time of the alleged offense, the defendant shall, within the time provided for the filing of pretrial motions or at such later time as the court may direct, notify the attorney for the government in writing of such intention and file a copy of such notice with the clerk. If there is a failure to comply with the requirements of this subdivision, insanity may not be raised as a defense. The court may for cause shown allow late filing of the notice or grant additional time to the parties to prepare for trial or make such other order as may be appropriate.	(a) Notice of an Insanity Defense. A defendant who intends to assert a defense of insanity at the time of the alleged offense must so notify an attorney for the government in writing within the time provided for filing a pretrial motion, or at any later time the court sets. A defendant who fails to do so cannot rely on an insanity defense. The court may, for good cause, allow the defendant to file the notice late, grant additional trial-preparation time, or make other appropriate orders.
(b) Expert Testimony of Defendant's Mental Condition. If a defendant intends to introduce expert testimony relating to a mental disease or defect or any other mental condition of the defendant bearing upon the issue of guilt, the defendant shall, within the time provided for the filing of pretrial motions or at such later time as the court may direct, notify the attorney for the government in writing of such intention and file a copy of such notice with the clerk. If a defendant intends to introduce expert evidence relating to a mental disease or defect or any other mental condition of the defendant bearing on the issue of guilt, the defendant must — within the time provided for filing a pretrial motion or at any later time the court sets — notify an attorney for the government in writing of this intention and file a copy of the notice with the clerk. The court may, for good cause, allow the defendant to file the notice late, grant the parties additional trial-preparation time, or make other appropriate orders.
(c) Mental Examination of Defendant. In an appropriate case the court may, upon motion of the attorney for the government, order the defendant to submit to an examination pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 4241 or 4242. No statement made by the defendant in the course of any examination provided for by this rule, whether the examination be with or without the consent of the defendant, no testimony by the expert based upon such statement, and no other fruits of the statement shall be admitted in evidence against the defendant in any criminal proceeding except on an issue respecting mental condition on which the defendant has introduced testimony.	(c) Mental Examination. (1) Authority to Order an Examination; Procedures. No statement made by a defendant in the course of any examination conducted under this rule (whether conducted with or without the defendant's consent), no testimony by the expert based on the statement, and no other fruits of the statement may be admitted into evidence against the defendant in any criminal proceeding except on an issue regarding mental condition on which the defendant has introduced evidence.

(d) Failure to Comply. If there is a failure to give notice when required by subdivision (b) of this rule or to submit to an examination when ordered under subdivision (c) of this rule, the court may exclude the testimony of any expert witness offered by the defendant on the issue of the defendant's guilt.	(d) Failure to Comply. If the defendant fails to give notice under Rule 12.2(b) or does not submit to an examination when ordered under Rule 12.2(c), the court may exclude any expert evidence from the defendant on the issue of the defendant's mental disease, mental defect, or any other mental condition bearing on the defendant's guilt.
(e) Inadmissibility of Withdrawn Intention. Evidence of an intention as to which notice was given under subdivision (a) or (b), later withdrawn, is not, in any civil or criminal proceeding, admissible against the person who gave notice of the intention.	(e) Inadmissibility of Withdrawn Intention. COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 12.2 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication was to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 12.2 was one of those rules. Although this version of Rule 12.2 contains only "style" changes, another version of the rule is included in the "substantive" package. That version of Rule 12.2 includes five significant amendments.

Rule 12.3. Notice of Defense Based upon Public Authority

(a) Notice by Defendant; Government Response; Disclosure of Witnesses.

(1) Defendant's Notice and Government's Response. A defendant intending to claim a defense of actual or believed exercise of public authority on behalf of a law enforcement or Federal intelligence agency at the time of the alleged offense shall, within the time provided for the filing of pretrial motions or at such later time as the court may direct, serve upon the attorney for the Government a written notice of such intention and file a copy of such notice with the clerk. Such notice shall identify the law enforcement or Federal intelligence agency and any member of such agency on behalf of which and the period of time in which the defendant claims the actual or believed exercise of public authority occurred. If the notice identifies a Federal intelligence agency, the copy filed with the clerk shall be under seal. Within ten days after receiving the defendant's notice, but in no event less than twenty days before the trial, the attorney for the Government shall serve upon the defendant or the defendant's attorney a written response which shall admit or deny that the defendant exercised the public authority identified in the defendant's notice.

Rule 12.3. Notice of a Public-Authority Defense

(a) Notice of the Defense and Disclosure of Witnesses.

- (1) Notice in General. If a defendant intends to assert a defense of actual or believed exercise of public authority on behalf of a law enforcement agency or federal intelligence agency at the time of the alleged offense, the defendant must so notify an attorney for the government in writing and must file a copy of the notice with the clerk within the time provided for filing a pretrial motion, or at any later time the court sets. The notice filed with the clerk must be under seal if the notice identifies a federal intelligence agency as the source of public authority.
- (2) Contents of Notice. The notice must contain the following information:
- (A) the law enforcement agency or federal intelligence agency involved;
 - (B) the agency member on whose behalf the defendant claims to have acted; and
 - (C) the time during which the defendant claims to have acted with public authority.
- (3) Response to the Notice. An attorney for the government must serve a written response on the defendant or the defendant's attorney within 10 days after receiving the defendant's notice, but no later than 20 days before trial. The response must admit or deny that the defendant exercised the public authority identified in the defendant's notice.

(2) Disclosure of Witnesses. At the time that the Government serves its response to the notice or thereafter, but in no event less than twenty days before trial, the attorney for the Government may serve upon the defendant or the defendant's attorney a written demand for the names and addresses of the witnesses, if any, upon whom the defendant intends to rely in establishing the defense identified in the notice. Within seven days after receiving the Government's demand, the defendant shall serve upon the attorney for the Government a written statement of the names and addresses of any such witnesses. Within seven days after receiving the defendant's written statement, the attorney for the Government shall serve upon the defendant or the defendant's attorney a written statement of the names and addresses of the witnesses, if any, upon whom the Government intends to rely in opposing the defense identified in the notice.

(4) Disclosing Witnesses.

- (A) Government's Request. An attorney for the government may request in writing that the defendant disclose the name, address, and telephone number of each witness the defendant intends to rely on to establish a public-authority defense. The attorney for the government may serve the request when the government serves its response to the defendant's notice under Rule 12.3(a)(3), or later, but must serve the request no later than 20 days before trial.
- (B) Defendant's Response. Within 7 days after receiving the government's request, the defendant must serve on an attorney for the government a written statement of the name, address, and telephone number of each witness.
- (C) Government's Reply. Within 7 days after receiving the defendant's statement, an attorney for the government must serve on the defendant or the defendant's attorney a written statement of the name, address, and telephone number of each witness the government intends to rely on to oppose the defendant's public-authority defense.

(3) Additional Time. If good cause is shown, the court may allow a party additional time to comply with any obligation imposed by this rule.

(5) Additional Time. The court may, for good cause, allow a party additional time to comply with this rule.

(b) Continuing Duty to Disclose. If, prior to or during trial, a party learns of any additional witness whose identity, if known, should have been included in the written statement furnished under subdivision (a)(2) of this rule, that party shall promptly notify in writing the other party or the other party's attorney of the name and address of any such witness.

- (b) Continuing Duty to Disclose. Both an attorney for the government and the defendant must promptly disclose in writing to the other party the name, address, and telephone number of any additional witness if:
- (1) the disclosing party learns of the witness before or during trial; and
 - (2) the witness should have been disclosed under Rule 12.3(a)(4) if the disclosing party had known of the witness earlier.

(c) Failure to Comply. If a party fails to comply with the requirements of this rule, the court may exclude the testimony of any undisclosed witness offered in support of or in opposition to the defense, or enter such other order as it deems just under the circumstances. This rule shall not limit the right of the defendant to testify.	(c) Failure to Comply. If a party fails to comply with this rule, the court may exclude the testimony of any undisclosed witness regarding the public-authority defense. This rule does not limit the defendant's right to testify.
(d) Protective Procedures Unaffected. This rule shall be in addition to and shall not supersede the authority of the court to issue appropriate protective orders, or the authority of the court to order that any pleading be filed under seal.	(d) Protective Procedures Unaffected. This rule does not limit the court's authority to issue appropriate protective orders or to order that any filings be under seal.
(e) Inadmissibility of Withdrawn Defense Based upon Public Authority. Evidence of an intention as to which notice was given under subdivision (a), later withdrawn, is not, in any civil or criminal proceeding, admissible against the person who gave notice of the intention.	(e) Inadmissibility of Withdrawn Intention. Evidence of an intention as to which notice was given under Rule 12.3(a), later withdrawn, is not, in any civil or criminal proceeding, admissible against the person who gave notice of the intention.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 12.3 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

The Committee considered the issue whether (as currently provided in Rule 12.3) a defendant could invoke the defense of public authority on either an actual or believed exercise of public authority. The Committee ultimately decided that any attempt to provide the defendant with a "right" to assert the defense was not a matter within the purview of the Committee under the Rules Enabling Act. The Committee decided to retain the current language, which recognizes, as a nonsubstantive matter, that if the defendant intends to raise the defense, notice must be given. Thus, the Committee decided not to make any changes in the current rule regarding the availability of the defense.

Substantive changes have been made in Rule 12.3(a)(4) and 12.3(b). As in Rule 12.1, the Committee decided to include in the restyled rule the requirement that the parties provide the telephone numbers of any witnesses disclosed under the rule.

Rule 13. Trial Together of Indictments or Informations	Rule 13. Joint Trial of Separate Cases
The court may order two or more indictments or informations or both to be tried together if the offenses, and the defendants if there is more than one, could have been joined in a single indictment or information. The procedure shall be the same as if the prosecution were under such single indictment or information.	The court may order that separate cases be tried together as though brought in a single indictment or information if all offenses and all defendants could have been joined in a single indictment or information.

COMMITTEE NOTE

Rule 14. Relief from Prejudicial Joinder	Rule 14. Relief from Prejudicial Joinder
If it appears that a defendant or the government is prejudiced by a joinder of offenses or of defendants in an indictment or information or by such joinder for trial together, the court may order an election or separate trials of counts, grant a severance of defendants or provide whatever other relief justice requires. In ruling on a motion by a defendant for severance the court may order the attorney for the government to deliver to the court for inspection in camera any statements or confessions made by the defendants which the government intends to introduce in evidence at the trial.	(a) Relief. If the joinder of offenses or defendants in an indictment, an information, or a consolidation for trial appears to prejudice a defendant or the government, the court may order separate trials of counts, sever the defendants' trials, or provide any other relief that justice requires. (b) Defendant's Statements. Before ruling on a defendant's motion to sever, the court may order an attorney for the government to deliver to the court for in camera inspection any defendant's statement that the government intends to use as evidence.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 14 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

The reference to a defendant's "confession" in the last sentence of the current rule has been deleted. The Committee believed that the reference to the "defendant's statements" in the amended rule would fairly embrace any confessions or admissions by a defendant.

Rule 15. Depositions

(a) When Taken. Whenever due to exceptional circumstances of the case it is in the interest of justice that the testimony of a prospective witness of a party be taken and preserved for use at trial, the court may upon motion of such party and notice to the parties order that testimony of such witness be taken by deposition and that any designated book, paper, document, record, recording, or other material not privileged, be produced at the same time and place. If a witness is detained pursuant to section 3144 of title 18, United States Code, the court on written motion of the witness and upon notice to the parties may direct that the witness' deposition be taken. After the deposition has been subscribed the court may discharge the witness.

(b) Notice of Taking. The party at whose instance a deposition is to be taken shall give to every party reasonable written notice of the time and place for taking the deposition. The notice shall state the name and address of each person to be examined. On motion of a party upon whom the notice is served, the court for cause shown may extend or shorten the time or change the place for taking the deposition.

Rule 15. Depositions

(a) When Taken.

- (1) In General. A party may move that a prospective witness be deposed in order to preserve testimony for trial. The court may grant the motion because of exceptional circumstances and in the interest of justice. If the court orders the deposition to be taken, it may also require the deponent to produce at the deposition any designated material that is not privileged, including any book, paper, document, record, recording, or data.
- (2) Detained Material Witness. A witness who is detained under 18 U.S.C. § 3144 may request to be deposed by filing a written motion and giving notice to the parties. The court may then order that the deposition be taken and may discharge the witness after the witness has signed under oath the deposition transcript.

(b) Notice.

- (1) In General. A party seeking to take a deposition must give every other party reasonable written notice of the deposition's date and location. The notice must state the name and address of each deponent. If requested by a party receiving the notice, the court may, for good cause, change the deposition's date or location.
- (2) To the Custodial Officer. A party seeking to take the deposition must also notify the officer who has custody of the defendant of the scheduled date and location.

The officer having custody of a defendant shall be notified of the time and place set for the examination and shall, unless the defendant waives in writing the right to be present, produce the defendant at the examination and keep the defendant in the presence of the witness during the examination, unless, after being warned by the court that disruptive conduct will cause the defendant's removal from the place of the taking of the deposition, the defendant persists in conduct which is such as to justify exclusion from that place. A defendant not in custody shall have the right to be present at the examination upon request subject to such terms as may be fixed by the court, but a failure, absent good cause shown, to appear after notice and tender of expenses in accordance with subdivision (c) of this rule shall constitute a waiver of that right and of any objection to the taking and use of the deposition based upon that right.

(c) Defendant's Presence.

- (1) Defendant in Custody. The officer who has custody of the defendant must produce the defendant at the deposition and keep the defendant in the witness's presence during the examination, unless the defendant:
 - (A) waives in writing the right to be present; or
 - (B) persists in disruptive conduct justifying exclusion after being warned by the court that disruptive conduct will result in the defendant's exclusion.
- (2) Defendant Not in Custody. A defendant who is not in custody has the right upon request to be present at the deposition, subject to any conditions imposed by the court. If the government tenders the defendant's expenses as provided in Rule 15(d) but the defendant still fails to appear, the defendant — absent good cause — waives both the right to appear and any objection to the taking and use of the deposition based on that right.

(c) Payment of Expenses. Whenever a deposition is taken at the instance of the government, or whenever a deposition is taken at the instance of a defendant who is unable to bear the expenses of the taking of the deposition, the court may direct that the expense of travel and subsistence of the defendant and the defendant's attorney for attendance at the examination and the cost of the transcript of the deposition shall be paid by the government.

(d) Expenses. If the deposition was requested by the government, the court may — or if the defendant is unable to bear the deposition expenses, the court must — order the government to pay:

- (1) any reasonable travel and subsistence expenses of the defendant and the defendant's attorney to attend the deposition, and
- (2) the costs of the deposition transcript.

(d) How Taken. Subject to such additional conditions as the court shall provide, a deposition shall be taken and filed in the manner provided in civil actions except as otherwise provided in these rules, provided that (1) in no event shall a deposition be taken of a party defendant without that defendant's consent, and (2) the scope and manner of examination and cross-examination shall be such as would be allowed in the trial itself. The government shall make available to the defendant or the defendant's counsel for examination and use at the taking of the deposition any statement of the witness being deposed which is in the possession of the government and to which the defendant would be entitled at the trial.	(e) Manner of Taking. Unless these rules or a court order provides otherwise, a deposition must be taken and filed in the same manner as a deposition in a civil action, except that: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) A defendant may not be deposed without that defendant's consent. (2) The scope and manner of the deposition examination and cross-examination must be the same as would be allowed during trial. (3) The government must provide to the defendant or the defendant's attorney, for use at the deposition, any statement of the deponent in the government's possession to which the defendant would be entitled at trial.
(e) Use. At the trial or upon any hearing, a part or all of a deposition, so far as otherwise admissible under the rules of evidence, may be used as substantive evidence if the witness is unavailable, as unavailability is defined in Rule 804(a) of the Federal Rules of Evidence, or the witness gives testimony at the trial or hearing inconsistent with that witness' deposition. Any deposition may also be used by any party for the purpose of contradicting or impeaching the testimony of the deponent as a witness. If only a part of a deposition is offered in evidence by a party, an adverse party may require the offering of all of it which is relevant to the part offered and any party may offer other parts.	(f) Use as Evidence. A party may use all or part of a deposition as provided by the Federal Rules of Evidence.
(f) Objections to Deposition Testimony. Objections to deposition testimony or evidence or parts thereof and the grounds for the objection shall be stated at the time of the taking of the deposition.	(g) Objections. A party objecting to deposition testimony or evidence must state the grounds for the objection during the deposition.
(g) Deposition by Agreement Not Precluded. Nothing in this rule shall preclude the taking of a deposition, orally or upon written questions, or the use of a deposition, by agreement of the parties with the consent of the court.	(h) Depositions by Agreement Permitted. The parties may by agreement take and use a deposition with the court's consent.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 15 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

In Rule 15(a), the list of materials to be produced has been amended to include the expansive term "data" to reflect the fact that in an increasingly technological culture, the information may exist in a format not already covered by the more conventional list, such as a book or document.

The last portion of current Rule 15(b), dealing with the defendant's presence at a deposition, has been moved to amended Rule 15(c).

Revised Rule 15(d) addresses the payment of expenses incurred by the defendant and the defendant's attorney. Under the current rule, if the government requests the deposition, or if the defendant requests the deposition and is unable to pay for it, the court may direct the government to pay for travel and subsistence expenses for both the defendant and the defendant's attorney. In either case, the current rule requires the government to pay for the transcript. Under the amended rule, if the government requested the deposition, the court must require the government to pay reasonable subsistence and travel expenses and the cost of the deposition transcript. If the defendant is unable to pay the deposition expenses, the court must order the government to pay reasonable subsistence and travel expenses and the deposition transcript costs — regardless of who requested the deposition. Although the current rule places no apparent limits on the amount of funds that should be reimbursed, the Committee believed that insertion of the word "reasonable" was consistent with current practice.

Rule 15(f) is intended to more clearly reflect that the admissibility of any deposition taken under the rule is governed not by the rule itself, but instead by the Federal Rules of Evidence.

Rule 16. Discovery and Inspection

(a) Governmental Disclosure of Evidence.

(1) Information Subject to Disclosure.

(A) Statement of Defendant. Upon request of a defendant the government must disclose to the defendant and make available for inspection, copying, or photographing: any relevant written or recorded statements made by the defendant, or copies thereof, within the possession, custody, or control of the government, the existence of which is known, or by the exercise of due diligence may become known, to the attorney for the government; that portion of any written record containing the substance of any relevant oral statement made by the defendant whether before or after arrest in response to interrogation by any person then known to the defendant to be a government agent; and recorded testimony of the defendant before a grand jury which relates to the offense charged. The government must also disclose to the defendant the substance of any other relevant oral statement made by the defendant whether before or after arrest in response to interrogation by any person then known by the defendant to be a government agent if the government intends to use that statement at trial. Upon request of a defendant which is an organization such as a corporation, partnership, association, or labor union, the government must disclose to the defendant any of the foregoing statements made by a person who the government contends (1) was, at the time of making the statement, so situated as a director, officer, employee or agent as to have been able legally to bind the defendant in respect to the subject of the statement, or (2) was, at the time of the offense, personally involved in the alleged conduct constituting the offense and so situated as a director, officer, employee, or agent as to have been able legally to bind the defendant in respect to that alleged conduct in which the person was involved.

Rule 16. Discovery and Inspection

(a) Government's Disclosure.

(1) Information Subject to Disclosure.

- (A) Defendant's Oral Statement. Upon a defendant's request, the government must disclose to the defendant the substance of any relevant oral statement made by the defendant, before or after arrest, in response to interrogation by a person the defendant knew was a government agent if the government intends to use the statement at trial.
- (B) Defendant's Written or Recorded Statement. Upon a defendant's request, the government must disclose to the defendant, and make available for inspection, copying, or photographing, all of the following:
- (i) any relevant written or recorded statement by the defendant if:
 - (a) the statement is within the government's possession, custody, or control; and
 - (b) the attorney for the government knows — or through due diligence could know — that the statement exists;
 - (ii) the portion of any written record containing the substance of any relevant oral statement made before or after arrest if the defendant made the statement in response to interrogation by a person the defendant knew was a government agent; and
 - (iii) the defendant's recorded testimony before a grand jury relating to the charged offense.

	(C) Organizational Defendant. Upon a defendant's request, if the defendant is an organization, the government must disclose to the defendant any statement described in Rule 16(a)(1)(A) and (B) if the government contends that the person making the statement:
	(i) was legally able to bind the defendant regarding the subject of the statement because of that person's position as the defendant's director, officer, employee, or agent; or (ii) was personally involved in the alleged conduct constituting the offense and was legally able to bind the defendant regarding that conduct because of that person's position as the defendant's director, officer, employee, or agent.
(B) Defendant's Prior Record. Upon request of the defendant, the government shall furnish to the defendant such copy of the defendant's prior criminal record, if any, as is within the possession, custody, or control of the government, the existence of which is known, or by the exercise of due diligence may become known, to the attorney for the government.	(D) Defendant's Prior Record. Upon a defendant's request, the government must furnish the defendant with a copy of the defendant's prior criminal record that is within the government's possession, custody, or control if the attorney for the government knows — or through due diligence could know — that the record exists.
(C) Documents and Tangible Objects. Upon request of the defendant the government shall permit the defendant to inspect and copy or photograph books, papers, documents, photographs, tangible objects, buildings or places, or copies or portions thereof, which are within the possession, custody or control of the government, and which are material to the preparation of the defendant's defense or are intended for use by the government as evidence in chief at the trial, or were obtained from or belong to the defendant.	(E) Documents and Objects. Upon a defendant's request, the government must permit the defendant to inspect and to copy or photograph books, papers, documents, data, photographs, tangible objects, buildings or places, or copies or portions of any of these items, if the item is within the government's possession, custody, or control and: (i) the item is material to preparing the defense; (ii) the government intends to use the item in its case-in-chief at trial; or (iii) the item was obtained from or belongs to the defendant.

(D) Reports of Examinations and Tests. Upon request of a defendant the government shall permit the defendant to inspect and copy or photograph any results or reports of physical or mental examinations, and of scientific tests or experiments, or copies thereof, which are within the possession, custody, or control of the government, the existence of which is known, or by the exercise of due diligence may become known, to the attorney for the government, and which are material to the preparation of the defense or are intended for use by the government as evidence in chief at the trial.	(F) Reports of Examinations and Tests. Upon a defendant's request, the government must permit a defendant to inspect and to copy or photograph the results or reports of any physical or mental examination and of any scientific test or experiment if: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (i) the item is within the government's possession, custody, or control; (ii) the attorney for the government knows — or through due diligence could know — that the item exists, and (iii) the item is material to preparing the defense or the government intends to use the item in its case-in-chief at trial.
(E) Expert Witnesses. At the defendant's request, the government shall disclose to the defendant a written summary of testimony that the government intends to use under Rules 702, 703, or 705 of the Federal Rules of Evidence during its case in chief at trial. If the government requests discovery under subdivision (b)(1)(C)(ii) of this rule and the defendant complies, the government shall, at the defendant's request, disclose to the defendant a written summary of testimony the government intends to use under Rules 702, 703, or 705 as evidence at trial on the issue of the defendant's mental condition. The summary provided under this subdivision shall describe the witnesses' opinions, the bases and the reasons for those opinions, and the witnesses' qualifications.	(G) Expert Testimony. Upon a defendant's request, the government must give the defendant a written summary of any testimony the government intends to use in its case-in-chief at trial under Federal Rules of Evidence 702, 703, or 705. The summary must describe the witness's opinions, the bases and reasons for those opinions, and the witness's qualifications.
(2) Information Not Subject to Disclosure. Except as provided in paragraphs (A), (B), (D), and (E) of subdivision (a)(1), this rule does not authorize the discovery or inspection of reports, memoranda, or other internal government documents made by the attorney for the government or any other government agent investigating or prosecuting the case. Nor does the rule authorize the discovery or inspection of statements made by government witnesses or prospective government witnesses except as provided in 18 U.S.C. § 3500.	(2) Information Not Subject to Disclosure. Except as Rule 16(a)(1) provides otherwise, this rule does not authorize the discovery or inspection of reports, memoranda, or other internal government documents made by an attorney for the government or other government agent in connection with investigating or prosecuting the case. Nor does this rule authorize the discovery or inspection of statements made by prospective government witnesses except as provided in 18 U.S.C. § 3500.

(3) Grand Jury Transcripts. COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 16 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Current Rule 16(a)(1)(A) is now located in Rule 16(a)(1)(A), (B), and (C). Current Rule 16(a)(1)(B), (C), (D), and (E) have been relettered.

Amended Rule 16(b)(1)(B) includes a change that may be substantive in nature. Rule 16(a)(1)(E) and 16(a)(1)(F) require production of specified information if the government intends to "use" the information "in its case-in-chief at trial." The Committee believed that the language in revised Rule 16(b)(1)(B), which deals with a defendant's disclosure of information to the government, should track the similar language in revised Rule 16(a)(1). In Rule 16(b)(1)(B)(ii), the Committee changed the current provision which reads: "the defendant intends to introduce as evidence" to the "defendant intends to use the item . . ." The Committee recognized that this might constitute a substantive change in the rule but believed that it was a necessary conforming change with the provisions in Rule 16(a)(1)(E) and (F), noted supra, regarding use of evidence by the government.

In amended Rule 16(d)(1), the last phrase in the current subdivision — which refers to a possible appeal of the court's discovery order — has been deleted. In the Committee's view, no substantive change results from that deletion. The language is unnecessary because the court, regardless of whether there is an appeal, will have maintained the record.

Finally, current Rule 16(e), which addresses the topic of notice of alibi witnesses, has been deleted as being unnecessarily duplicative of Rule 12.1.

Rule 17. Subpoena	Rule 17. Subpoena
(a) For Attendance of Witnesses; Form; Issuance. A subpoena shall be issued by the clerk under the seal of the court. It shall state the name of the court and the title, if any, of the proceeding, and shall command each person to whom it is directed to attend and give testimony at the time and place specified therein. The clerk shall issue a subpoena, signed and sealed but otherwise in blank to a party requesting it, who shall fill in the blanks before it is served. A subpoena shall be issued by a United States magistrate judge in a proceeding before that magistrate judge, but it need not be under the seal of the court.	(a) Content. A subpoena must state the court's name and the title of the proceeding, include the seal of the court, and command the witness to attend and testify at the time and place the subpoena specifies. The clerk must issue a blank subpoena — signed and sealed — to the party requesting it, and that party must fill in the blanks before the subpoena is served.
(b) Defendants Unable to Pay. The court shall order at any time that a subpoena be issued for service on a named witness upon an ex parte application of a defendant upon a satisfactory showing that the defendant is financially unable to pay the fees of the witness and that the presence of the witness is necessary to an adequate defense. If the court orders the subpoena to be issued, the costs incurred by the process and the fees of the witness so subpoenaed shall be paid in the same manner in which similar costs and fees are paid in case of a witness subpoenaed in behalf of the government.	(b) Defendant Unable to Pay. Upon a defendant's ex parte application, the court must order that a subpoena be issued for a named witness if the defendant shows an inability to pay the witness's fees and the necessity of the witness's presence for an adequate defense. If the court orders a subpoena to be issued, the process costs and witness fees will be paid in the same manner as those paid for witnesses the government subpoenas.
(c) For Production of Documentary Evidence and of Objects. A subpoena may also command the person to whom it is directed to produce the books, papers, documents or other objects designated therein. The court on motion made promptly may quash or modify the subpoena if compliance would be unreasonable or oppressive. The court may direct that books, papers, documents or objects designated in the subpoena be produced before the court at a time prior to the trial or prior to the time when they are to be offered in evidence and may upon their production permit the books, papers, documents or objects or portions thereof to be inspected by the parties and their attorneys.	(c) Producing Documents and Objects. (1) In General. A subpoena may order the witness to produce any books, papers, documents, data, or other objects the subpoena designates. When the items arrive, the court may permit the parties and their attorneys to inspect all or part of them. (2) Quashing or Modifying the Subpoena. On motion made promptly, the court may quash or modify the subpoena if compliance would be unreasonable or oppressive.

(d) Service. A subpoena may be served by the marshal, by a deputy marshal or by any other person who is not a party and who is not less than 18 years of age. Service of a subpoena shall be made by delivering a copy thereof to the person named and by tendering to that person the fee for 1 day's attendance and the mileage allowed by law. Fees and mileage need not be tendered to the witness upon service of a subpoena issued in behalf of the United States or an officer or agency thereof.	(d) Service. A marshal, a deputy marshal, or any nonparty who is at least 18 years old may serve a subpoena. (h) Information Not Subject to Subpoena. Statements made by witnesses or prospective witnesses may not be subpoenaed from the government or the defendant under this rule, but shall be subject to production only in accordance with the provisions of Rule 26.2.	(h) Information Not Subject to a Subpoena. No party may subpoena a statement of a witness or of a prospective witness under this rule. Rule 26.2 governs the production of the statement.

The language of Rule 17 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

A potential substantive change has been made in Rule 17(c)(1); the word "data" has been added to the list of matters that may be subpoenaed. The Committee believed that inserting that term will reflect the fact that in an increasingly technological culture, the information may exist in a format not already covered by the more conventional list, such as a book or document.

Rule 17(g) has been amended to recognize the contempt powers of a court (other than a magistrate judge) and a magistrate judge.

Rule 17.1. Pretrial Conference	Rule 17.1. Pretrial Conference
At any time after the filing of the indictment or information the court upon motion of any party or upon its own motion may order one or more conferences to consider such matters as will promote a fair and expeditious trial. At the conclusion of a conference the court shall prepare and file a memorandum of the matters agreed upon. No admissions made by the defendant or the defendant's attorney at the conference shall be used against the defendant unless the admissions are reduced to writing and signed by the defendant and the defendant's attorney. This rule shall not be invoked in the case of a defendant who is not represented by counsel.	On its own, or on a party's motion, the court may hold one or more pretrial conferences to promote a fair and expeditious trial. When a conference ends, the court must prepare and file a memorandum of any matters agreed to during the conference. The government may not use any statement made during the conference by the defendant or the defendant's attorney unless it is in writing and is signed by the defendant and the defendant's attorney.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 17.1 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Current Rule 17.1 prohibits the court from holding a pretrial conference where the defendant is not represented by counsel. It is unclear whether this would bar such a conference when the defendant invokes the constitutional right to self-representation. See Faretta v. California, 422 U.S. 806 (1975). The amended version makes clear that a pretrial conference may be held in these circumstances. Moreover, the Committee believed that pretrial conferences might be particularly useful in those cases where the defendant is proceeding pro se.

Rule 20. Transfer From the District for Plea and Sentence	Rule 20. Transfer for Plea and Sentence
(a) Indictment or Information Pending. A defendant arrested, held, or present in a district other than that in which an indictment or information is pending against that defendant may state in writing a wish to plead guilty or nolo contendere, to waive trial in the district in which the indictment or information is pending, and to consent to disposition of the case in the district in which that defendant was arrested, held, or present, subject to the approval of the United States attorney for each district. Upon receipt of the defendant's statement and of the written approval of the United States attorneys, the clerk of the court in which the indictment or information is pending shall transmit the papers in the proceeding or certified copies thereof to the clerk of the court for the district in which the defendant is arrested, held, or present, and the prosecution shall continue in that district.	(a) Consent to Transfer. A prosecution may be transferred from the district where the indictment or information is pending, or from which a warrant on a complaint has been issued, to the district where the defendant is arrested, held, or present if: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) the defendant states in writing a wish to plead guilty or nolo contendere and to waive trial in the district where the indictment, information, or complaint is pending, consents in writing to the court's disposing of the case in the transferee district, and files the statement in the transferee district; and (2) the United States attorneys in both districts approve the transfer in writing. (b) Clerk's Duties. After receiving the defendant's statement and the required approvals, the clerk where the indictment, information, or complaint is pending must send the file, or a certified copy, to the clerk in the transferee district.
(b) Indictment or Information Not Pending. A defendant arrested, held, or present, in a district other than the district in which a complaint is pending against that defendant may state in writing a wish to plead guilty or nolo contendere, to waive venue and trial in the district in which the warrant was issued, and to consent to disposition of the case in the district in which that defendant was arrested, held, or present, subject to the approval of the United States attorney for each district. Upon filing the written waiver of venue in the district in which the defendant is present, the prosecution may proceed as if venue were in such district.
(c) Effect of Not Guilty Plea. If after the proceeding has been transferred pursuant to subdivision (a) or (b) of this rule the defendant pleads not guilty, the clerk shall return the papers to the court in which the prosecution was commenced, and the proceeding shall be restored to the docket of that court. The defendant's statement that the defendant wishes to plead guilty or nolo contendere shall not be used against that defendant.	(c) Effect of a Not Guilty Plea. If the defendant pleads not guilty after the case has been transferred under Rule 20(a), the clerk must return the papers to the court where the prosecution began, and that court must restore the proceeding to its docket. The defendant's statement that the defendant wished to plead guilty or nolo contendere is not, in any civil or criminal proceeding, admissible against the defendant.

(d) Juveniles. A juvenile (as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 5031) who is arrested, held, or present in a district other than that in which the juvenile is alleged to have committed an act in violation of a law of the United States not punishable by death or life imprisonment may, after having been advised by counsel and with the approval of the court and the United States attorney for each district, consent to be proceeded against as a juvenile delinquent in the district in which the juvenile is arrested, held, or present. The consent shall be given in writing before the court but only after the court has apprised the juvenile of the juvenile's rights, including the right to be returned to the district in which the juvenile is alleged to have committed the act, and of the consequences of such consent.

(d) Juveniles.

- (1) Consent to Transfer. A juvenile, as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 5031, may be proceeded against as a juvenile delinquent in the district where the juvenile is arrested, held, or present if:
 - (A) the alleged offense that occurred in the other district is not punishable by death or life imprisonment;
 - (B) an attorney has advised the juvenile;
 - (C) the court has informed the juvenile of the juvenile's rights — including the right to be returned to the district where the offense allegedly occurred — and the consequences of waiving those rights;
 - (D) the juvenile, after receiving the court's information about rights, consents in writing to be proceeded against in the transferee district, and files the consent in the transferee district;
 - (E) the United States attorneys for both districts approve the transfer in writing; and
 - (F) the transferee court approves the transfer.
- (2) Clerk's Duties. After receiving the juvenile's written consent and the required approvals, the clerk where the indictment, information, or complaint is pending or where the alleged offense occurred must send the file, or a certified copy, to the clerk in the transferee district.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 20 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

New Rule 20(d)(2) applies to juvenile cases and has been added to parallel a similar provision in new Rule 20(b). The new provision provides that after the court has determined that the provisions in Rule 20(d)(1) have been completed and the transfer is approved, the file (or certified copy) must be transmitted from the original court to the transferee court.

Rule 21. Transfer From the District for Trial	Rule 21. Transfer for Trial
(a) For Prejudice in the District. The court upon motion of the defendant shall transfer the proceeding as to that defendant to another district whether or not such district is specified in the defendant's motion if the court is satisfied that there exists in the district where the prosecution is pending so great a prejudice against the defendant that the defendant cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial at any place fixed by law for holding court in that district.	(a) For Prejudice. Upon the defendant's motion, the court must transfer the proceeding against that defendant to another district if the court is satisfied that so great a prejudice against the defendant exists in the transferring district that the defendant cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial there.
(b) Transfer in Other Cases. For the convenience of parties and witnesses, and in the interest of justice, the court upon motion of the defendant may transfer the proceeding as to that defendant or any one or more of the counts thereof to another district.	(b) For Convenience. Upon the defendant's motion, the court may transfer the proceeding, or one or more counts, against that defendant to another district for the convenience of the parties and witnesses and in the interest of justice.
(c) Proceedings on Transfer. When a transfer is ordered the clerk shall transmit to the clerk of the court to which the proceeding is transferred all papers in the proceeding or duplicates thereof and any bail taken, and the prosecution shall continue in that district.	(c) Proceedings on Transfer. When the court orders a transfer, the clerk must send to the transferee district the file, or a certified copy, and any bail taken. The prosecution will then continue in the transferee district.
	(d) Time to File a Motion to Transfer. A motion to transfer may be made at or before arraignment or at any other time the court or these rules prescribe.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 21 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Amended Rule 21(d) consists of what was formerly Rule 22. The Committee believed that the substance of Rule 22, which addressed the issue of the timing of motions to transfer, was more appropriate for inclusion in Rule 21.

Rule 22. Time of Motion to Transfer	Rule 22. [Transferred.]
A motion to transfer under these rules may be made at or before arraignment or at such other time as the court or these rules may prescribe.

COMMITTEE NOTE

Rule 22 has been abrogated. The substance of the rule is now located in Rule 21(d).

VI. TRIAL	TITLE VI. TRIAL
Rule 23. Trial by Jury or by the Court	Rule 23. Jury or Nonjury Trial
(a) Trial by Jury. Cases required to be tried by jury shall be so tried unless the defendant waives a jury trial in writing with the approval of the court and the consent of the government.	(a) Jury Trial. If the defendant is entitled to a jury trial, the trial must be by jury unless: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) the defendant waives a jury trial in writing; (2) the government consents; and (3) the court approves.
(b) Jury of Less Than Twelve. Juries shall be of 12 but at any time before verdict the parties may stipulate in writing with the approval of the court that the jury shall consist of any number less than 12 or that a valid verdict may be returned by a jury of less than 12 should the court find it necessary to excuse one or more jurors for any just cause after trial commences. Even absent such stipulation, if the court finds it necessary to excuse a juror for just cause after the jury has retired to consider its verdict, in the discretion of the court a valid verdict may be returned by the remaining 11 jurors.	(b) Jury Size. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) In General. A jury consists of 12 persons unless this rule provides otherwise. (2) Stipulation for a Smaller Jury. At any time before the verdict, the parties may, with the court's approval, stipulate in writing that: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (A) the jury may consist of fewer than 12 persons; or (B) a jury of fewer than 12 persons may return a verdict if the court finds it necessary to excuse a juror for good cause after the trial begins. (3) Court Order for a Jury of 11. After the jury has retired to deliberate, the court may permit a jury of 11 persons to return a verdict, even without a stipulation by the parties, if the court finds good cause to excuse a juror.
(c) Trial Without a Jury. In a case tried without a jury the court shall make a general finding and shall in addition, on request made before the general finding, find the facts specially. Such findings may be oral. If an opinion or memorandum of decision is filed, it will be sufficient if the findings of fact appear therein.	(c) Nonjury Trial. In a case tried without a jury, the court must find the defendant guilty or not guilty. If a party requests before the finding of guilty or not guilty, the court must state its specific findings of fact in open court or in a written decision or opinion.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 23 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

In current Rule 23(b), the term "just cause" has been replaced with the more familiar term "good cause," that appears in other rules. No change in substance is intended.

Rule 24. Trial Jurors	Rule 24. Trial Jurors
(a) Examination. The court may permit the defendant or the defendant's attorney and the attorney for the government to conduct the examination of prospective jurors or may itself conduct the examination. In the latter event the court shall permit the defendant or the defendant's attorney and the attorney for the government to supplement the examination by such further inquiry as it deems proper or shall itself submit to the prospective jurors such additional questions by the parties or their attorneys as it deems proper.	(a) Examination. (1) In General. The court may examine prospective jurors or may permit the attorneys for the parties to do so. (2) Court Examination. If the court examines the jurors, it must permit the attorneys for the parties to: (A) ask further questions that the court considers proper; or (B) submit further questions that the court may ask if it considers them proper.
(b) Peremptory Challenges. If the offense charged is punishable by death, each side is entitled to 20 peremptory challenges. If the offense charged is punishable by imprisonment for more than one year, the government is entitled to 6 peremptory challenges and the defendant or defendants jointly to 10 peremptory challenges. If the offense charged is punishable by imprisonment for not more than one year or by fine or both, each side is entitled to 3 peremptory challenges. If there is more than one defendant, the court may allow the defendants additional peremptory challenges and permit them to be exercised separately or jointly.	(b) Peremptory Challenges. Each side is entitled to the number of peremptory challenges to prospective jurors specified below. The court may allow additional peremptory challenges to multiple defendants, and may allow the defendants to exercise those challenges separately or jointly. (1) Capital Case. Each side has 20 peremptory challenges when the government seeks the death penalty. (2) Other Felony Case. The government has 6 peremptory challenges and the defendant or defendants jointly have 10 peremptory challenges when the defendant is charged with a crime punishable by imprisonment of more than one year. (3) Misdemeanor Case. Each side has 3 peremptory challenges when the defendant is charged with a crime punishable by fine, imprisonment of one year or less, or both.

(c) Alternate Jurors.

(1) In General. The court may empanel no more than 6 jurors, in addition to the regular jury, to sit as alternate jurors. An alternate juror, in the order called, shall replace a juror who becomes or is found to be unable or disqualified to perform juror duties. Alternate jurors shall (i) be drawn in the same manner, (ii) have the same qualifications, (iii) be subject to the same examination and challenges, and (iv) take the same oath as regular jurors. An alternate juror has the same functions, powers, facilities and privileges as a regular juror.

(2) Peremptory Challenges. In addition to challenges otherwise provided by law, each side is entitled to 1 additional peremptory challenge if 1 or 2 alternate jurors are empaneled, 2 additional peremptory challenges if 3 or 4 alternate jurors are empaneled, and 3 additional peremptory challenges if 5 or 6 alternate jurors are empaneled. The additional peremptory challenges may be used to remove an alternate juror only, and the other peremptory challenges allowed by these rules may not be used to remove an alternate juror.

(3) Retention of Alternate Jurors. When the jury retires to consider the verdict, the court in its discretion may retain the alternate jurors during deliberations. If the court decides to retain the alternate jurors, it shall ensure that they do not discuss the case with any other person unless and until they replace a juror during deliberations. If an alternate replaces a regular juror after deliberations have begun, the court shall instruct the jury to begin its deliberations anew.

(c) Alternate Jurors.

(1) In General. The court may impanel up to 6 alternate jurors to replace any jurors who are unable to perform or who are disqualified from performing their duties.

(2) Procedure.

- (A) Alternate jurors must have the same qualifications and be selected and sworn in the same manner as any other juror.
- (B) Alternate jurors replace jurors in the same sequence in which the alternates were selected. An alternate juror who replaces a juror has the same authority as the other jurors.

(3) Retaining Alternate Jurors. The court may retain alternate jurors after the jury retires to deliberate. The court must ensure that a retained alternate does not discuss the case with anyone until that alternate replaces a juror or is discharged. If an alternate replaces a juror after deliberations have begun, the court must instruct the jury to begin its deliberations anew.

(4) Peremptory Challenges. Each side is entitled to the number of additional peremptory challenges to prospective alternate jurors specified below. These additional challenges may be used only to remove alternate jurors.

- (A) One or Two Alternates. One additional peremptory challenge is permitted when one or two alternates are impaneled.
- (B) Three or Four Alternates. Two additional peremptory challenges are permitted when three or four alternates are impaneled.
- (C) Five or Six Alternates. Three additional peremptory challenges are permitted when five or six alternates are impaneled.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 24 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

In restyling Rule 24(a), the Committee deleted the language that authorized the defendant to conduct voir dire of prospective jurors. The Committee believed that the current language was potentially ambiguous and could lead one incorrectly to conclude that a defendant, represented by counsel, could personally conduct voir dire or additional voir dire. The Committee believed that the intent of the current provision was to permit a defendant to participate personally in voir dire only if the defendant was acting pro se. Amended Rule 24(a) refers only to attorneys for the parties, i.e., the defense counsel and the attorney for the government, with the understanding that if the defendant is not represented by counsel, the court may still, in its discretion, permit the defendant to participate in voir dire. In summary, the Committee intends no change in practice.

Finally, the rule authorizes the court in multi-defendant cases to grant additional peremptory challenges to the defendants. If the court does so, the prosecution may request additional challenges in a multi-defendant case, not to exceed the total number available to the defendants jointly. The court, however, is not required to equalize the number of challenges where additional challenges are granted to the defendant.

Rule 25. Judge; Disability	Rule 25. Judge's Disability
(a) During Trial. If by reason of death, sickness or other disability the judge before whom a jury trial has commenced is unable to proceed with the trial, any other judge regularly sitting in or assigned to the court, upon certifying familiarity with the record of the trial, may proceed with and finish the trial.	(a) During Trial. Any judge regularly sitting in or assigned to the court may complete a jury trial if: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) the judge before whom the trial began cannot proceed because of death, sickness, or other disability; and (2) the judge completing the trial certifies familiarity with the trial record.
(b) After Verdict or Finding of Guilt. If by reason of absence, death, sickness or other disability the judge before whom the defendant has been tried is unable to perform the duties to be performed by the court after a verdict or finding of guilt, any other judge regularly sitting in or assigned to the court may perform those duties; but if that judge is satisfied that a judge who did not preside at the trial cannot perform those duties or that it is appropriate for any other reason, that judge may grant a new trial.	(b) After a Verdict or Finding of Guilty. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) In General. After a verdict or finding of guilty, any judge regularly sitting in or assigned to a court may complete the court's duties if the judge who presided at trial cannot perform those duties because of absence, death, sickness, or other disability. (2) Granting a New Trial. The successor judge may grant a new trial if satisfied that: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (A) a judge other than the one who presided at the trial cannot perform the post-trial duties; or (B) a new trial is necessary for some other reason.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 25 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 25(b)(2) addresses the possibility of a new trial when a judge determines that no other judge could perform post-trial duties or when the judge determines that there is some other reason for doing so. The current rule indicates that those reasons must be "appropriate." The Committee, however, believed that a better term would be "necessary," because that term includes notions of manifest necessity. No change in meaning or practice is intended.

Rule 26. Taking of Testimony	Rule 26. Taking Testimony
In all trials the testimony of witnesses shall be taken orally in open court, unless otherwise provided by an Act of Congress, or by these rules, the Federal Rules of Evidence, or other rules adopted by the Supreme Court.	In every trial the testimony of witnesses must be taken in open court, unless otherwise provided by a statute or by rules adopted under 28 U.S.C. §§ 2072-2077.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 26 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Rule 26(a) is amended, by deleting the word “orally,” to accommodate witnesses who are not able to present oral testimony in open court and may need, for example, a sign language interpreter. The change conforms the rule, in that respect, to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 43.

REPORTER’S NOTES

In publishing the “style” changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication is to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 26 was one of those rules. This proposed revision of Rule 26 includes only style changes. Another version of Rule 26, which includes an amendment that would authorize a court to receive testimony from a remote location, is presented in the “substantive” package.

Rule 26.1. Determination of Foreign Law	Rule 26.1. Foreign Law Determination
A party who intends to raise an issue concerning the law of a foreign country shall give reasonable written notice. The court, in determining foreign law, may consider any relevant material or source, including testimony, whether or not submitted by a party or admissible under the Federal Rules of Evidence. The court's determination shall be treated as a ruling on a question of law.	A party intending to raise an issue of foreign law must provide the court and all parties with reasonable written notice. Issues of foreign law are questions of law, but in deciding such issues a court may consider any relevant material or source — including testimony — without regard to the Federal Rules of Evidence.

Rule 26.2. Production of Witness Statements	Rule 26.2. Producing a Witness's Statement
(a) Motion for Production. After a witness other than the defendant has testified on direct examination, the court, on motion of a party who did not call the witness, shall order the attorney for the government or the defendant and the defendant's attorney, as the case may be, to produce, for the examination and use of the moving party, any statement of the witness that is in their possession and that relates to the subject matter concerning which the witness has testified.	(a) Motion to Produce. (c) Production of Excised Statement. If the other party claims that the statement contains privileged information or matter that does not relate to the subject matter concerning which the witness has testified, the court shall order that it be delivered to the court in camera. Upon inspection, the court shall excise the portions of the statement that are privileged or that do not relate to the subject matter concerning which the witness has testified, and shall order that the statement, with such material excised, be delivered to the moving party. Any portion of the statement that is withheld from the defendant over the defendant's objection must be preserved by the attorney for the government, and, if the defendant appeals a conviction, must be made available to the appellate court for the purpose of determining the correctness of the decision to excise the portion of the statement.	(c) Producing a Redacted Statement. If the party who called the witness claims that the statement contains information that is privileged or does not relate to the subject matter of the witness's testimony, the court must inspect the statement in camera. After excising any privileged or unrelated portions, the court must order delivery of the redacted statement to the moving party. If the defendant objects to an excision, the court must preserve the entire statement with the excised portion indicated, under seal, as part of the record.
(d) Recess for Examination of Statement. Upon delivery of the statement to the moving party, the court, upon application of that party, may recess the proceedings so that counsel may examine the statement and prepare to use it in the proceedings.	(d) Recess to Examine a Statement. The court may recess the proceedings to allow time for a party to examine the statement and prepare for its use.
(e) Sanction for Failure to Produce Statement. If the other party elects not to comply with an order to deliver a statement to the moving party, the court shall order that the testimony of the witness be stricken from the record and that the trial proceed, or, if it is the attorney for the government who elects not to comply, shall declare a mistrial if required by the interest of justice.	(e) Sanction for Failure to Produce or Deliver a Statement. (f) Definition. As used in this rule, a “statement” of a witness means: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (1) a written statement made by the witness that is signed or otherwise adopted or approved by the witness; (2) a substantially verbatim recital of an oral statement made by the witness that is recorded contemporaneously with the making of the oral statement and that is contained in a stenographic, mechanical, electrical, or other recording or a transcription thereof; or (3) a statement, however taken or recorded, or a transcription thereof, made by the witness to a grand jury. 	(f) “Statement” Defined. As used in this rule, a witness’s “statement” means: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (1) a written statement that the witness makes and signs, or otherwise adopts or approves; (2) a substantially verbatim, contemporaneously recorded recital of the witness’s oral statement that is contained in any recording or any transcription of a recording; or (3) the witness’s statement to a grand jury, however taken or recorded, or a transcription of such a statement.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 26.2 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Current Rule 26.2(c) states that if the court withholds a portion of a statement, over the defendant’s objection, “the attorney for the government” must preserve the statement. The Committee believed that the better rule would be for the court to simply seal the entire statement as a part of the record, in the event that there is an appeal.

Also, the terminology in Rule 26.2(c) has been changed. The rule now speaks in terms of a “redacted” statement instead of an “excised” statement. No change in practice is intended.

Finally, the list of proceedings in Rule 26.2(g) has been placed in rule-number order.

Rule 26.3. Mistrial	Rule 26.3. Mistrial
Before ordering a mistrial, the court shall provide an opportunity for the government and for each defendant to comment on the propriety of the order, including whether each party consents or objects to a mistrial, and to suggest any alternatives.	Before ordering a mistrial, the court must give each defendant and the government an opportunity to comment on the propriety of the order, to state whether that party consents or objects, and to suggest alternatives.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 26.3 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 27. Proof of Official Record	Rule 27. Proving an Official Record
An official record or an entry therein or the lack of such a record or entry may be proved in the same manner as in civil actions.	A party may prove an official record, an entry in such a record, or the lack of a record or entry in the same manner as in a civil action.

Rule 28. Interpreters	Rule 28. Interpreters
The court may appoint an interpreter of its own selection and may fix the reasonable compensation of such interpreter. Such compensation shall be paid out of funds provided by law or by the government, as the court may direct.	The court may select, appoint, and set the reasonable compensation for an interpreter. The compensation must be paid from funds provided by law or by the government, as the court may direct.

The language of Rule 28 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 29. Motion for Judgment of Acquittal	Rule 29. Motion for a Judgment of Acquittal
(a) Motion Before Submission to Jury. Motions for directed verdict are abolished and motions for judgment of acquittal shall be used in their place. The court on motion of a defendant or of its own motion shall order the entry of judgment of acquittal of one or more offenses charged in the indictment or information after the evidence on either side is closed if the evidence is insufficient to sustain a conviction of such offense or offenses. If the defendant's motion for judgment of acquittal at the close of the evidence offered by the government is not granted, the defendant may offer evidence without having reserved the right.	(a) Before Submission to the Jury. After the government closes its evidence or after the close of all the evidence, the court on the defendant's motion must enter a judgment of acquittal of any offense for which the evidence is insufficient to sustain a conviction. The court may on its own consider whether the evidence is insufficient to sustain a conviction. If the court denies a motion for a judgment of acquittal at the close of the government's evidence, the defendant may offer evidence without having reserved the right to do so.
(b) Reservation of Decision on Motion. The court may reserve decision on a motion for judgment of acquittal, proceed with the trial (where the motion is made before the close of all the evidence), submit the case to the jury and decide the motion either before the jury returns a verdict or after it returns a verdict of guilty or is discharged without having returned a verdict. If the court reserves a decision, it must decide the motion on the basis of the evidence at the time the ruling was reserved.	(b) Reserving Decision. The court may reserve decision on the motion, proceed with the trial (where the motion is made before the close of all the evidence), submit the case to the jury, and decide the motion either before the jury returns a verdict or after it returns a verdict of guilty or is discharged without having returned a verdict. If the court reserves decision, it must decide the motion on the basis of the evidence at the time the ruling was reserved.
(c) Motion After Discharge of Jury. If the jury returns a verdict of guilty or is discharged without having returned a verdict, a motion for judgment of acquittal may be made or renewed within 7 days after the jury is discharged or within such further time as the court may fix during the 7-day period. If a verdict of guilty is returned the court may on such motion set aside the verdict and enter judgment of acquittal. If no verdict is returned the court may enter judgment of acquittal. It shall not be necessary to the making of such a motion that a similar motion has been made prior to the submission of the case to the jury.	(c) After Jury Verdict or Discharge. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) Time for a Motion. A defendant may move for a judgment of acquittal, or renew such a motion, within 7 days after a guilty verdict or after the court discharges the jury, whichever is later, or within any other time the court sets during the 7-day period. (2) Ruling on the Motion. If the jury has returned a guilty verdict, the court may set aside the verdict and enter an acquittal. If the jury has failed to return a verdict, the court may enter a judgment of acquittal. (3) No Prior Motion Required. A defendant is not required to move for a judgment of acquittal before the court submits the case to the jury as a prerequisite for making such a motion after jury discharge.

(d) Same: Conditional Ruling on Grant of Motion. If a motion for judgment of acquittal after verdict of guilty under this Rule is granted, the court shall also determine whether any motion for a new trial should be granted if the judgment of acquittal is thereafter vacated or reversed, specifying the grounds for such determination. If the motion for a new trial is granted conditionally, the order thereon does not affect the finality of the judgment. If the motion for a new trial has been granted conditionally and the judgment is reversed on appeal, the new trial shall proceed unless the appellate court has otherwise ordered. If such motion has been denied conditionally, the appellee on appeal may assert error in that denial, and if the judgment is reversed on appeal, subsequent proceedings shall be in accordance with the order of the appellate court.

(d) Conditional Ruling on a Motion for a New Trial.

- (1) Motion for a New Trial. If the court enters a judgment of acquittal after a guilty verdict, the court must also conditionally determine whether any motion for a new trial should be granted if the judgment of acquittal is later vacated or reversed. The court must specify the reasons for that determination.
- (2) Finality. The court's order conditionally granting a motion for a new trial does not affect the finality of the judgment of acquittal.
- (3) Appeal.
 - (A) Grant of a Motion for a New Trial. If the court conditionally grants a motion for a new trial and an appellate court later reverses the judgment of acquittal, the trial court must proceed with the new trial unless the appellate court orders otherwise.
 - (B) Denial of a Motion for a New Trial. If the court conditionally denies a motion for a new trial, an appellee may assert that the denial was erroneous. If the appellate court later reverses the judgment of acquittal, the trial court must proceed as the appellate court directs.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 29 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

In Rule 29(a), the first sentence abolishing "directed verdicts" has been deleted because it is unnecessary. The rule continues to recognize that a judge may sua sponte enter a judgment of acquittal.

Rule 29(c)(1) addresses the issue of the timing of a motion for judgment of acquittal. The amended rule now includes language that the motion must be made within 7 days after a guilty verdict or after the judge discharges the jury, whichever occurs later. That change reflects the fact that in a capital case or in a case involving criminal forfeiture, for example, the jury may not be discharged until it has completed its sentencing duties. The court may still set another time for the defendant to make or renew the motion, if it does so within the 7-day period.

Rule 29.1. Closing Argument	29.1. Closing Argument
After the closing of evidence the prosecution shall open the argument. The defense shall be permitted to reply. The prosecution shall then be permitted to reply in rebuttal.	Closing arguments proceed in the following order: (a) the government argues; (b) the defense argues; and (c) the government rebuts.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 29.1 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 30. Instructions

At the close of the evidence or at such earlier time during the trial as the court reasonably directs, any party may file written requests that the court instruct the jury on the law as set forth in the requests. At the same time copies of such requests shall be furnished to all parties. The court shall inform counsel of its proposed action upon the requests prior to their arguments to the jury. The court may instruct the jury before or after the arguments are completed or at both times. No party may assign as error any portion of the charge or omission therefrom unless that party objects thereto before the jury retires to consider its verdict, stating distinctly the matter to which that party objects and the grounds of the objection. Opportunity shall be given to make the objection out of the hearing of the jury and, on request of any party, out of the presence of the jury.

Rule 30. Jury Instructions

- (a) In General. Any party may request in writing that the court instruct the jury on the law as specified in the request. The request must be made at the close of the evidence or at any earlier time during the trial that the court reasonably sets. When the request is made, the requesting party must furnish a copy to every other party.
- (b) Ruling on a Request. The court must inform the parties before closing arguments how it intends to rule on the requested instructions.
- (c) Time for Giving Instructions. The court may instruct the jury before or after the arguments are completed, or at both times.
- (d) Objections to Instructions. A party who objects to any portion of the instructions or to a failure to give a requested instruction must inform the court of the specific objection and the grounds for the objection before the jury retires to deliberate. An opportunity must be given to object out of the jury's hearing and, on request, out of the jury's presence. Failure to object in accordance with this rule precludes appellate review, except as permitted under Rule 52(b).

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 30 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Rule 30(d) has been changed to clarify what, if anything, counsel must do to preserve a claim of error regarding an instruction or failure to instruct. The rule retains the requirement of a contemporaneous and specific objection (before the jury retires to deliberate). As the Supreme Court recognized in Jones v. United States, 527 U.S. 373, 388 (1999), read literally, current Rule 30 could be construed to bar any appellate review when in fact a court may conduct a limited review under a plain error standard. The topic of plain error is not addressed in Rule 30 because it is already covered in Rule 52. No change in practice is intended by the amendment.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication is to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 30 was one of those rules. This proposed revision of Rule 30 includes only proposed style changes. Another version of Rule 30 includes a substantive amendment that would authorize a court to require the parties to file requests for instructions before trial. That version of Rule 30 is presented in the "substantive" package.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 31 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 31(b) has been amended to clarify that a jury may return partial verdicts, either as to multiple defendants or multiple counts, or both. See, e.g., United States v. Cunningham, 145 F.3d 1385, 1388-90 (D.C. Cir. 1998) (partial verdicts on multiple defendants and counts). No change in practice is intended.

(a) In General; Time for Sentencing. When a presentence investigation and report are made under subdivision (b)(1), sentence should be imposed without unnecessary delay following completion of the process prescribed by subdivision (b)(6). The time limits prescribed in subdivision (b)(6) may be either shortened or lengthened for good cause.	(b) Time of Sentencing. (1) In General. The court must impose sentence without unnecessary delay. (2) Changing Time Limits. The court may, for good cause, change any time limits prescribed in this rule.

(b) Presentence Investigation and Report. (1) When Made. The probation officer must make a presentence investigation and submit a report to the court before sentence is imposed unless: (A) the court finds that the information in the record enables it to exercise its sentencing authority meaningfully under 18 U.S.C. § 3553; and (B) the court explains this finding on the record. Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, a presentence investigation and report, or other report containing information sufficient for the court to enter an order of restitution, as the court may direct, shall be required in any case in which restitution is required to be ordered.	(c) Presentence Investigation. (1) Required Investigation. (A) In General. The probation officer must conduct a presentence investigation and submit a report to the court before it imposes sentence unless: (i) 18 U.S.C. § 3593(c) or another statute requires otherwise; or (ii) the court finds that the information in the record enables it to meaningfully exercise its sentencing authority under 18 U.S.C. § 3553, and the court explains its finding on the record. (B) Restitution. If the law requires restitution, the probation officer must conduct an investigation and submit a report that contains sufficient information for the court to order restitution.
(2) Presence of Counsel. On request, the defendant's counsel is entitled to notice and a reasonable opportunity to attend any interview of the defendant by a probation officer in the course of a presentence investigation.	(2) Interviewing the Defendant. The probation officer who interviews a defendant as part of a presentence investigation must, on request, give the defendant's attorney notice and a reasonable opportunity to attend the interview.
(3) Nondisclosure. The report must not be submitted to the court or its contents disclosed to anyone unless the defendant has consented in writing, has pleaded guilty or nolo contendere, or has been found guilty.

(4) Contents of the Presentence Report. The presentence report must contain —

(A) information about the defendant's history and characteristics, including any prior criminal record, financial condition, and any circumstances that, because they affect the defendant's behavior, may be helpful in imposing sentence or in correctional treatment;

(B) the classification of the offense and of the defendant under the categories established by the Sentencing Commission under 28 U.S.C. § 994(a), as the probation officer believes to be applicable to the defendant's case; the kinds of sentence and the sentencing range suggested for such a category of offense committed by such a category of defendant as set forth in the guidelines issued by the Sentencing Commission under 28 U.S.C. § 994(a)(1); and the probation officer's explanation of any factors that may suggest a different sentence — within or without the applicable guideline — that would be more appropriate, given all the circumstances;

(C) a reference to any pertinent policy statement issued by the Sentencing Commission under 28 U.S.C. § 994(a)(2);

(d) Presentence Report.

(1) Application of the Sentencing Guidelines. The presentence report must:

- (A) identify all applicable guidelines and policy statements of the Sentencing Commission;
- (B) calculate the defendant's offense level and criminal history category;
- (C) state the resulting sentencing range and kinds of sentences available;
- (D) identify any factor relevant to:
 - (i) the appropriate kind of sentence, or
 - (ii) the appropriate sentence within the applicable sentencing range; and
- (E) identify any basis for departing from the applicable sentencing range.

(2) Additional Information. The presentence report must also contain the following information:

- (A) the defendant's history and characteristics, including:
 - (i) any prior criminal record;
 - (ii) the defendant's financial condition; and
 - (iii) any circumstances affecting the defendant's behavior that may be helpful in imposing sentence or in correctional treatment;

(D) verified information, stated in a nonargumentative style, containing an assessment of the financial, social, psychological, and medical impact on any individual against whom the offense has been committed; (E) in appropriate cases, information about the nature and extent of nonprison programs and resources available for the defendant; (F) in appropriate cases, information sufficient for the court to enter restitution; (G) any report and recommendation resulting from a study ordered by the court under 18 U.S.C. § 3552(b); and (H) any other information required by the court.	(B) verified information, stated in a nonargumentative style, that assesses the financial, social, psychological, and medical impact on any individual against whom the offense has been committed; (C) when appropriate, the nature and extent of nonprison programs and resources available to the defendant; (D) when the law provides for restitution, information sufficient for a restitution order; (E) if the court orders a study under 18 U.S.C. § 3552(b), any resulting report and recommendation; and (F) any other information that the court requires.
(5) Exclusions. The presentence report must exclude: (A) any diagnostic opinions that, if disclosed, might seriously disrupt a program of rehabilitation; (B) sources of information obtained upon a promise of confidentiality; or (C) any other information that, if disclosed, might result in harm, physical or otherwise, to the defendant or other persons.	(3) Exclusions. The presentence report must exclude the following: (A) any diagnoses that, if disclosed, might seriously disrupt a rehabilitation program; (B) any sources of information obtained upon a promise of confidentiality; and (C) any other information that, if disclosed, might result in physical or other harm to the defendant or others.

(6) Disclosure and Objections.

(A) Not less than 35 days before the sentencing hearing — unless the defendant waives this minimum period — the probation officer must furnish the presentence report to the defendant, the defendant's counsel, and the attorney for the Government. The court may, by local rule or in individual cases, direct that the probation officer not disclose the probation officer's recommendation, if any, on the sentence.

(B) Within 14 days after receiving the presentence report, the parties shall communicate in writing to the probation officer, and to each other, any objections to any material information, sentencing classifications, sentencing guideline ranges, and policy statements contained in or omitted from the presentence report. After receiving objections, the probation officer may meet with the defendant, the defendant's attorney, and the attorney for the Government to discuss those objections. The probation officer may also conduct a further investigation and revise the presentence report as appropriate.

(e) Disclosing the Report and Recommendation.

- (1) *Time to Disclose. Unless the defendant has consented in writing, the probation officer must not submit a presentence report to the court or disclose its contents to anyone until the defendant has pleaded guilty or nolo contendere, or has been found guilty.
- (2) *Minimum Required Notice. The probation officer must give the presentence report to the defendant, the defendant's attorney, and an attorney for the government at least 35 days before sentencing unless the defendant waives this minimum period.
- (3) *Sentence Recommendation. By local rule or by order in a case, the court may direct the probation officer not to disclose to anyone other than the court the officer's recommendation on the sentence.

(f) Objecting to the Report.

- (1) *Time to Object. Within 14 days after receiving the presentence report, the parties must state in writing any objections, including objections to material information, sentencing guideline ranges, and policy statements contained in or omitted from the report.
- (2) *Serving Objections. An objecting party must provide a copy of its objections to the opposing party and to the probation officer.
- (3) *Action on Objections. After receiving objections, the probation officer may meet with the parties to discuss the objections. The probation officer may then investigate further and revise the presentence report as appropriate.

(C) Not later than 7 days before the sentencing hearing, the probation officer must submit the presentence report to the court, together with an addendum setting forth any unresolved objections, the grounds for those objections, and the probation officer's comments on the objections. At the same time, the probation officer must furnish the revisions of the presentence report and the addendum to the defendant, the defendant's counsel, and the attorney for the Government.

(D) Except for any unresolved objection under subdivision (b)(6)(B), the court may, at the hearing, accept the presentence report as its findings of fact. For good cause shown, the court may allow a new objection to be raised at any time before imposing sentence.

(g) Submitting the Report. At least 7 days before sentencing, the probation officer must submit to the court and to the parties the presentence report and an addendum containing any unresolved objections, the grounds for those objections, and the probation officer's comments on them.

(h) Notice of Possible Departure from Sentencing Guidelines. Before the court may depart from the applicable sentencing range on a ground not identified for departure either in the presentence report or in a party's prehearing submission, the court must give the parties reasonable notice that it is contemplating such a departure. The notice must specify any ground on which the court is contemplating a departure.

(c) Sentence.

(1) Sentencing Hearing. At the sentencing hearing, the court must afford counsel for the defendant and for the Government an opportunity to comment on the probation officer's determinations and on other matters relating to the appropriate sentence, and must rule on any unresolved objections in the presentence report. The court may, in its discretion, permit the parties to introduce testimony or other evidence on the objections. For each matter controverted, the court must make either a finding on the allegation or a determination that no finding is necessary because the controverted matter will not be taken into account in, or will not affect, sentencing. A written record of these findings and determinations must be appended to any copy of the presentence report made available to the Bureau of Prisons.

(2) Production of Statements at Sentencing Hearing. Rule 26.2(a)-(d) and (f) applies at a sentencing hearing under this rule. If a party elects not to comply with an order under Rule 26.2(a) to deliver a statement to the movant, the court may not consider the affidavit or testimony of the witness whose statement is withheld.

(i) Sentencing.

(1) In General. At sentencing, the court:

- (A) must verify that the defendant and the defendant's attorney have read and discussed the presentence report and any addendum to the report;
- (B) must give to the defendant and an attorney for the government a written summary of — or summarize in camera — any information excluded from the presentence report under Rule 32(d)(3) on which the court will rely in sentencing, and give them a reasonable opportunity to comment on that information;
- (C) must allow the parties' attorneys to comment on the probation officer's determinations and other matters relating to an appropriate sentence; and
- (D) may, for good cause, allow a party to make a new objection at any time before sentence is imposed.

(2) Introducing Evidence; Producing a Statement. The court may permit the parties to introduce evidence on the objections. If a witness testifies at sentencing, Rule 26.2(a)-(d) and (f) applies. If a party fails to comply with a Rule 26.2 order to produce a witness's statement, the court must not consider that witness's testimony.

(3) Imposition of Sentence. Before imposing sentence, the court must:

- (A) verify that the defendant and the defendant's counsel have read and discussed the presentence report made available under subdivision (b)(6)(A). If the court has received information excluded from the presentence report under subdivision (b)(5) the court — in lieu of making that information available — must summarize it in writing, if the information will be relied on in determining sentence;

(3) Court Determinations. At sentencing, the court:

- (A) may accept any undisputed portion of the presentence report as a finding of fact;
- (B) must — for any disputed portion of the presentence report or other controverted matter — rule on the dispute or determine that a ruling is unnecessary either because the matter will not affect sentencing, or because the court will not consider the matter in sentencing; and
- (C) must append a copy of the court's determinations under this rule to any copy of the presentence report made available to the Bureau of Prisons.

The court must also give the defendant and the defendant's counsel a reasonable opportunity to comment on that information;

(B) afford defendant's counsel an opportunity to speak on behalf of the defendant;

(C) address the defendant personally and determine whether the defendant wishes to make a statement and to present any information in mitigation of the sentence;

(D) afford the attorney for the Government an opportunity to speak equivalent to that of the defendant's counsel to speak to the court;

(4) Opportunity to Speak.

- (A) By a Party. Before imposing sentence, the court must:
 - (i) provide the defendant's attorney an opportunity to speak on the defendant's behalf;
 - (ii) address the defendant personally in order to permit the defendant to speak or present any information to mitigate the sentence; and
 - (iii) provide an attorney for the government an opportunity to speak equivalent to that of the defendant's attorney.

(E) if sentence is to be imposed for a crime of violence or sexual abuse, address the victim personally if the victim is present at the sentencing hearing and determine if the victim wishes to make a statement or present any information in relation to the sentence.	(B) By a Victim. Before imposing sentence, the court must address any victim of a crime of violence or sexual abuse who is present at sentencing and must permit the victim to speak or submit any information about the sentence. Whether or not the victim is present, a victim's right to address the court may be exercised by the following persons if present: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (i) a parent or legal guardian, if the victim is younger than 18 years or is incompetent; or (ii) one or more family members or relatives the court designates, if the victim is deceased or incapacitated.
(4) In Camera Proceedings. The court's summary of information under subdivision (c)(3)(A) may be in camera. Upon joint motion by the defendant and the attorney for the Government, the court may hear in camera the statements — made under subdivision (c)(3)(B), (C), (D), and (E) — by the defendant, the defendant's counsel, the victim, or the attorney for the government.	(C) In Camera Proceedings. Upon a party's motion and for good cause, the court may hear in camera any statement made under Rule 32(i)(4).

(5) Notification of Right to Appeal. After imposing sentence in a case which has gone to trial on a plea of not guilty, the court must advise the defendant of the right to appeal. After imposing sentence in any case, the court must advise the defendant of any right to appeal the sentence, and of the right of the person who is unable to pay the cost of an appeal to apply for leave to appeal in forma pauperis. If the defendant so requests, the clerk of the court must immediately prepare and file a notice of appeal on behalf of the defendant.	(j) Defendant's Right to Appeal. (1) Advice of a Right to Appeal. (A) Appealing a Conviction. If the defendant pleaded not guilty and was convicted, after sentencing the court must advise the defendant of the right to appeal the conviction. (B) Appealing a Sentence. After sentencing — regardless of the defendant's plea — the court must advise the defendant of any right to appeal the sentence. (C) Appeal Costs. The court must advise a defendant who is unable to pay appeal costs of the right to ask for permission to appeal in forma pauperis. (2) Clerk's Filing of Notice. If the defendant so requests, the clerk must immediately prepare and file a notice of appeal on the defendant's behalf.
(d) Judgment. (1) In General. A judgment of conviction must set forth the plea, the verdict or findings, the adjudication, and the sentence. If the defendant is found not guilty or for any other reason is entitled to be discharged, judgment must be entered accordingly. The judgment must be signed by the judge and entered by the clerk. (2) Criminal Forfeiture. Forfeiture procedures are governed by Rule 32.2.	(k) Judgment. (1) In General. In the judgment of conviction, the court must set forth the plea, the jury verdict or the court's findings, the adjudication, and the sentence. If the defendant is found not guilty or is otherwise entitled to be discharged, the court must so order. The judge must sign the judgment, and the clerk must enter it. (2) Criminal Forfeiture. Forfeiture procedures are governed by Rule 32.2.
(e) Plea Withdrawal. If a motion to withdraw a plea of guilty or nolo contendere is made before sentence is imposed, the court may permit the plea to be withdrawn if the defendant shows any fair and just reason. At any later time, a plea may be set aside only on direct appeal or by motion under 28 U.S.C. § 2255.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 32 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

The rule has been completely reorganized to make it easier to follow and apply. For example, the definitions in the rule have been moved to the first section and the sequencing of the sections generally follows the procedure for presentencing and sentencing procedures.

Revised Rule 32(a) contains definitions that currently appear in Rule 32(f). One substantive change was made in Rule 32(a)(2). The Committee expanded the definition of victims of crimes of violence or sexual abuse to include victims of child pornography under 18 U.S.C. §§ 2251-2257 (child pornography and related offenses). The Committee considered those victims to be similar to victims of sexual offenses under 18 U.S.C. §§ 2241-2248, who already possess that right.

Revised Rule 32(d) has been amended to more clearly set out the contents of the presentence report concerning the application of the Sentencing Guidelines.

Current Rule 32(e), which addresses the ability of a defendant to withdraw a guilty plea, has been moved to Rule 11(e).

Rule 32(h) is a new provision that reflects Burns v. United States, 501 U.S. 129, 138-39 (1991). In Burns, the Court held that before a sentencing court could depart upward on a ground, not previously identified in the presentence report as a ground for departure, Rule 32 requires the court to give the parties reasonable notice that it is contemplating such a ruling and to identify the specific ground for the departure. The Court also indicated that because the procedural entitlements in Rule 32 apply equally to both parties, it was equally appropriate to frame the issue as whether notice is required before the sentencing court departs either upward or downward. Id. at 135, n.4.

Revised Rule 32(i)(3) addresses changes to current Rule 32(c)(1). Under the current rule, the court is required to "rule on any unresolved objections to the presentence report." The rule does not specify, however, whether that provision should be read literally to mean every objection that might have been made to the report or only on those objections that might in some way actually affect the sentence. The Committee believed that a broad reading of the current rule might place an unreasonable burden on the court without providing any real benefit to the sentencing process. Revised Rule 32(i)(3) narrows the requirement for court findings to those instances when the objection addresses a "controverted matter." If the objection satisfies that criterion, the court must either make a finding on the objection or decide that a finding is not required because the matter will not affect sentencing or that the matter will not be considered at all in sentencing.

Revised Rule 32(i)(4)(B) provides for the right of certain victims to address the court during sentencing. As noted, supra, revised Rule 32(a)(2) expands the definition of victims to include victims of crimes under 18 U.S.C. §§ 2251-57 (child pornography and related offenses). Thus, they too will now be permitted to address the court.

Revised Rule 32(i)(1)(B) is intended to clarify language that currently exists in Rule 32(h)(3), that the court must inform both parties that the court will rely on information not in the presentence report and provide them with an opportunity to comment on the information.

Rule 32(i)(4)(C) includes a change concerning who may request an in camera proceeding. Under current Rule 32(c)(4), the parties must file a joint motion for an in camera proceeding to hear the statements by defense counsel, the defendant, the attorney for the government, or any victim. Under the revised rule, any party may move (for good cause) that the court hear in camera any statement—by a party or a victim—made under revised Rule 32(i)(4).

Finally, the Committee considered, but did not adopt, an amendment that would have required the court to rule on any "unresolved objection to a material matter" in the presentence report, whether or not the court will consider it in imposing an appropriate sentence. The amendment was considered because an unresolved objection that has no impact on determining a sentence under the Sentencing Guidelines, may affect other important post-sentencing decisions. For example, the Bureau of Prisons consults the presentence report in deciding where a defendant will actually serve his or her sentence of confinement. See A Judicial Guide to the Federal Bureau of Prisons, 11 (United States Department of Justice, Federal Bureau of Prisons 1995) (noting that "Bureau relies primarily on the Presentence Investigator Report ..."). And as some courts have recognized, Rule 32 was intended to guard against adverse consequences of a statement in the presentence report that the court may have been found to be false. United States v. Velasquez, 748 F.2d 972, 974 (8th Cir. 1984) (rule designed to protect against evil that false allegation that defendant was notorious alien smuggler would affect defendant for years to come); see also United States v. Brown, 715 F.2d 387, 389 n.2 (5th Cir. 1983) (sentencing report affects "place of incarceration, chances for parole, and relationships with social service and correctional agencies after release from prison").

To avoid unduly burdening the court, the Committee elected not to require resolution of objections that go only to service of sentence. However, because of the presentence report's critical role in post-sentence administration, counsel may wish to point out to the court those matters that are typically considered by the Bureau of Prisons in designating the place of confinement. For example, the Bureau considers:

the type of offense, the length of sentence, the defendant's age, the defendant's release residence, the need for medical or other special treatment, and any placement recommendation made by the court.

A Judicial Guide to the Federal Bureau of Prisons, supra, at 11. Further, a question as to whether or not the defendant has a "drug problem" could have an impact on whether the defendant would be eligible for prison drug abuse treatment programs. 18 U.S.C. § 3621(e) (Substance abuse treatment).

If counsel objects to material in the presentence report that could affect the defendant's service of sentence, the court may resolve the objection, but is not required to do so.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication is to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 32 is one of those rules. In revising Rule 32, the Committee decided to also propose a substantive change that would limit the occasions that the sentencing judge would have to rule on unresolved objections to the presentence report. That version of Rule 32 is being published simultaneously in a separate pamphlet.

Rule 32.1. Revocation or Modification of Probation or Supervised Release.	Rule 32.1. Revoking or Modifying Probation or Supervised Release
(a) Revocation of Probation or Supervised Release. (1) Preliminary Hearing. Whenever a person is held in custody on the ground that the person has violated a condition of probation or supervised release, the person shall be afforded a prompt hearing before any judge, or a United States magistrate who has been given the authority pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636 to conduct such hearings, in order to determine whether there is probable cause to hold the person for a revocation hearing. The person shall be given <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (A) notice of the preliminary hearing and its purpose and of the alleged violation; (B) an opportunity to appear at the hearing and present evidence in the person's own behalf; (C) upon request, the opportunity to question witnesses against the person unless, for good cause, the federal magistrate decides that justice does not require the appearance of the witness; and (D) notice of the person's right to be represented by counsel. The proceedings shall be recorded stenographically or by an electronic recording device. If probable cause is found to exist, the person shall be held for a revocation hearing. The person may be released pursuant to Rule 46(c) pending the revocation hearing. If probable cause is not found to exist, the proceeding shall be dismissed.	(a) Initial Appearance. (1) Person In Custody. A person held in custody for violating probation or supervised release must be taken without unnecessary delay before a magistrate judge. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (A) If the person is held in custody in the district where an alleged violation occurred, the initial appearance must be in that district. (B) If the person is held in custody in a district other than where an alleged violation occurred, the initial appearance must be in that district, or in an adjacent district if the appearance can occur more promptly there. (2) Upon a Summons. When a person appears in response to a summons for violating probation or supervised release, a magistrate judge must proceed under this rule. (3) Advice. The judge must inform the person of the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (A) the alleged violation of probation or supervised release; (B) the person's right to retain counsel or to request that counsel be appointed if the person cannot obtain counsel; and (C) the person's right, if held in custody, to a preliminary hearing under Rule 32.1(b)(1).
	(4) Appearance in the District With Jurisdiction. If the person is arrested or appears in the district that has jurisdiction to conduct a revocation hearing — either originally or by transfer of jurisdiction — the court must proceed under Rule 32.1(b)–(e).

(5) Appearance in a District Lacking Jurisdiction. If the person is arrested or appears in a district that does not have jurisdiction to conduct a revocation hearing, the magistrate judge must:

(A) if the alleged violation occurred in the district of arrest, conduct a preliminary hearing under Rule 32.1(b) and either:

(i) transfer the person to the district that has jurisdiction, if the judge finds probable cause to believe that a violation occurred; or

(ii) dismiss the proceedings and so notify the court that has jurisdiction, if the judge finds no probable cause to believe that a violation occurred; or

(B) if the alleged violation did not occur in the district of arrest, transfer the person to the district that has jurisdiction if:

(i) the government produces certified copies of the judgment, warrant, and warrant application; and

(ii) the judge finds that the person is the same person named in the warrant.

(6) Release or Detention. The magistrate judge may release or detain the person under 18 U.S.C. § 3143(a) pending further proceedings. The burden of establishing that the person will not flee or pose a danger to any other person or to the community rests with the person.

(b) Revocation.

(1) Preliminary Hearing.

(A) In General. If a person is in custody for violating a condition of probation or supervised release, a magistrate judge must promptly conduct a hearing to determine whether there is probable cause to believe that a violation occurred. The person may waive the hearing.

(B) Requirements. The hearing must be recorded by a court reporter or by a suitable recording device. The judge must give the person:

- (i) notice of the hearing and its purpose, the alleged violation, and the person's right to retain counsel or to request that counsel be appointed if the person cannot obtain counsel;
- (ii) an opportunity to appear at the hearing and present evidence; and
- (iii) upon request, an opportunity to question any adverse witness, unless the judge determines that the interest of justice does not require the witness to appear.

(C) Referral. If the judge finds probable cause, the judge must conduct a revocation hearing. If the judge does not find probable cause, the judge must dismiss the proceeding.

(2) Revocation Hearing. The revocation hearing, unless waived by the person, shall be held within a reasonable time in the district of jurisdiction. The person shall be given:

- (A) written notice of the alleged violation;
- (B) disclosure of the evidence against the person;
- (C) an opportunity to appear and to present evidence in the person's own behalf;
- (D) the opportunity to question adverse witnesses; and
- (E) notice of the person's right to be represented by counsel.

(2) Revocation Hearing. Unless waived by the person, the court must hold the revocation hearing within a reasonable time in the district having jurisdiction. The person is entitled to:

- (A) written notice of the alleged violation;
- (B) disclosure of the evidence against the person;
- (C) an opportunity to appear, present evidence, and question any adverse witness unless the court determines that the interest of justice does not require the witness to appear; and
- (D) notice of the person's right to retain counsel or to request that counsel be appointed if the person cannot obtain counsel.

(b) Modification of Probation or Supervised Release. A hearing and assistance of counsel are required before the terms or conditions of probation or supervised release can be modified, unless the relief to be granted to the person on probation or supervised release upon the person's request or on the court's own motion is favorable to the person, and the attorney for the government, after having been given notice of the proposed relief and a reasonable opportunity to object, has not objected. An extension of the term of probation or supervised release is not favorable to the person for the purposes of this rule.	(c) Modification. (1) In General. Before modifying the conditions of probation or supervised release, the court must hold a hearing, at which the person has the right to counsel. (2) Exceptions. A hearing is not required if: (A) the person waives the hearing; or (B) the relief sought is favorable to the person and does not extend the term of probation or of supervised release; and (C) an attorney for the government has received notice of the relief sought, has had a reasonable opportunity to object, and has not done so.
	(d) Disposition of the Case. The court's disposition of the case is governed by 18 U.S.C. § 3563 and § 3565 (probation) and § 3583 (supervised release).
(c) Production of Statements. (1) In General. Rule 26.2(a)-(d) and (f) applies at any hearing under this rule. (2) Sanctions for Failure to Produce Statement. If a party elects not to comply with an order under Rule 26.2(a) to deliver a statement to the moving party, the court may not consider the testimony of a witness whose statement is withheld.	(e) Producing a Statement. Rule 26.2(a)-(d) and (f) applies at a hearing under this rule. If a party fails to comply with a Rule 26.2 order to produce a witness's statement, the court must not consider that witness's testimony.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 32.1 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Rule 32.1 has been completely revised and expanded. The Committee believed that it was important to spell out more completely in this rule the various procedural steps that must be met when dealing with a revocation or modification of probation or supervised release. To that end, some language formerly located in Rule 40 has been moved to revised Rule 32.1. Throughout the rule, the terms "magistrate judge," and "court" (see revised Rule 1(b)(Definitions)) are used to reflect that in revocation cases, initial proceedings in both felony and misdemeanor cases will normally be conducted before a magistrate judge, although a district judge may also conduct them. But a district judge must make the revocation decision if the offense of conviction was a felony. See 18 U.S.C. § 3401(i) (recognizing that district judge may designate a magistrate judge to conduct hearing and submit proposed findings of fact and recommendations).

Revised Rule 32.1(a)(1)-(4) is new material. Presently, there is no provision in the rules for conducting initial appearances for defendants charged with violating probation or supervised release—although some districts apply such procedures. Although the rule labels these proceedings as initial appearances, the Committee believed that it was best to separate those proceedings from Rule 5 proceedings, because the procedures differ for persons who are charged with violating conditions of probation or supervised release.

The Committee is also aware that, in some districts, it is not the practice to have an initial appearance for a revocation of probation or supervised release proceeding. Although Rule 32.1(a) will require such an appearance, nothing in the rule prohibits a court from combining the initial appearance proceeding, if convened consistent with the “without unnecessary delay” time requirement of the rule, with the preliminary hearing under Rule 32.1(b).”

Revised Rule 32.1(a)(5) is derived from current Rule 40(d).

Revised Rule 32.1(a)(6), which is derived from current Rule 46(c), provides that the defendant bears the burden of showing that he or she will not flee or pose a danger pending a hearing on the revocation of probation or supervised release. The Committee believes that the new language is not a substantive change because it makes no change in practice.

Rule 32.1(b)(1)(B)(iii) and Rule 32.1(b)(2)(C) address the ability of a releasee to question adverse witnesses at the preliminary and revocation hearings. Those provisions recognize that the court should apply a balancing test at the hearing itself when considering the releasee’s asserted right to cross-examine adverse witnesses. The court is to balance the person’s interest in the constitutionally guaranteed right to confrontation against the government’s good cause for denying it. See, e.g., Morrissey v. Brewer, 408 U.S. 471, 489 (1972); United States v. Comito, 177 F.3d 1166 (9th Cir. 1999); United States v. Walker, 117 F.3d 417 (9th Cir. 1997); United States v. Zentgraf, 20 F.3d 906 (8th Cir. 1994).

Rule 32.1(c)(2)(A) permits the person to waive a hearing to modify the conditions of probation or supervised release. Although that language is new to the rule, the Committee believes that it reflects current practice.

The remainder of revised Rule 32.1 is derived from the current Rule 32.1.

Rule 32.2. Criminal Forfeiture	Rule 32.2. Criminal Forfeiture
(a) Notice to the Defendant. A court shall not enter a judgment of forfeiture in a criminal proceeding unless the indictment or information contains notice to the defendant that the government will seek the forfeiture of property as part of any sentence in accordance with the applicable statute.	(a) Notice to the Defendant. If forfeiture of specific property is sought, the court shall determine whether the government has established the requisite nexus between the property and the offense. If the government seeks a personal money judgment against the defendant, the court shall determine the amount of money that the defendant will be ordered to pay. At sentencing—or at any time before sentencing if the defendant consents—the order of forfeiture becomes final as to the defendant and shall be made a part of the sentence and included in the judgment. When discovery ends, a party may move for summary judgment under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56.

- (2) When the ancillary proceeding ends, the court shall enter a final order of forfeiture by amending the preliminary order as necessary to account for any third-party rights. If no third party files a timely claim, the preliminary order becomes the final order of forfeiture, if the court finds that the defendant (or any combination of defendants convicted in the case) had an interest in the property that is forfeitable under the applicable statute. The defendant may not object to the entry of the final order of forfeiture on the ground that the property belongs, in whole or in part, to a codefendant or third party, nor may a third party object to the final order on the ground that the third party had an interest in the property.
- (3) If multiple third-party petitions are filed in the same case, an order dismissing or granting one petition is not appealable until rulings are made on all petitions, unless the court determines that there is no just reason for delay.
- (4) An ancillary proceeding is not part of sentencing.

- (2) Entering a Final Order. When the ancillary proceeding ends, the court must enter a final order of forfeiture by amending the preliminary order as necessary to account for any third-party rights. If no third party files a timely petition, the preliminary order becomes the final order of forfeiture if the court finds that the defendant (or any combination of defendants convicted in the case) had an interest in the property that is forfeitable under the applicable statute. The defendant may not object to the entry of the final order on the ground that the property belongs, in whole or in part, to a codefendant or third party; nor may a third party object to the final order on the ground that the third party had an interest in the property.
- (3) Multiple Petitions. If multiple third-party petitions are filed in the same case, an order dismissing or granting one petition is not appealable until rulings are made on all the petitions, unless the court determines that there is no just reason for delay.
- (4) Ancillary Proceeding Not Part of Sentencing. An ancillary proceeding is not part of sentencing.

(d) Stay Pending Appeal. If a defendant appeals from a conviction or order of forfeiture, the court may stay the order of forfeiture on terms appropriate to ensure that the property remains available pending appellate review. A stay does not delay the ancillary proceeding or the determination of a third party's rights or interests. If the court rules in favor of any third party while an appeal is pending, the court may amend the order of forfeiture but shall not transfer any property interest to a third party until the decision on appeal becomes final, unless the defendant consents in writing or on the record.

(d) Stay Pending Appeal. If a defendant appeals from a conviction or an order of forfeiture, the court may stay the order of forfeiture on terms appropriate to ensure that the property remains available pending appellate review. A stay does not delay the ancillary proceeding or the determination of a third party's rights or interests. If the court rules in favor of any third party while an appeal is pending, the court may amend the order of forfeiture but must not transfer any property interest to a third party until the decision on appeal becomes final, unless the defendant consents in writing or on the record.

(e) Subsequently Located Property; Substitute Property. (1) On the government's motion, the court may at any time enter an order of forfeiture or amend an existing order of forfeiture to include property that: (A) is subject to forfeiture under an existing order of forfeiture but was located and identified after that order was entered; or (B) is substitute property that qualifies for forfeiture under an applicable statute.	(e) Subsequently Located Property; Substitute Property. (1) In General. On the government's motion, the court may at any time enter an order of forfeiture or amend an existing order of forfeiture to include property that: (A) is subject to forfeiture under an existing order of forfeiture but was located and identified after that order was entered; or (B) is substitute property that qualifies for forfeiture under an applicable statute.
(2) If the government shows that the property is subject to forfeiture under Rule 32.2(e)(1), the court shall: (A) enter an order forfeiting that property, or amend an existing preliminary or final order to include it; and (B) if a third party files a petition claiming an interest in the property, conduct an ancillary proceeding under Rule 32.2(c). (3) There is no right to trial by jury under Rule 32.2(e).	(2) Procedure. If the government shows that the property is subject to forfeiture under Rule 32.2(e)(1), the court must: (A) enter an order forfeiting that property, or amend an existing preliminary or final order to include it; and (B) if a third party files a petition claiming an interest in the property, conduct an ancillary proceeding under Rule 32.2(c). (3) Jury Trial Limited. There is no right to jury trial under Rule 32.2(e).

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 32.2 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 33. New Trial

On a defendant's motion, the court may grant a new trial to that defendant if the interests of justice so require. If trial was by the court without a jury, the court may— on defendant's motion for new trial— vacate the judgment, take additional testimony, and direct the entry of a new judgment. A motion for a new trial based on newly discovered evidence may be made only within three years after the verdict or finding of guilty. But if an appeal is pending, the court may grant the motion only on remand of the case. A motion for a new trial based on any other grounds may be made only within 7 days after the verdict or finding of guilty or within such further time as the court may fix during the 7-day period.

Rule 33. New Trial

- (a) Defendant's Motion. Upon the defendant's motion, the court may vacate any judgment and grant a new trial if the interest of justice so requires. If the case was tried without a jury, the court may take additional testimony and enter a new judgment.
- (b) Time to File.
- (1) Newly Discovered Evidence. Any motion for a new trial grounded on newly discovered evidence must be filed within 3 years after the verdict or finding of guilty. If an appeal is pending, the court may not grant a motion for a new trial until the appellate court remands the case.
 - (2) Other Grounds. Any motion for a new trial grounded on any reason other than newly discovered evidence must be filed within 7 days after the verdict or finding of guilty, or within such further time as the court sets during the 7-day period.

Rule 34. Arrest of Judgment	Rule 34. Arresting Judgment
The court on motion of a defendant shall arrest judgment if the indictment or information does not charge an offense or if the court was without jurisdiction of the offense charged. The motion in arrest of judgment shall be made within 7 days after verdict or finding of guilty, or after plea of guilty or nolo contendere, or within such further time as the court may fix during the 7-day period.	(a) In General. The language of Rule 34 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 35. Correction or Reduction of Sentence	Rule 35. Correcting or Reducing a Sentence
(a) Correction of Sentence on Remand. The court shall correct a sentence that is determined on appeal under 18 U.S.C. 3742 to have been imposed in violation of law, to have been imposed as a result of an incorrect application of the sentencing guidelines, or to be unreasonable, upon remand of the case to the court— (1) for imposition of a sentence in accord with the findings of the court of appeals; or (2) for further sentencing proceedings if, after such proceedings, the court determines that the original sentence was incorrect.	(a) Definition. For purposes of this rule, “sentencing” means the entry of judgment. (b) Correcting Clear Error. Within 7 days after sentencing, the court may correct a sentence that resulted from arithmetical, technical, or other clear error.
(b) Reduction of Sentence for Substantial Assistance. If the Government so moves within one year after the sentence is imposed, the court may reduce a sentence to reflect a defendant’s subsequent, substantial assistance in investigating or prosecuting another person in accordance with the guidelines and policy statements issued by the Sentencing Commission under 28 U.S.C. § 994. The court may consider a government motion to reduce a sentence made one year or more after the sentence is imposed if the defendant’s substantial assistance involves information or evidence not known by the defendant until one year or more after sentence is imposed. In evaluating whether substantial assistance has been rendered, the court may consider the defendant’s pre-sentence assistance. In applying this subdivision, the court may reduce the sentence to a level below that established by statute as a minimum sentence.	(c) Reducing a Sentence for Substantial Assistance. (1) In General. Upon the government’s motion made within one year after sentencing, the court may reduce a sentence if: (A) the defendant, after sentencing, provided substantial assistance in investigating or prosecuting another person; and (B) reducing the sentence accords with the Sentencing Commission’s guidelines and policy statements. (2) Later Motion. The court may consider a government motion to reduce a sentence made more than one year after sentencing if the defendant’s substantial assistance involved information not known to the defendant until more than one year after sentencing. (3) Evaluating Substantial Assistance. In evaluating whether the defendant has provided substantial assistance, the court may consider the defendant’s presentence assistance. (4) Below Statutory Minimum. When acting under Rule 35(b), the court may reduce the sentence to a level below the minimum sentence established by statute.
(c) Correction of Sentence by Sentencing Court. The court, acting within 7 days after the imposition of sentence, may correct a sentence that was imposed as the result of arithmetical, technical, or other clear error.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 35 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

The Committee deleted current Rule 35(a) (Correction on Remand). Congress added that rule, which currently addresses the issue of the district court's actions following a remand on the issue of sentencing, in the Sentencing Reform Act of 1984, Pub. L. No. 98-473. The rule cross-references 18 U.S.C. § 3742, also enacted in 1984, which provides detailed guidance on the various options available to the appellate courts in addressing sentencing errors. In reviewing both provisions, the Committee concluded that Rule 35(a) was no longer needed. First, the statute clearly covers the subject matter, and second, it is not necessary to address an issue that would be very clear to a district court following a decision by a court of appeals.

In the place of current Rule 35(a), the Committee has inserted a definition of sentencing, to indicate that for the purposes of Rule 35, "sentencing" means the entry of the judgment. In the current version of Rule 35(c), the sentencing court is authorized to correct errors in the sentence if the correction is made within seven days of the imposition of the sentence. Although the term "imposition of sentence" was not defined in the rule, the courts that addressed the issue were split. The majority view was that the term meant the oral announcement of the sentence and the minority view was that it meant the entry of the judgment. See United States v. Aguirre, 214 F.3d 1122, 1124-25 (9th Cir. 2000) (discussion of Rule 35(c) and citing cases). The Committee was persuaded that the more appropriate term in the context of Rule 35, was the term "sentencing" and that it should be defined as the point when judgment is entered. Although the Committee recognizes that the amendment may cause a change in practice (at least in those circuits that read current Rule 35(c) to mean the oral announcement of the sentence) that approach makes Rule 35 consistent with other rules, including the Rules of Appellate Procedure, which treat the entry of the judgment as the triggering event for appellate timetables.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication is to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 35 was one of those rules. Another version of Rule 35, which includes a substantive change, is presented in the "substantive" package.

Rule 36. Clerical Mistakes.

Clerical mistakes in judgments, orders, or other parts of the record and errors in the record arising from oversight or omission may be corrected by the court at any time and after such notice, if any, as the court orders.

Rule 36. Clerical Error

After giving any notice it considers appropriate, the court may at any time correct a clerical error in a judgment, order, or other part of the record, or correct an error in the record arising from oversight or omission.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 36 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

VIII. APPEAL
Rule 37. Taking Appeal. [Abrogated 1968.]	Rule 37. [Reserved]

Rule 38. Stay of Execution	Rule 38. Staying a Sentence or a Disability
(a) Stay of Execution. A sentence of death shall be stayed if an appeal is taken from the conviction or sentence.	(a) Death Sentence. The court must stay a death sentence if the defendant appeals the conviction or sentence.
(b) Imprisonment. A sentence of imprisonment shall be stayed if an appeal is taken from the conviction or sentence and the defendant is released pending disposition of appeal pursuant to Rule 9(b) of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure. If not stayed, the court may recommend to the Attorney General that the defendant be retained at, or transferred to, a place of confinement near the place of trial or the place where an appeal is to be heard, for a period reasonably necessary to permit the defendant to assist in the preparation of an appeal to the court of appeals.	(b) Imprisonment. (1) Stay Granted. If the defendant is released pending appeal, the court must stay a sentence of imprisonment. (2) Stay Denied; Place of Confinement. If the defendant is not released pending appeal, the court may recommend to the Attorney General that the defendant be confined near the place of the trial or appeal for a period reasonably necessary to permit the defendant to assist in preparing the appeal.
(c) Fine. A sentence to pay a fine or a fine and costs, if an appeal is taken, may be stayed by the district court or by the court of appeals upon such terms as the court deems proper. The court may require the defendant pending appeal to deposit the whole or any part of the fine and costs in the registry of the district court, or to give bond for the payment thereof, or to submit to an examination of assets, and it may make any appropriate order to restrain the defendant from dissipating such defendant's assets.	(c) Fine. If the defendant appeals, the district court, or the court of appeals under Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 8, may stay a sentence to pay a fine or a fine and costs. The court may stay the sentence on any terms considered appropriate and may require the defendant to: (1) deposit all or part of the fine and costs into the district court's registry pending appeal; (2) post a bond to pay the fine and costs; or (3) submit to an examination concerning the defendant's assets and, if appropriate, order the defendant to refrain from dissipating assets.
(d) Probation. A sentence of probation may be stayed if an appeal from the conviction or sentence is taken. If the sentence is stayed, the court shall fix the terms of the stay.	(d) Probation. If the defendant appeals, the court may stay a sentence of probation. The court must set the terms of any stay.

(e) Notice to Victims and Restitution. A sanction imposed as part of the sentence pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3555 or 3556 may, if an appeal of the conviction or sentence is taken, be stayed by the district court or by the court of appeals upon such terms as the court finds appropriate. The court may issue such orders as may be reasonably necessary to ensure compliance with the sanction upon disposition of the appeal, including the entering of a restraining order or an injunction or requiring a deposit in whole or in part of the monetary amount involved into the registry of the district court or execution of a performance bond.

(e) Restitution and Notice to Victims.

- (1) In General. If the defendant appeals, the district court, or the court of appeals under Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 8, may stay — on any terms considered appropriate — any sentence providing for restitution under 18 U.S.C. § 3556 or notice under 18 U.S.C. § 3555.
- (2) Ensuring Compliance. The court may issue any order reasonably necessary to ensure compliance with a restitution order or notice after disposition of an appeal, including:
 - (A) a restraining order;
 - (B) an injunction;
 - (C) an order requiring the defendant to deposit all or part of any monetary restitution into the district court's registry; or
 - (D) an order requiring the defendant to post a bond.

(f) Disabilities. A civil or employment disability arising under a Federal statute by reason of the defendant's conviction or sentence may, if an appeal is taken, be stayed by the district court or by the court of appeals upon such terms as the court finds appropriate. The court may enter a restraining order or an injunction, or take any other action that may be reasonably necessary to protect the interest represented by the disability pending disposition of the appeal.

(f) Forfeiture. A stay of a forfeiture order is governed by Rule 32.2(d).

(g) Disability. If the defendant's conviction or sentence creates a civil or employment disability under federal law, the district court, or the court of appeals under Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 8, may stay the disability pending appeal on any terms considered appropriate. The court may issue any order reasonably necessary to protect the interest represented by the disability pending appeal, including a restraining order or an injunction.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 38 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

The reference to Appellate Rule 9(b) is deleted. The Committee believed that the reference was unnecessary and its deletion was not intended to be substantive in nature.

IX. SUPPLEMENTARY AND SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS	TITLE VIII. SUPPLEMENTARY AND SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS
Rule 40. Commitment to Another District	Rule 40. Arrest for Failing to Appear in Another District
(a) Appearance Before Federal Magistrate Judge. If a person is arrested in a district other than that in which the offense is alleged to have been committed, that person shall be taken without unnecessary delay before the nearest available federal magistrate judge, in accordance with the provisions of Rule 5. Preliminary proceedings concerning the defendant shall be conducted in accordance with Rules 5 and 5.1, except that if no preliminary examination is held because an indictment has been returned or an information filed or because the defendant elects to have the preliminary hearing conducted in the district in which the prosecution is pending, the person shall be held to answer upon a finding that such person is the person named in the indictment, information, or warrant. If held to answer, the defendant shall be held to answer in the district court in which the prosecution is pending — provided that a warrant is issued in that district if the arrest was made without a warrant — upon production of the warrant or a certified copy thereof. The warrant or certified copy may be produced by facsimile transmission.	(a) In General. If a person is arrested under a warrant issued in another district for failing to appear — as required by the terms of that person’s release under 18 U.S.C. §§ 3141-3156 or by a subpoena — the person must be taken without unnecessary delay before a magistrate judge in the district of the arrest. (b) Proceedings. The judge must proceed under Rule 5(c)(3) as applicable. (c) Release or Detention Order. The judge may modify any previous release or detention order issued in another district, but must state in writing the reasons for doing so.
(b) Statement by Federal Magistrate Judge. In addition to the statements required by Rule 5, the federal magistrate judge shall inform the defendant of the provisions of Rule 20.
(c) Papers. If a defendant is held or discharged, the papers in the proceeding and any bail taken shall be transmitted to the clerk of the district court in which the prosecution is pending.

(d) Arrest of Probationer or Supervised Releasee. If a person is arrested for a violation of probation or supervised release in a district other than the district having jurisdiction, such person must be taken without unnecessary delay before the nearest available federal magistrate judge. The person may be released under Rule 46(c). The federal magistrate judge shall:

(1) Proceed under Rule 32.1 if jurisdiction over the person is transferred to that district;

(2) Hold a prompt preliminary hearing if the alleged violation occurred in that district, and either (i) hold the person to answer in the district court of the district having jurisdiction or (ii) dismiss the proceedings and so notify the court; or

(3) Otherwise order the person held to answer in the district court of the district having jurisdiction upon production of certified copies of the judgment, the warrant, and the application for the warrant, and upon a finding that the person before the magistrate judge is the person named in the warrant.

(e) Arrest for Failure to Appear. If a person is arrested on a warrant in a district other than that in which the warrant was issued, and the warrant was issued because of the failure of the person named therein to appear as required pursuant to a subpoena or the terms of that person's release, the person arrested must be taken without unnecessary delay before the nearest available federal magistrate judge. Upon production of the warrant or a certified copy thereof and a finding that the person before the magistrate judge is the person named in the warrant, the federal magistrate judge shall hold the person to answer in the district in which the warrant was issued.

(f) Release or Detention. If a person was previously detained or conditionally released, pursuant to chapter 207 of title 18, United States Code, in another district where a warrant, information, or indictment issued, the federal magistrate judge shall take into account the decision previously made and the reasons set forth therefor, if any, but will not be bound by that decision. If the federal magistrate judge amends the release or detention decision or alters the conditions of release, the magistrate judge shall set forth the reasons therefor in writing.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 40 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 40 has been completely revised. The Committee believed that it would be much clearer and more helpful to locate portions of Rule 40 in Rules 5 (initial appearances), 5.1 (preliminary hearings), and 32.1 (revocation or modification of probation or supervised release). Accordingly, current Rule 40(a) has been relocated in Rules 5 and 5.1. Current Rule 40(b) has been relocated in Rule 5(c)(2)(B) and current Rule 40(c) has been moved to Rule 5(c)(2)(F).

Current Rule 40(d) has been relocated in Rule 32.1(a)(5). The first sentence of current Rule 40(e) is now located in revised Rule 40(a). The second sentence of current Rule 40(e) is now in revised Rule 40(b) and current Rule 40(f) is revised Rule 40(c).

Rule 41. Search and Seizure	Rule 41. Search and Seizure
(a) Authority to Issue Warrant. Upon the request of a federal law enforcement officer or an attorney for the government, a search warrant authorized by this rule may be issued (1) by a federal magistrate judge, or a state court of record within the federal district, for a search of property or for a person within the district and (2) by a federal magistrate judge for a search of property or for a person either within or outside the district if the property or person is within the district when the warrant is sought but might move outside the district before the warrant is executed.	(a) Scope and Definitions. (1) Scope. This rule does not modify any statute regulating search or seizure, or the issuance and execution of a search warrant in special circumstances.
	(2) Definitions. The following definitions apply under this rule: (A) “Property” includes documents, books, papers, any other tangible objects, and information. (B) “Daytime” means the hours between 6:00 a.m. and 10:00 p.m. according to local time. (C) “Federal law enforcement officer” means a government agent (other than an attorney for the government) who is engaged in enforcing the criminal laws and is within any category of officers authorized by the Attorney General to request a search warrant.

	(b) Authority to Issue a Warrant. At the request of a federal law enforcement officer or an attorney for the government: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) a magistrate judge with authority in the district — or if none is reasonably available, a judge of a state court of record in the district — has authority to issue a warrant to search for and seize a person or property located within the district; and (2) a magistrate judge with authority in the district has authority to issue a warrant for a person or property outside the district if the person or property is located within the district when the warrant is issued but might move or be moved outside the district before the warrant is executed.
(b) Property or Persons Which May be Seized With a Warrant. A warrant may be issued under this rule to search for and seize any (1) property that constitutes evidence of the commission of a criminal offense; or (2) contraband, the fruits of the crime, or things otherwise criminally possessed; or (3) property designed or intended for use or which has been used as the means of committing a criminal offense; or (4) person for whose arrest there is probable cause, or who is unlawfully restrained.	(c) Persons or Property Subject to Search or Seizure. A warrant may be issued for any of the following: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) evidence of a crime; (2) contraband, fruits of crime, or other items illegally possessed; (3) property designed for use, intended for use, or used in committing a crime; or (4) a person to be arrested or a person who is unlawfully restrained.

(c) Issuance and Contents.

(1) Warrant Upon Affidavit. A warrant other than a warrant upon oral testimony under paragraph (2) of this subdivision shall issue only on an affidavit or affidavits sworn to before the federal magistrate judge or state judge and establishing grounds for issuing the warrant. If the federal magistrate judge or state judge is satisfied that the grounds for the application exist or that there is probable cause to believe that they exist, that magistrate judge or state judge shall issue a warrant identifying the property or person to be seized and naming or describing the person or place to be searched. The finding of probable cause may be based upon hearsay evidence in whole or in part. Before ruling on a request for a warrant the federal magistrate judge or state judge may require the affiant to appear personally and may examine under oath the affiant and any witnesses the affiant may produce, provided that such proceeding shall be taken down by a court reporter or recording equipment and made part of the affidavit.

(d) Obtaining a Warrant.

- (1) Probable Cause. After receiving an affidavit or other information, a magistrate judge or a judge of a state court of record must issue the warrant if there is probable cause to search for and seize a person or property under Rule 41(c).
- (2) Requesting a Warrant in the Presence of a Judge.
 - (A) Warrant on an Affidavit. When a federal law enforcement officer or an attorney for the government presents an affidavit in support of a warrant, the judge may require the affiant to appear personally and may examine under oath the affiant and any witness the affiant produces.
 - (B) Warrant on Sworn Testimony. The judge may wholly or partially dispense with a written affidavit and base a warrant on sworn testimony if doing so is reasonable under the circumstances.
 - (C) Recording Testimony. Testimony taken in support of a warrant must be recorded by a court reporter or by a suitable recording device, and the judge must file the transcript or recording with the clerk, along with any affidavit.

The warrant shall be directed to a civil officer of the United States authorized to enforce or assist in enforcing any law thereof or to a person so authorized by the President of the United States.

It shall command the officer to search, within a specified period of time not to exceed 10 days, the person or place named for the property or person specified. The warrant shall be served in the daytime, unless the issuing authority, by appropriate provision in the warrant, and for reasonable cause shown, authorized its execution at times other than daytime. It shall designate a federal magistrate judge to whom it shall be returned.

(2) Warrant Upon Oral Testimony.

(A) General Rule. If the circumstances make it reasonable to dispense, in whole or in part, with a written affidavit, a Federal magistrate judge may issue a warrant based upon sworn testimony communicated by telephone or other appropriate means, including facsimile transmission.

(B) Application. The person who is requesting the warrant shall prepare a document to be known as a duplicate original warrant and shall read such duplicate original warrant, verbatim, to the Federal magistrate judge. The Federal magistrate judge shall enter, verbatim, what is so read to such magistrate judge on a document to be known as the original warrant. The Federal magistrate judge may direct that the warrant be modified.

(C) Issuance. If the Federal magistrate judge is satisfied that the circumstances are such as to make it reasonable to dispense with a written affidavit and that the grounds for the application exist or that there is probable cause to believe that they exist, the Federal magistrate judge shall order the issuance of a warrant by directing the person requesting the warrant to sign the Federal magistrate judge's name on the duplicate original warrant. The Federal magistrate judge shall immediately sign the original warrant and enter on the face of the original warrant the exact time when the warrant was ordered to be issued. The finding of probable cause for a warrant upon oral testimony may be based on the same kind of evidence as is sufficient for a warrant upon affidavit.

(3) Requesting a Warrant by Telephonic or Other Means.

(A) In General. A magistrate judge may issue a warrant based on information communicated by telephone or other appropriate means, including facsimile transmission.

(B) Recording Testimony. Upon learning that an applicant is requesting a warrant, a magistrate judge must:

- (i) place under oath the applicant and any person on whose testimony the application is based; and
- (ii) make a verbatim record of the conversation with a suitable recording device, if available, or by a court reporter, or in writing.

(D) Recording and Certification of Testimony. When a caller informs the Federal magistrate judge that the purpose of the call is to request a warrant, the Federal magistrate judge shall immediately place under oath each person whose testimony forms a basis of the application and each person applying for that warrant. If a voice recording device is available, the Federal magistrate judge shall record by means of such device all of the call after the caller informs the Federal magistrate judge that the purpose of the call is to request a warrant. Otherwise a stenographic or longhand verbatim record shall be made. If a voice recording device is used or a stenographic record made, the Federal magistrate judge shall have the record transcribed, shall certify the accuracy of the transcription, and shall file a copy of the original record and the transcription with the court. If a longhand verbatim record is made, the Federal magistrate judge shall file a signed copy with the court.

(E) Contents. The contents of a warrant upon oral testimony shall be the same as the contents of a warrant upon affidavit.

(C) Certifying Testimony. The magistrate judge must have any recording or court reporter's notes transcribed, certify the transcription's accuracy, and file a copy of the record and the transcription with the clerk. Any written verbatim record must be signed by the magistrate judge and filed with the clerk.

(D) Suppression Limited. Absent a finding of bad faith, evidence obtained from a warrant issued under Rule 41(d)(3)(A) is not subject to suppression on the ground that issuing the warrant in that manner was unreasonable under the circumstances.

(e) Issuing the Warrant.

(1) In General. The magistrate judge or a judge of a state court of record must issue the warrant to an officer authorized to execute it.

(2) Contents of the Warrant. The warrant must identify the person or property to be searched, identify any person or property to be seized, and designate the magistrate judge to whom it must be returned. The warrant must command the officer to:

- (A) execute the warrant within a specified time no longer than 10 days;
- (B) execute the warrant during the daytime, unless the judge for good cause expressly authorizes execution at another time; and
- (C) return the warrant to the magistrate judge designated in the warrant.

(F) Additional Rule for Execution. The person who executes the warrant shall enter the exact time of execution on the face of the duplicate original warrant.

(3) Warrant by Telephonic or Other Means. If a magistrate judge decides to proceed under Rule 41(d)(3)(A), the following additional procedures apply:

- (A) Preparing a Proposed Duplicate Original Warrant. The applicant must prepare a "proposed duplicate original warrant" and must read or otherwise transmit the contents of that document verbatim to the magistrate judge.
- (B) Preparing an Original Warrant. The magistrate judge must enter the contents of the proposed duplicate original warrant into an original warrant.
- (C) Modifications. The magistrate judge may direct the applicant to modify the proposed duplicate original warrant. In that case, the judge must also modify the original warrant.

(G) Motion to Suppress Precluded. Absent a finding of bad faith, evidence obtained pursuant to a warrant issued under this paragraph is not subject to a motion to suppress on the ground that the circumstances were not such as to make it reasonable to dispense with a written affidavit.

(D) Signing the Original Warrant and the Duplicate Original Warrant. Upon determining to issue the warrant, the magistrate judge must immediately sign the original warrant, enter on its face the exact time it is issued, and direct the applicant to sign the judge's name on the duplicate original warrant.

(d) Execution and Return with Inventory. The officer taking property under the warrant shall give to the person from whom or from whose premises the property was taken a copy of the warrant and a receipt for the property taken or shall leave the copy and receipt at the place from which the property was taken.

(f) Executing and Returning the Warrant.

- (1) *Noting the Time. The officer executing the warrant must enter on its face the exact date and time it is executed.
- (2) *Inventory. An officer present during the execution of the warrant must prepare and verify an inventory of any property seized. The officer must do so in the presence of another officer and the person from whom, or from whose premises, the property was taken. If either one is not present, the officer must prepare and verify the inventory in the presence of at least one other credible person.
- (3) *Receipt. The officer executing the warrant must:
 - (A) give a copy of the warrant and a receipt for the property taken to the person from whom, or from whose premises, the property was taken; or
 - (B) leave a copy of the warrant and receipt at the place where the officer took the property.

The return shall be made promptly and shall be accompanied by a written inventory of any property taken. The inventory shall be made in the presence of the applicant for the warrant and the person from whose possession or premises the property was taken, if they are present, or in the presence of at least one credible person other than the applicant for the warrant or the person from whose possession or premises the property was taken, and shall be verified by the officer. The federal magistrate judge shall upon request deliver a copy of the inventory to the person from whom or from whose premises the property was taken and to the applicant for the warrant.

- (4) *Return. The officer executing the warrant must promptly return it — together with a copy of the inventory — to the magistrate judge designated on the warrant. The judge must, on request, give a copy of the inventory to the person from whom, or from whose premises, the property was taken and to the applicant for the warrant.

(e) Motion for Return of Property. A person aggrieved by an unlawful search and seizure or by the deprivation of property may move the district court for the district in which the property was seized for the return of the property on the ground that such person is entitled to lawful possession of the property. The court shall receive evidence on any issue of fact necessary to the decision of the motion. If the motion is granted, the property shall be returned to the movant, although reasonable conditions may be imposed to protect access and use of the property in subsequent proceedings. If a motion for return of property is made or comes on for hearing in the district of trial after an indictment or information is filed, it shall be treated also as a motion to suppress under Rule 12.	(g) Motion to Return Property. A person aggrieved by an unlawful search and seizure of property or by the deprivation of property may move for the property's return. The motion must be filed in the district where the property was seized. The court must receive evidence on any factual issue necessary to decide the motion. If it grants the motion, the court must return the property to the movant, but may impose reasonable conditions to protect access to the property and its use in later proceedings.
(f) Motion to Suppress. A motion to suppress evidence may be made in the court of the district of trial as provided in Rule 12.	(h) Motion to Suppress. A defendant may move to suppress evidence in the court where the trial will occur, as Rule 12 provides.
(g) Return of Papers to Clerk. The federal magistrate judge before whom the warrant is returned shall attach to the warrant a copy of the return, inventory and all other papers in connection therewith and shall file them with the clerk of the district court for the district in which the property was seized.	(i) Forwarding Papers to the Clerk. The magistrate judge to whom the warrant is returned must attach to the warrant a copy of the return, of the inventory, and of all other related papers and must deliver them to the clerk in the district where the property was seized.
(h) Scope and Definitions. This rule does not modify any act, inconsistent with it, regulating search, seizure and the issuance and execution of search warrants in circumstances for which special provision is made. The term "property" is used in this rule to include documents, books, papers and any other tangible objects. The term "daytime" is used in this rule mean hours from 6:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. according to local time. The phrase "federal law enforcement officer" is used in this rule to mean any government agent, other than an attorney for the government as defined in Rule 54(c), who is engaged in the enforcement of the criminal laws and is within any category of officers authorized by the Attorney General to request the issuance of a search warrant.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 41 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as otherwise noted below. Rule 41 has been completely reorganized to make it easier to read and apply its key provisions.

Current Rule 41(c)(1), which refers to the fact that hearsay evidence may be used to support probable cause, has been deleted. That language was added to the rule in 1972, apparently to reflect emerging federal case law. See Advisory Committee Note to 1972 Amendments to Rule 41 (citing cases). Similar language was added to Rule 4 in 1974. In the intervening years, however, the case law has become perfectly clear on that proposition. Thus, the Committee believed that the reference to hearsay was no longer necessary. Furthermore, the limited reference to hearsay evidence was misleading to the extent that it might have suggested that other forms of inadmissible evidence could not be considered. For example, the rule made no reference to considering a defendant's prior criminal record, which clearly may be considered in deciding whether probable cause exists. See, e.g., Brinegar v. United States, 338 U.S. 160 (1949) (officer's knowledge of defendant's prior criminal activity). Rather than address that issue, or any other similar issues, the Committee believed that the matter was best addressed in Rule 1101(d)(3), Federal Rules of Evidence. That rule explicitly provides that the Federal Rules of Evidence do not apply to "preliminary examinations in criminal cases, . . . issuance of warrants for arrest, criminal summonses, and search warrants . . ." The Advisory Committee Note accompanying that rule recognizes that: "The nature of the proceedings makes application of the formal rules of evidence inappropriate and impracticable." The Committee did not intend to make any substantive changes in practice by deleting the reference to hearsay evidence.

Current Rule 41(d) provides that the officer taking the property under the warrant must provide a receipt for the property and complete an inventory. The revised rule indicates that the inventory may be completed by an officer present during the execution of the warrant, and not necessarily the officer actually executing the warrant.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication is to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 41 is one of those rules. Another version of Rule 41, which includes a substantive change that would permit a judge to issue a warrant for a covert entry for purposes of noncontinuous observation, is being published simultaneously in a separate pamphlet.

Rule 42. Criminal Contempt	Rule 42. Criminal Contempt
(b) Disposition Upon Notice and Hearing. A criminal contempt except as provided in subdivision (a) of this rule shall be prosecuted on notice. The notice shall state the time and place of hearing, allowing a reasonable time for the preparation of the defense, and shall state the essential facts constituting the criminal contempt charged and describe it as such. The notice shall be given orally by the judge in open court in the presence of the defendant or, on application of the United States attorney or of an attorney appointed by the court for that purpose, by an order to show cause or an order of arrest. The defendant is entitled to a trial by jury in any case in which an act of Congress so provides. The defendant is entitled to admission to bail as provided in these rules. If the contempt charged involves disrespect to or criticism of a judge, that judge is disqualified from presiding at the trial or hearing except with the defendant's consent. Upon a verdict or finding of guilt the court shall enter an order fixing the punishment.	(a) Disposition After Notice. Any person who commits criminal contempt may be punished for that contempt after prosecution on notice. (1) Notice. The court must give the person notice in open court, in an order to show cause, or in an arrest order. The notice must: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (A) state the time and place of the trial; (B) allow the defendant a reasonable time to prepare a defense; and (C) state the essential facts constituting the charged criminal contempt and describe it as such. (2) Appointing a Prosecutor. The court must request that the contempt be prosecuted by an attorney for the government, unless the interest of justice requires the appointment of another attorney. If the government declines the request, the court must appoint another attorney to prosecute the contempt. (3) Trial and Disposition. A person being prosecuted for criminal contempt is entitled to a jury trial in any case in which federal law so provides and must be released or detained as Rule 46 provides. If the criminal contempt involves disrespect toward or criticism of a judge, that judge is disqualified from presiding at the contempt trial or hearing unless the defendant consents. Upon a finding or verdict of guilty, the court must impose the punishment.
(a) Summary Disposition. A criminal contempt may be punished summarily if the judge certifies that the judge saw or heard the conduct constituting the contempt and that it was committed in the actual presence of the court. The order of contempt shall recite the facts and shall be signed by the judge and entered of record.	(b) Summary Disposition. Notwithstanding any other provision of these rules, the court (other than a magistrate judge) may summarily punish a person who commits criminal contempt in its presence if the judge saw or heard the contemptuous conduct and so certifies; a magistrate judge may summarily punish a person as provided in 28 U.S.C. § 636(e). The contempt order must recite the facts, be signed by the judge, and be filed with the clerk.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 42 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

The revised rule is intended to more clearly set out the procedures for conducting a criminal contempt proceeding. The current rule implicitly recognizes that an attorney for the government may be involved in the prosecution of such cases. Revised Rule 42(a)(2) now explicitly addresses the appointment of a "prosecutor" and adopts language to reflect the holding in Young v. United States ex rel. Vuitton, 481 U.S. 787 (1987). In that case the Supreme Court indicated that ordinarily the court should request that an attorney for the government prosecute the contempt; only if that request is denied, should the court appoint a private prosecutor. The rule envisions that a disinterested counsel should be appointed to prosecute the contempt.

Rule 42(b) has been amended to make it clear that a court may summarily punish a person for committing contempt in the court's presence without regard to whether other rules, such as Rule 32 (sentencing procedures), might otherwise apply. See, e.g., United States v. Martin-Trigona, 759 F.2d 1017 (2d Cir. 1985). Further, Rule 42(b) has been amended to recognize the contempt powers of a court (other than a magistrate judge) and a magistrate judge.

X. GENERAL PROVISIONS	TITLE IX. GENERAL PROVISIONS
Rule 43. Presence of the Defendant	Rule 43. Defendant's Presence
(a) Presence Required. The defendant shall be present at the arraignment, at the time of the plea, at every stage of the trial including the impaneling of the jury and the return of the verdict, and at the imposition of sentence, except as otherwise provided by this rule.	(a) When Required. Unless this rule provides otherwise, the defendant must be present at: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) the initial appearance, the arraignment, and the plea; (2) every trial stage, including jury impanelment and the return of the verdict; and (3) sentencing.
(b) Continued Presence Not Required. The further progress of the trial to and including the return of the verdict, and the imposition of sentence, will not be prevented and the defendant will be considered to have waived the right to be present whenever a defendant, initially present at trial, or having pleaded guilty or nolo contendere, <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) is voluntarily absent after the trial has commenced (whether or not the defendant has been informed by the court of the obligation to remain during the trial), (2) in a noncapital case, is voluntarily absent at the imposition of sentence, or (3) after being warned by the court that disruptive conduct will cause the removal of the defendant from the courtroom, persists in conduct which is such as to justify exclusion from the courtroom. 	(b) When Not Required. A defendant need not be present under any of the following circumstances: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) Organizational Defendant. The defendant is an organization represented by counsel who is present. (2) Misdemeanor Offense. The offense is punishable by fine or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, and with the defendant's written consent, the court permits arraignment, plea, trial, and sentencing to occur in the defendant's absence. (3) Conference or Hearing on a Legal Question. The proceeding involves only a conference or hearing on a question of law. (4) Sentence Correction. The proceeding involves the correction or reduction of sentence under Rule 35 or 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c).

(c) Presence Not Required. A defendant need not be present:

(1) when represented by counsel and the defendant is an organization, as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 18;

(2) when the offense is punishable by fine or by imprisonment for not more than one year or both, and the court, with the written consent of the defendant, permits arraignment, plea, trial, and imposition of sentence in the defendant's absence;

(3) when the proceeding involves only a conference or hearing upon a question of law; or

(4) when the proceeding involves a reduction or correction of sentence under Rule 35(b) or (c) or 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c).

(c) Waiving Continued Presence.

(1) In General. A defendant who was initially present at trial, or who had pleaded guilty or nolo contendere, waives the right to be present under the following circumstances:

(A) when the defendant is voluntarily absent after the trial has begun, regardless of whether the court informed the defendant of an obligation to remain during trial;

(B) in a noncapital case, when the defendant is voluntarily absent during sentencing; or

(C) when the court warns the defendant that it will remove the defendant from the courtroom for disruptive behavior, but the defendant persists in conduct that justifies removal from the courtroom.

(2) Waiver's Effect. If the defendant waives the right to be present, the trial may proceed to completion, including the verdict's return and sentencing, during the defendant's absence.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 43 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication is to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 43 was one of those rules. Another version of Rule 43, which recognizes that the proposed Rules 5 and 10 would authorize video teleconferencing of certain proceedings, is included in the "substantive" package.

Rule 44. Right to and Assignment of Counsel	Rule 44. Right to and Appointment of Counsel
(a) Right to Assigned Counsel. Every defendant who is unable to obtain counsel shall be entitled to have counsel assigned to represent that defendant at every stage of the proceedings from initial appearance before the federal magistrate judge or the court through appeal, unless the defendant waives such appointment.	(a) Right to Appointed Counsel. A defendant who is unable to obtain counsel is entitled to have counsel appointed to represent the defendant at every stage of the proceeding from initial appearance through appeal, unless the defendant waives this right.
(b) Assignment Procedure. The procedures for implementing the right set out in subdivision (a) shall be those provided by law and by local rules of court established pursuant thereto.	(b) Appointment Procedure. Federal law and local court rules govern the procedure for implementing the right to counsel.
(c) Joint Representation. Whenever two or more defendants have been jointly charged pursuant to Rule 8(b) or have been joined for trial pursuant to Rule 13, and are represented by the same retained or assigned counsel or by retained or assigned counsel who are associated in the practice of law, the court shall promptly inquire with respect to such joint representation and shall personally advise each defendant of the right to the effective assistance of counsel, including separate representation. Unless it appears that there is good cause to believe no conflict of interest is likely to arise, the court shall take such measures as may be appropriate to protect each defendant's right to counsel.	(c) Inquiry Into Joint Representation. (1) Joint Representation. Joint representation occurs when: (A) two or more defendants have been charged jointly under Rule 8(b) or have been joined for trial under Rule 13; and (B) the defendants are represented by the same counsel, or counsel who are associated in law practice. (2) Court's Responsibilities in Cases of Joint Representation. The court must promptly inquire about the propriety of joint representation and must personally advise each defendant of the right to the effective assistance of counsel, including separate representation. Unless there is good cause to believe that no conflict of interest is likely to arise, the court must take appropriate measures to protect each defendant's right to counsel.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 44 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Revised Rule 44 now refers to the "appointment" of counsel, rather than the assignment of counsel; the Committee believed the former term was more appropriate. See 18 U.S.C. § 3006A. In Rule 44(c), the term "retained or assigned" has been deleted as being unnecessary, without changing the court's responsibility to conduct an inquiry where joint representation occurs.

Rule 45. Time

(a) Computation. In computing any period of time the day of the act or event from which the designated period of time begins to run shall not be included. The last day of the period so computed shall be included, unless it is a Saturday, a Sunday, or a legal holiday, or, when the act to be done is the filing of some paper in court, a day on which weather or other conditions have made the office of the clerk of the district court inaccessible, in which event the period runs until the end of the next day which is not one of the aforementioned days. When a period of time prescribed or allowed is less than 11 days, intermediate Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays shall be excluded in the computation. As used in these rules, "legal holiday" includes New Year's Day, Birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr., Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Columbus Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day, and any other day appointed as a holiday by the President or the Congress of the United States, or by the state in which the district court is held.

Rule 45. Computing and Extending Time

- (a) Computing Time. The following rules apply in computing any period of time specified in these rules, any local rule, or any court order:
- (1) Day of the Event Excluded. Exclude the day of the act, event, or default that begins the period.
 - (2) Exclusion from Brief Periods. Exclude intermediate Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays when the period is less than 11 days.
 - (3) Last Day. Include the last day of the period unless it is a Saturday, Sunday, legal holiday, or day on which weather or other conditions make the clerk's office inaccessible. When the last day is excluded, the period runs until the end of the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, legal holiday, or day when the clerk's office is inaccessible.
 - (4) "Legal Holiday" Defined. As used in this rule, "legal holiday" means the day set aside by statute for observing:
 - (A) New Year's Day;
 - (B) Martin Luther King, Jr.'s Birthday;
 - (C) Washington's Birthday;
 - (D) Memorial Day;
 - (E) Independence Day;
 - (F) Labor Day;
 - (G) Columbus Day;
 - (H) Veterans' Day;
 - (I) Thanksgiving Day; and
 - (J) Christmas Day.
 - (K) "Legal holiday" also includes any other day declared a holiday by the President, the Congress, or the state where the district court is held.

(b) Enlargement. When an act is required or allowed to be done at or within a specified time, the court for cause shown may at any time in its discretion (1) with or without motion or notice, order the period enlarged if request therefor is made before the expiration of the period originally prescribed or as extended by a previous order or (2) upon motion made after the expiration of the specified period permit the act to be done if the failure to act was the result of excusable neglect; but the court may not extend the time for taking any action under Rules 29, 33, 34 and 35, except to the extent and under the conditions stated in them.	(b) Extending Time. (1) In General. When an act must or may be done within a specified period, the court on its own may extend the time, or for good cause may do so on a party's motion made: (A) before the originally prescribed or previously extended time expires; or (B) after the time expires if the party failed to act because of excusable neglect. (2) Exceptions. The court may not extend the time to take any action under Rules 29, 33, 34, and 35, except as stated in those rules.
[(c) Unaffected by Expiration of Term.] Rescinded Feb. 28, 1966, eff. July 1, 1966.
(d) For Motions; Affidavits. A written motion, other than one which may be heard ex parte, and notice of the hearing thereof shall be served not later than 5 days before the time specified for the hearing unless a different period is fixed by rule or order of the court. For cause shown such an order may be made on ex parte application. When a motion is supported by an affidavit, the affidavit shall be served with the motion; and opposing affidavits may be served not less than 1 day before the hearing unless the court permits them to be served at a later time.
(e) Additional Time After Service by Mail. Whenever a party has the right or is required to do an act within a prescribed period after the service of a notice or other paper upon that party and the notice or other paper is served by mail, 3 days shall be added to the prescribed period.	(c) Additional Time After Service. When these rules permit or require a party to act within a specified period after a notice or a paper has been served on that party, 3 days are added to the period if service occurs in the manner provided under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 5(b)(2)(B), (C), or (D).

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 45 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

The additional three days provided by Rule 45(c) is extended to the means of service authorized by the new paragraph (D) added to Rule 5(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including — with the consent of the person served — service by electronic means. The means of service authorized in civil actions apply to criminal cases under Rule 49 (b).

Rule 45(d), which governs the timing of written motions and affidavits, has been moved to Rule 47.

Rule 46. Release from Custody	Rule 46. Release from Custody; Supervising Detention
(a) Release Prior to Trial. Eligibility for release prior to trial shall be in accordance with 18 U.S.C. §§ 3142 and 3144.	(a) Before Trial. The provisions of 18 U.S.C. §§ 3142 and 3144 govern pretrial release.
(b) Release During Trial. A person released before trial shall continue on release during trial under the same terms and conditions as were previously imposed unless the court determines that other terms and conditions or termination of release are necessary to assure such person's presence during the trial or to assure that such person's conduct will not obstruct the orderly and expeditious progress of the trial.	(b) During Trial. A person released before trial continues on release during trial under the same terms and conditions. But the court may order different terms and conditions or terminate the release if necessary to ensure that the person will be present during trial or that the person's conduct will not obstruct the orderly and expeditious progress of the trial.
(c) Pending Sentence and Notice of Appeal. Eligibility for release pending sentence or pending notice of appeal or expiration of the time allowed for filing notice of appeal, shall be in accordance with 18 U.S.C. § 3143. The burden of establishing that the defendant will not flee or pose a danger to any other person or to the community rests with the defendant.	(c) Pending Sentencing or Appeal. The provisions of 18 U.S.C. § 3143 govern release pending sentencing or appeal. The burden of establishing that the defendant will not flee or pose a danger to any other person or to the community rests with the defendant.
	(d) Pending Hearing on a Violation of Probation or Supervised Release. Rule 32.1(a)(6) governs release pending a hearing on a violation of probation or supervised release.
(d) Justification of Sureties. Every surety, except a corporate surety which is approved as provided by law, shall justify by affidavit and may be required to describe in the affidavit the property by which the surety proposes to justify and the encumbrances thereon, the number and amount of other bonds and undertakings for bail entered into by the surety and remaining undischarged and all the other liabilities of the surety. No bond shall be approved unless the surety thereon appears to be qualified.	(e) Surety. The court must not approve a bond unless any surety appears to be qualified. Every surety, except a legally approved corporate surety, must demonstrate by affidavit that its assets are adequate. The court may require the affidavit to describe the following: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) the property that the surety proposes to use as security; (2) any encumbrance on that property; (3) the number and amount of any other undischarged bonds and bail undertakings the surety has issued; and (4) any other liability of the surety.

(1) Declaration. If there is a breach of condition of a bond, the district court shall declare a forfeiture of the bail.

(2) Setting Aside. The court may direct that a forfeiture be set aside in whole or in part, upon such conditions as the court may impose, if a person released upon an execution of an appearance bond with a surety is subsequently surrendered by the surety into custody or if it otherwise appears that justice does not require the forfeiture.

(3) Enforcement. When a forfeiture has not been set aside, the court shall on motion enter a judgment of default and execution may issue thereon. By entering into a bond the obligors submit to the jurisdiction of the district court and irrevocably appoint the clerk of the court as their agent upon whom any papers affecting their liability may be served. Their liability may be enforced on motion without the necessity of an independent action. The motion and such notice of the motion as the court prescribes may be served on the clerk of the court, who shall forthwith mail copies to the obligors to their last known addresses.

(4) Remission. After entry of such judgment, the court may remit it in whole or in part under the conditions applying to the setting aside of forfeiture in paragraph (2) of this subdivision.

(f) Bail Forfeiture.

(1) Declaration. The court must declare the bail forfeited if a condition of the bond is breached.

(2) Setting Aside. The court may set aside in whole or in part a bail forfeiture upon any condition the court may impose if:

(A) the surety later surrenders into custody the person released on the surety's appearance bond; or

(B) it appears that justice does not require bail forfeiture.

(3) Enforcement.

(A) Default Judgment and Execution. If it does not set aside a bail forfeiture, the court must, upon the government's motion, enter a default judgment.

(B) Jurisdiction and Service. By entering into a bond, each surety submits to the district court's jurisdiction and irrevocably appoints the district clerk as its agent to receive service of any filings affecting its liability.

(C) Motion to Enforce. The court may, upon the government's motion, enforce the surety's liability without an independent action. The government must serve any motion, and notice as the court prescribes, on the district clerk. If so served, the clerk must promptly mail a copy to the surety at its last known address.

(4) Remission. After entering a judgment under Rule 46(f)(3), the court may remit in whole or in part the judgment under the same conditions specified in Rule 46(f)(2).

(f) Exoneration. When a condition of the bond has been satisfied or the forfeiture thereof has been set aside or remitted, the court shall exonerate the obligors and release any bail. A surety may be exonerated by a deposit of cash in the amount of the bond or by a timely surrender of the defendant into custody.	(g) Exoneration. The court must exonerate the surety and release any bail when a bond condition has been satisfied or when the court has set aside or remitted the forfeiture. The court must exonerate a surety who deposits cash in the amount of the bond or timely surrenders the defendant into custody.
(g) Supervision of Detention Pending Trial. The court shall exercise supervision over the detention of defendants and witnesses within the district pending trial for the purpose of eliminating all unnecessary detention. The attorney for the government shall make a biweekly report to the court listing each defendant and witness who has been held in custody pending indictment, arraignment, or trial for a period in excess of ten days. As to each witness so listed the attorney for the government shall make a statement of the reasons why such witness should not be released with or without the taking of a deposition pursuant to Rule 15(a). As to each defendant so listed the attorney for the government shall make a statement of the reasons why the defendant is still held in custody.	(h) Supervising Detention Pending Trial. (1) In General. To eliminate unnecessary detention, the court must supervise the detention within the district of any defendants awaiting trial and of any persons held as material witnesses. (2) Reports. An attorney for the government must report biweekly to the court, listing each material witness held in custody for more than 10 days pending indictment, arraignment, or trial. For each material witness listed in the report, an attorney for the government must state why the witness should not be released with or without a deposition being taken under Rule 15(a).
(h) Forfeiture of Property. Nothing in this rule or in chapter 207 of title 18, United States Code, shall prevent the court from disposing of any charge by entering an order directing forfeiture of property pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3142(c)(1)(B)(xi) if the value of the property is an amount that would be an appropriate sentence after conviction of the offense charged and if such forfeiture is authorized by statute or regulation.	(i) Forfeiture of Property. The court may dispose of a charged offense by ordering the forfeiture of 18 U.S.C. § 3142(c)(1)(B)(xi) property under 18 U.S.C. § 3146(d), if a fine in the amount of the property's value would be an appropriate sentence for the charged offense.
(i) Production of Statements. (1) In General. Rule 26.2(a)-(d) and (f) applies at a detention hearing held under 18 U.S.C. § 3142, unless the court, for good cause shown, rules otherwise in a particular case. (2) Sanctions for Failure to Produce Statement. If a party elects not to comply with an order under Rule 26.2(a) to deliver a statement to the moving party, at the detention hearing the court may not consider the testimony of a witness whose statement is withheld.	(j) Producing a Statement. (1) In General. Rule 26.2(a)-(d) and (f) applies at a detention hearing under 18 U.S.C. § 3142, unless the court for good cause rules otherwise. (2) Sanctions for Not Producing a Statement. If a party disobeys a Rule 26.2 order to produce a witness's statement, the court must not consider that witness's testimony at the detention hearing.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 46 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Although the general rule is that an appeal to a circuit court deprives the district court of jurisdiction, Rule 46(c) recognizes the apparent exception to that rule — that the district court retains jurisdiction to decide whether the defendant should be detained, even if a notice of appeal has been filed. See, e.g., United States v. Meyers, 95 F.3d 1475 (10th Cir. 1996), cert. denied, 522 U.S. 1006 (1997) (initial decision of whether to release defendant pending appeal is to be made by district court); United States v. Affleck, 765 F.2d 944 (10th Cir. 1985); Jago v. United States District Court, 570 F.2d 618 (6th Cir. 1978) (release of defendant pending appeal must first be sought in district court). See also Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 9(b) and the accompanying Committee Note.

Revised Rule 46(h) deletes the requirement that the attorney for the government file bi-weekly reports with the court concerning the status of any defendants in pretrial detention. The Committee believed that the requirement was no longer necessary in light of the Speedy Trial Act provisions, 18 U.S.C. §§ 3161, et. seq. On the other hand, the requirement that the attorney for the government file reports regarding detained material witnesses has been retained in the rule.

Rule 46(i) addresses the ability of a court to order forfeiture of property where a defendant has failed to appear as required by the court. The language in the current rule, Rule 46(h), was originally included by Congress. The new language has been restyled with no change in substance or practice intended. Under this provision, the court may only forfeit property as permitted under 18 U.S.C. §§ 3146(d) and 3142(c)(1)(B)(xi). The term “appropriate sentence” means a sentence that is consistent with the Sentencing Guidelines.

Rule 47. Motions	Rule 47. Motions and Supporting Affidavits
An application to the court for an order shall be by motion. A motion other than one made during a trial or hearing shall be in writing unless the court permits it to be made orally. It shall state the grounds upon which it is made and shall set forth the relief or order sought. It may be supported by affidavit.	(a) In General. A party applying to the court for an order must do so by motion. (b) Form and Content of a Motion. A motion — except when made during a trial or hearing — must be in writing, unless the court permits the party to make the motion by other means. A motion must state the grounds on which it is based and the relief or order sought. A motion may be supported by affidavit.
	(c) Timing of a Motion. A party must serve a written motion — other than one that the court may hear ex parte — and any hearing notice at least 5 days before the hearing date, unless a rule or court order sets a different period. For good cause, the court may set a different period upon ex parte application. (d) Affidavit Supporting a Motion. The moving party must serve any supporting affidavit with the motion. A responding party must serve any opposing affidavit at least one day before the hearing, unless the court permits later service.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 47 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

In Rule 47(b), the word “orally” has been deleted. The Committee believed, first, that the term should not act as a limitation on those who are not able to speak orally and, second, a court may wish to entertain motions through electronic or other reliable means. Deletion of the term also comports with a similar change in Rule 26, regarding the taking of testimony during trial. In place of that word, the Committee substituted the broader phrase “by other means.”

Rule 48. Dismissal	Rule 48. Dismissal
(a) By Attorney for Government. The Attorney General or the United States attorney may by leave of court file a dismissal of an indictment, information, or complaint and the prosecution shall thereupon terminate. Such a dismissal may not be filed during the trial without the consent of the defendant. (b) By Court. If there is unnecessary delay in presenting the charge to the grand jury or in filing an information against a defendant who has been held to answer to the district court, or if there is unnecessary delay in bringing a defendant to trial, the court may dismiss the indictment, information, or complaint.	(a) By the Government. The government may, with leave of court, dismiss an indictment, information, or complaint. The government may not dismiss the prosecution during trial without the defendant's consent. (b) By the Court. The court may dismiss an indictment, information, or complaint if unnecessary delay occurs in: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) presenting a charge to a grand jury; (2) filing an information against a defendant; or (3) bringing a defendant to trial.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 48 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

The Committee considered the relationship between Rule 48(b) and the Speedy Trial Act. See 18 U.S.C. §§ 3161, et seq. Rule 48(b), of course, operates independently from the Act. See, e.g., United States v. Goodson, 204 F.3d 508 (4th Cir. 2000) (noting purpose of Rule 48(b)); United States v. Carlone, 666 F.2d 1112, 1116 (7th Cir. 1981) (suggesting that Rule 48(b) could provide an alternate basis in an extreme case to dismiss an indictment, without reference to Speedy Trial Act); United States v. Balochi, 527 F.2d 562, 563-64 (4th Cir. 1976) (per curiam) (Rule 48(b) is broader in compass). In re-promulgating Rule 48(b), the Committee intends no change in the relationship between that rule and the Speedy Trial Act.

Rule 49. Service and Filing of Papers	Rule 49. Serving and Filing Papers
(a) Service: When Required. Written motions other than those which are heard ex parte, written notices, designations of record on appeal and similar papers shall be served upon each of the parties. (b) Service: How Made. Whenever under these rules or by an order of the court service is required or permitted to be made upon a party represented by an attorney, the service shall be made upon the attorney unless service upon the party personally is ordered by the court. Service upon the attorney or upon a party shall be made in the manner provided in civil actions. (c) Notice of Orders. Immediately upon the entry of an order made on a written motion subsequent to arraignment the clerk shall mail to each party a notice thereof and shall make a note in the docket of the mailing. Lack of notice of the entry by the clerk does not affect the time to appeal or relieve or authorize the court to relieve a party for failure to appeal within the time allowed, except as permitted by Rule 4(b) of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure. (d) Filing. Papers required to be served shall be filed with the court. Papers shall be filed in the manner provided in civil actions. [(e) Abrogated April 27, 1995, eff. December 1, 1995]	(a) When Required. A party must serve on every other party any written motion (other than one to be heard ex parte), written notice, designation of the record on appeal, or similar paper. (b) How Made. Service must be made in the manner provided for a civil action. When these rules or a court order requires or permits service on a party represented by an attorney, service must be made on the attorney instead of the party, unless the court orders otherwise. (c) Notice of a Court Order. When the court issues an order on any post-arraignment motion, the clerk must provide notice in a manner provided for in a civil action. Except as Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 4(b) provides otherwise, the clerk's failure to give notice does not affect the time to appeal, or relieve — or authorize the court to relieve — a party's failure to appeal within the allowed time. (d) Filing. A party must file with the court a copy of any paper the party is required to serve. A paper must be filed in a manner provided for in a civil action.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 49 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules.

Rule 49(c) has been amended to reflect proposed changes in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure that permit (but do not require) a court to provide notice of its orders and judgments through electronic means. See Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 5(b) and 77(d). As amended, Rule 49(c) now parallels a similar extant provision in Rule 49(b), regarding service of papers.

Rule 50. Calendars; Plan for Prompt Disposition	Rule 50. Prompt Disposition
(a) Calendars. The district courts may provide for placing criminal proceedings upon appropriate calendars. Preference shall be given to criminal proceedings as far as practicable. (b) Plans for Achieving Prompt Disposition of Criminal Cases. To minimize undue delay and to further the prompt disposition of criminal cases, each district court shall conduct a continuing study of the administration of criminal justice in the district court and before United States magistrate judges of the district and shall prepare plans for the prompt disposition of criminal cases in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 208 of Title 18, United States Code.	Scheduling preference must be given to criminal proceedings as far as practicable.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 50 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

The first sentence in current Rule 50(a), which says that a court may place criminal proceedings on a calendar, has been deleted. The Committee believed that the sentence simply stated a truism and was no longer necessary.

Current Rule 50(b), which simply mirrors 18 U.S.C. § 3165, has been deleted in its entirety. The rule was added in 1971 to meet congressional concerns in pending legislation about deadlines in criminal cases. Provisions governing deadlines were later enacted by Congress and protections were provided in the Speedy Trial Act. The Committee concluded that in light of those enactments, Rule 50(b) was no longer necessary.

Rule 51. Exceptions Unnecessary.	Rule 51. Preserving Claimed Error
Exceptions to rulings or orders of the court are unnecessary and for all purposes for which an exception has heretofore been necessary it is sufficient that a party, at the time the ruling or order of the court is made or sought, makes known to the court the action which that party desires the court to take or that party's objection to the action of the court and the grounds therefor; but if a party has no opportunity to object to a ruling or order, the absence of an objection does thereafter prejudice that party.	(a) Exceptions Unnecessary. Exceptions to rulings or orders of the court are unnecessary. (b) Preserving a Claim of Error. A party may preserve a claim of error by informing the court — when the court ruling or order is made or sought — of the action the party wishes the court to take, or the party's objection to the court's action and the grounds for that objection. If a party does not have an opportunity to object to a ruling or order, the absence of an objection does not later prejudice that party. A ruling or order that admits or excludes evidence is governed by Federal Rule of Evidence 103.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 51 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

The Rule includes a new sentence that explicitly states that any rulings regarding evidence are governed by Federal Rule of Evidence 103. The sentence was added because of concerns about the Supersession Clause, 28 U.S.C. § 2072(b), of the Rules Enabling Act, and the possibility that an argument might have been made that Congressional approval of this rule would supersede that Rule of Evidence.

Rule 52. Harmless Error and Plain Error	Rule 52. Harmless and Plain Error
(a) Harmless Error. Any error, defect, irregularity, or variance which does not affect substantial rights shall be disregarded. (b) Plain Error. Plain errors or defects affecting substantial rights may be noticed although they were not brought to the attention of the court.	(a) Harmless Error. Any error, defect, irregularity, or variance that does not affect substantial rights must be disregarded. (b) Plain Error. A plain error that affects substantial rights may be considered even though it was not brought to the court's attention.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 52 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

Rule 52(b) has been amended by deleting the words "or defect" after the words "plain error." The change is intended to remove any ambiguity in the rule. As noted by the Supreme Court, the language "plain error or defect" was misleading to the extent that it might be read in the disjunctive. See United States v. Olano, 507 U.S. 725, 732 (1993) (incorrect to read Rule 52(b) in the disjunctive); United States v. Young, 470 U.S. 1, 15 n. 12 (1985) (use of disjunctive in Rule 52(b) is misleading).

Rule 53. Regulation of Conduct in the Court Room.	Rule 53. Courtroom Photographing and Broadcasting Prohibited
The taking of photographs in the court room during the progress of judicial proceedings or radio broadcasting of judicial proceedings from the court room shall not be permitted by the court.	Except as otherwise provided by a statute or these rules, the court must not permit the taking of photographs in the courtroom during judicial proceedings or the broadcasting of judicial proceedings from the courtroom.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 53 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Although the word “radio” has been deleted from the rule, the Committee does not believe that the amendment is a substantive change but rather one that accords with judicial interpretation applying the current rule to other forms of broadcasting and functionally equivalent means. See, e.g., United States v. Hastings, 695 F.2d 1278, 1279, n. 5 (11th Cir. 1983) (television proceedings prohibited); United States v. McVeigh, 931 F. Supp. 753 (D. Colo. 1996) (release of tape recordings of proceedings prohibited). Given modern technology capabilities, the Committee believed that a more generalized reference to “broadcasting” is appropriate.

Also, although the revised rule does not explicitly recognize exceptions within the rules themselves, the restyled rule recognizes that other rules might permit, for example, video teleconferencing, which clearly involves “broadcasting” of the proceedings, even if only for limited purposes.

REPORTER’S NOTES

Rule 54. Application and Exception	Rule 54. (Transferred)¹
(a) Courts. These rules apply to all criminal proceedings in the United States District Courts; in the District Court of Guam; in the District Court for the Northern Mariana Islands, except as otherwise provided in articles IV and V of the covenant provided by the Act of March 24, 1976 (90 Stat. 263); and in the District Court of the Virgin Islands; in the United States Courts of Appeals; and in the Supreme Court of the United States; except that the prosecution of offenses in the District Court of the Virgin Islands shall be by indictment or information as otherwise provided by law.

¹All of Rule 54 was moved to Rule 1.

(b) Proceedings.

(1) Removed Proceedings. These rules apply to criminal prosecutions removed to the United States district courts from state courts and govern all procedure after removal, except that dismissal by the attorney for the prosecution shall be governed by state law.

(2) Offenses Outside a District or State. These rules apply to proceedings for offenses committed upon the high seas or elsewhere out of the jurisdiction of any particular state or district, except that such proceedings may be had in any district authorized by 18 U.S.C. § 3238.

(3) Peace Bonds. These rules do not alter the power of judges of the United States or of United States magistrate judges to hold security of the peace and for good behavior under Revised Statutes, § 4069, 50 U.S.C. § 23, but in such cases the procedure shall conform to these rules so far as they are applicable.

(4) Proceedings Before United States Magistrate Judges. Proceedings involving misdemeanors and other petty offenses are governed by Rule 58.

(5) Other Proceedings. These rules are not applicable to extradition and rendition of fugitives; civil forfeiture of property for violation of a statute of the United States; or the collection of fines and penalties. Except as provided in Rule 20(d) they do not apply to proceedings under 18 U.S.C. Chapter 403 — Juvenile Delinquency — so far as they are inconsistent with that chapter. They do not apply to summary trials for offenses against the navigation laws under Revised Statutes §§ 4300-4305, 33 U.S.C. §§ 391-396, or to proceedings involving disputes between seamen under Revised Statutes §§ 4079-4081, as amended, 22 U.S.C. §§ 256-258, or to proceedings for fishery offenses under the Act of June 28, 1937, c. 392, 50 Stat. 325-327, 16 U.S.C. §§ 772-772i, or to proceedings against a witness in a foreign country under 28 U.S.C. § 1784.

(c) Application of Terms. As used in these rules the following terms have the designated meanings.

“Act of Congress” includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of Columbia, in Puerto Rico, in a territory or in any insular possession.

“Attorney for the government” means the Attorney General, an authorized assistant of the Attorney General, a United States Attorney, an authorized assistant of a United States Attorney, when applicable to cases arising under the laws of Guam the Attorney General of Guam or such other person or persons as may be authorized by the laws of Guam to act therein, and when applicable to cases arising under the laws of the Northern Mariana Islands the Attorney General of the Northern Mariana Islands or any other person or persons as may be authorized by the laws of the Northern Marianas to act therein.

“Civil action” refers to a civil action in a district court.

The words “demurrer,” “motion to quash,” “plea in abatement,” “plea in bar” and “special plea in bar,” or words to the same effect, in any act of Congress shall be construed to mean the motion raising a defense or objection provided in Rule 12.

“District court” includes all district courts named in subdivision (a) of this rule.

“Federal magistrate judge” means a United States magistrate judge as defined in 28 U.S.C. §§ 631-639, a judge of the United States or another judge or judicial officer specifically empowered by statute in force in any territory or possession, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or the District of Columbia, to perform a function to which a particular rule relates.

“Judge of the United States” includes a judge of the district court, court of appeals, or the Supreme Court.

“Law” includes statutes and judicial decisions.

“Magistrate judge” includes a United States magistrate judge as defined in 28 U.S.C. §§ 631-639, a judge of the United States, another judge or judicial officer specifically empowered by statute in force in any territory or possession, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or the District of Columbia, to perform a function to which a particular rule relates, and a state or local judicial officer, authorized by 18 U.S.C. § 3041 to perform the functions prescribed by Rules 3, 4, and 5.

“Oath” includes affirmations.

“Petty offense” is defined in 18 U.S.C. § 19.

Rule 58. Procedure for Misdemeanors and Other Petty Offenses

Rule 58. Petty Offenses and Other Misdemeanors

(a) Scope.

(1) In General. This rule governs the procedure and practice for the conduct of proceedings involving misdemeanors and other petty offenses, and for appeals to district judges in such cases tried by United States magistrate judges.

(2) Applicability of Other Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure. In proceedings concerning petty offenses for which no sentence of imprisonment will be imposed the court may follow such provisions of these rules as it deems appropriate, to the extent not inconsistent with this rule. In all other proceedings the other rules govern except as specifically provided in this rule.

(3) Definition. The term "petty offenses for which no sentence of imprisonment will be imposed" as used in this rule, means any petty offenses as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 19 as to which the court determines, that, in the event of conviction, no sentence of imprisonment will actually be imposed.

(b) Pretrial Procedures.

(1) Trial Document. The trial of a misdemeanor may proceed on an indictment, information, or complaint or, in the case of a petty offense, on a citation or violation notice.

(a) Scope.

(1) In General. These rules apply in petty offense and other misdemeanor cases and on appeal to a district judge in a case tried by a magistrate judge, unless this rule provides otherwise.

(2) Petty Offense Case Without Imprisonment. In a case involving a petty offense for which no sentence of imprisonment will be imposed, the court may follow any provision of these rules that is not inconsistent with this rule and that the court considers appropriate.

(3) Definition. As used in this rule, the term "petty offense for which no sentence of imprisonment will be imposed" means a petty offense for which the court determines that, in the event of conviction, no sentence of imprisonment will be imposed.

(b) Pretrial Procedure.

(1) Charging Document. The trial of a misdemeanor may proceed on an indictment, information, or complaint. The trial of a petty offense may also proceed on a citation or violation notice.

(2) Initial Appearance. At the defendant's initial appearance on a misdemeanor or other petty offense charge, the court shall inform the defendant of:

- (A) the charge, and the maximum possible penalties provided by law, including payment of a special assessment under 18 U.S.C. § 3013, and restitution under 18 U.S.C. § 3663;
- (B) the right to retain counsel;
- (C) the right to request the appointment of counsel if the defendant is unable to retain counsel, unless the charge is a petty offense for which an appointment of counsel is not required;
- (D) the right to remain silent and that any statement made by the defendant may be used against the defendant;
- (E) the right to trial, judgment, and sentencing before a district judge, unless:
 - (i) the charge is a Class B misdemeanor motor-vehicle offense, a Class C misdemeanor, or an infraction; or
 - (ii) the defendant consents to trial, judgment, and sentencing before the magistrate judge;
- (F) the right to trial by jury before either a United States magistrate judge or a district judge, unless the charge is a petty offense; and
- (G) the right to a preliminary examination in accordance with 18 U.S.C. § 3060, and the general circumstances under which the defendant may secure pretrial release, if the defendant is held in custody and charged with a misdemeanor other than a petty offense.

(2) Initial Appearance. At the defendant's initial appearance on a petty offense or other misdemeanor charge, the magistrate judge must inform the defendant of the following:

- (A) the charge, and the minimum and maximum penalties, including imprisonment, fines, any special assessment under 18 U.S.C. § 3013, and restitution under 18 U.S.C. § 3556;
- (B) the right to retain counsel;
- (C) the right to request the appointment of counsel if the defendant is unable to retain counsel — unless the charge is a petty offense for which the appointment of counsel is not required;
- (D) the defendant's right not to make a statement, and that any statement made may be used against the defendant.
- (E) the right to trial, judgment, and sentencing before a district judge — unless:
 - (i) the charge is a petty offense; or
 - (ii) the defendant consents to trial, judgment, and sentencing before a magistrate judge;

	(F) the right to a jury trial before either a magistrate judge or a district judge — unless the charge is a petty offense; and (G) if the defendant is held in custody and charged with a misdemeanor other than a petty offense, the right to a preliminary hearing under Rule 5.1, and the general circumstances, if any, under which the defendant may secure pretrial release.
(3) Consent and Arraignment. (A) Plea Before a United States Magistrate Judge. A magistrate judge shall take the defendant's plea in a Class B misdemeanor charging a motor vehicle-offense, a class C misdemeanor, or an infraction. In every other misdemeanor case, a magistrate judge may take the plea only if the defendant consents either in writing or orally on the record to be tried before the magistrate judge and specifically waives trial before a district judge. The defendant may plead not guilty, guilty, or with the consent of the magistrate judge, nolo contendere. (B) Failure to Consent. In a misdemeanor case — other than a Class B misdemeanor charging a motor-vehicle offense, a Class C misdemeanor, or an infraction — magistrate judge shall order the defendant to appear before a district judge for further proceedings on notice, unless the defendant consents to the trial before the magistrate judge.	(3) Arraignment. (A) Plea Before a Magistrate Judge. A magistrate judge may take the defendant's plea in a petty offense case. In every other misdemeanor case, a magistrate judge may take the plea only if the defendant consents either in writing or on the record to be tried before a magistrate judge and specifically waives trial before a district judge. The defendant may plead not guilty, guilty, or (with the consent of the magistrate judge) nolo contendere. (B) Failure to Consent. Except in a petty offense case, the magistrate judge must order a defendant who does not consent to trial before a magistrate judge to appear before a district judge for further proceedings.

(c) Additional Procedures Applicable Only to Petty Offenses for Which No Sentence of Imprisonment Will be Imposed. With respect to petty offenses for which no sentence of imprisonment will be imposed, the following additional procedures are applicable:

(1) Plea of Guilty or Nolo Contendere. No plea of guilty or nolo contendere shall be accepted unless the court is satisfied that the defendant understands the nature of the charge and the maximum possible penalties provided by law.

(2) Waiver of Venue for Plea and Sentence. A defendant who is arrested, held, or present in a district other than that in which the indictment, information, complaint, citation, or violation notice is pending against that defendant may state in writing a wish to plead guilty or nolo contendere, to waive venue and trial in the district in which the proceeding is pending, and to consent to disposition of the case in the district in which that defendant was arrested, is held, or is present. Unless the defendant thereafter pleads not guilty, the prosecution shall be had as if venue were in such district, and notice of same shall be given to the magistrate judge in the district where the proceeding was originally commenced. The defendant's statement of a desire to plead guilty or nolo contendere is not admissible against the defendant.

(c) Additional Procedures in Certain Petty Offense Cases. The following procedures also apply in a case involving a petty offense for which no sentence of imprisonment will be imposed:

(1) Guilty or Nolo Contendere Plea. The court must not accept a guilty or nolo contendere plea unless satisfied that the defendant understands the nature of the charge and the maximum possible penalty.

(2) Waiving Venue.

(A) Conditions of Waiving Venue. If a defendant is arrested, held, or present in a district different from the one where the indictment, information, complaint, citation, or violation notice is pending, the defendant may state in writing a desire to plead guilty or nolo contendere; to waive venue and trial in the district where the proceeding is pending; and to consent to the court's disposing of the case in the district where the defendant was arrested, is held, or is present.

(B) Effect of Waiving Venue. Unless the defendant later pleads not guilty, the prosecution will proceed in the district where the defendant was arrested, is held, or is present. The district clerk must notify the clerk in the original district of the defendant's waiver of venue. The defendant's statement of a desire to plead guilty or nolo contendere is not admissible against the defendant.

(3) Sentence. The court shall afford the defendant an opportunity to be heard in mitigation. The court shall then immediately proceed to sentence the defendant, except that in the discretion of the court, sentencing may be continued to allow an investigation by the probation service or submission of additional information by either party.

(4) Notification of Right to Appeal. After imposing sentence in a case which has gone to trial on a plea of not guilty, the court shall advise the defendant of the defendant's right to appeal including any right to appeal the sentence. There shall be no duty on the court to advise the defendant of any right of appeal after sentence is imposed following a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, except the court shall advise the defendant of any right to appeal the sentence.

(3) Sentencing. The court must give the defendant an opportunity to be heard in mitigation and then proceed immediately to sentencing. The court may, however, postpone sentencing to allow the probation service to investigate or to permit either party to submit additional information.

(4) Notice of a Right to Appeal. After imposing sentence in a case tried on a not-guilty plea, the court must advise the defendant of a right to appeal the conviction and of any right to appeal the sentence. If the defendant was convicted on a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, the court must advise the defendant of any right to appeal the sentence.

(d) Securing the Defendant's Appearance; Payment in Lieu of Appearance.

(1) Forfeiture of Collateral. When authorized by local rules of the district court, payment of a fixed sum may be accepted in suitable cases in lieu of appearance and as authorizing termination of the proceedings. Local rules may make provision for increases in fixed sums not to exceed the maximum fine which could be imposed.

(2) Notice to Appear. If a defendant fails to pay a fixed sum, request a hearing, or appear in response to a citation or violation notice, the clerk or a magistrate judge may issue a notice for the defendant to appear before the court on a date certain. The notice may also afford the defendant an additional opportunity to pay a fixed sum in lieu of appearance, and shall be served upon the defendant by mailing a copy to the defendant's last known address.

(3) Summons or Warrant. Upon an indictment or a showing by one of the other documents specified in subdivision (b)(1) of probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed and that the defendant has committed it, the court may issue an arrest warrant or, if no warrant is requested by the attorney for the prosecution, a summons. The showing of probable cause shall be made in writing upon oath or under penalty of perjury, but the affiant need not appear before the court. If the defendant fails to appear before the court in response to a summons, the court may summarily issue a warrant for the defendant's immediate arrest and appearance before the court.

(e) Record. Proceedings under this rule shall be taken down by a reporter or recorded by suitable sound equipment.

(f) New Trial. The provisions of Rule 33 shall apply.

(d) Paying a Fixed Sum in Lieu of Appearance.

(1) In General. If the court has a local rule governing forfeiture of collateral, the court may accept a fixed-sum payment in lieu of the defendant's appearance and end the case, but the fixed sum may not exceed the maximum fine allowed by law.

(2) Notice to Appear. If the defendant fails to pay a fixed sum, request a hearing, or appear in response to a citation or violation notice, the district clerk or a magistrate judge may issue a notice for the defendant to appear before the court on a date certain. The notice may give the defendant an additional opportunity to pay a fixed sum in lieu of appearance. The district clerk must serve the notice on the defendant by mailing a copy to the defendant's last known address.

(3) Summons or Warrant. Upon an indictment, or upon a showing by one of the other charging documents specified in Rule 58(b)(1) of probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed and that the defendant has committed it, the court may issue an arrest warrant or, if no warrant is requested by an attorney for the government, a summons. The showing of probable cause must be made under oath or under penalty of perjury, but the affiant need not appear before the court. If the defendant fails to appear before the court in response to a summons, the court may summarily issue a warrant for the defendant's arrest.

(e) Recording the Proceedings. The court must record any proceedings under this rule by using a court reporter or suitable recording device.

(f) New Trial. Rule 33 applies to a motion for a new trial.

(g) Appeal.

(1) Decision, Order, Judgment or Sentence by a District Judge. An appeal from a decision, order, judgment or conviction or sentence by a district judge shall be taken in accordance with the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure.

(2) Decision, Order, Judgment or Sentence by a United States Magistrate Judge.

(A) Interlocutory Appeal. A decision or order by a magistrate judge which, if made by a district judge, could be appealed by the government or defendant under any provision of law, shall be subject to an appeal to a district judge provided such appeal is taken within 10 days of the entry of the decision or order. An appeal shall be taken by filing with the clerk of court a statement specifying the decision or order from which an appeal is taken and by serving a copy of the statement upon the adverse party, personally or by mail, and by filing a copy with the magistrate judge.

(B) Appeal from Conviction or Sentence. An appeal from a judgment of conviction or sentence by a magistrate judge to a district judge shall be taken within 10 days after entry of judgment. An appeal shall be taken by filing with the clerk of the court a statement specifying the judgment from which an appeal is taken, and by serving a copy of the statement upon the United States Attorney, personally or by mail, and by filing a copy with the magistrate judge.

(g) Appeal.

(1) From a District Judge's Order or Judgment. The Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure govern an appeal from a district judge's order or a judgment of conviction or sentence.

(2) From a Magistrate Judge's Order or Judgment.

(A) Interlocutory Appeal. Either party may appeal an order of a magistrate judge to a district judge within 10 days of its entry if a district judge's order could similarly be appealed. The party appealing must file a notice with the clerk specifying the order being appealed and must serve a copy on the adverse party.

(B) Appeal from a Conviction or Sentence. A defendant may appeal a magistrate judge's judgment of conviction or sentence to a district judge within 10 days of its entry. To appeal, the defendant must file a notice with the clerk specifying the judgment being appealed and must serve a copy on the attorney for the government.

(C) Record. The record shall consist of the original papers and exhibits in the case together with any transcript, tape, or other recording of the proceedings and a certified copy of the docket entries which shall be transmitted promptly to the clerk of court. For purposes of the appeal, a copy of the record of such proceedings shall be made available at the expense of the United States to a person who establishes by affidavit the inability to pay or give security therefor, and the expense of such copy shall be paid by the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts. (D) Scope of Appeal. The defendant shall not be entitled to a trial de novo by a district judge. The scope of appeal shall be the same as an appeal from a judgment of a district court to a court of appeals.	(C) Record. The record consists of the original papers and exhibits in the case; any transcript, tape, or other recording of the proceedings; and a certified copy of the docket entries. For purposes of the appeal, a copy of the record of the proceedings must be made available to a defendant who establishes by affidavit an inability to pay or give security for the record. The Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts must pay for those copies. (D) Scope of Appeal. The defendant is not entitled to a trial de novo by a district judge. The scope of the appeal is the same as in an appeal to the court of appeals from a judgment entered by a district judge.
(3) Stay of Execution; Release Pending Appeal. The provisions of Rule 38 relating to stay of execution shall be applicable to a judgment of conviction or sentence. The defendant may be released pending an appeal in accordance with the provisions of law relating to release pending appeal from a judgment of a district court to a court of appeals.	(3) Stay of Execution and Release Pending Appeal. Rule 38 applies to a stay of a judgment of conviction or sentence. The court may release the defendant pending appeal under the law relating to release pending appeal from a district court to a court of appeals.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 58 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.

The title of the rule has been changed to "Petty Offenses and Other Misdemeanors." In Rule 58(c)(2)(B) (regarding waiver of venue), the Committee amended the rule to require that the "district clerk," instead of the magistrate judge, inform the original district clerk if the defendant waives venue and the prosecution proceeds in the district where the defendant was arrested. The Committee intends no change in practice.

In Rule 58(g)(1) and (g)(2)(A), the Committee deleted as unnecessary the word "decision" because its meaning is covered by existing references to an "order, judgment, or sentence" by a district judge or magistrate judge. In the Committee's view, deletion of that term does not amount to a substantive change.

Rule 59. Effective Date	Rule 59.
These rules take effect on the day which is 3 months subsequent to the adjournment of the first regular session of the 79th Congress, but if that day is prior to September 1, 1945, then they take effect on September 1, 1945. They govern all criminal proceedings thereafter commenced and so far as just and practicable all proceedings then pending.	[Deleted.]

COMMITTEE NOTE

Rule 59, which dealt with the effective date of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, is no longer necessary and has been deleted.

Rule 60. Title	Rule 60. Title
These rules may be known and cited as the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.	[Abrogated.]

COMMITTEE NOTE

No changes have been made to Rule 60, as result of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules.

74 Rule 5. Initial Appearance

75 (a) In General.

76 (1) Appearance Upon an Arrest.

77 (A) A person making an arrest within the United 78 States must take the defendant without 79 unnecessary delay before a magistrate judge, or 80 before a state or local judicial officer as 81 Rule 5(c) provides, unless a statute provides 82 otherwise.

6 FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

83 (B) A person making an arrest outside the United 84 States must take the defendant without
85 unnecessary delay before a magistrate judge,
86 unless a statute provides otherwise.

87 (2) Exceptions.

88 (A) An officer making an arrest under a warrant
89 issued upon a complaint charging solely a
90 violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1073 need not comply
91 with this rule if:

92 (i) the person arrested is transferred without 93 unnecessary delay to the custody of 94 appropriate state or local authorities in the 95 district of arrest; and

96 (ii) an attorney for the government moves
97 promptly, in the district where the warrant
98 was issued, to dismiss the complaint.

99 (B) If a defendant is arrested for violating 100 probation or supervised release, Rule 32.1
101 applies.

102 (C) If a defendant is arrested for failing to appear in 103 another district, Rule 40 applies.

104 (3) Appearance Upon a Summons. When a defendant
105 appears in response to a summons under Rule 4, a 106 magistrate judge must proceed under Rule 5(d) or 107 (e), as applicable.

108 (b) Arrest Without a Warrant. If a defendant is arrested
109 without a warrant, a complaint meeting Rule 4(a)'s 110 requirement of probable cause must be promptly filed in 111 the district where the offense was allegedly committed.

112 (c) Place of Initial Appearance; Transfer to Another
113 District.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 5 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic, except as noted below.

Rule 5 has been completely revised to more clearly set out the procedures for initial appearances and to recognize that such appearances may be required at various stages of a criminal proceeding, for example, where a defendant has been arrested for violating the terms of probation.

Rule 5(a), which governs initial appearances by an arrested defendant before a magistrate judge, includes several changes. The first is a clarifying change; revised Rule 5(a)(1) provides that a person making the arrest must bring the defendant "without unnecessary delay” before a magistrate judge, instead of the current reference to “nearest available” magistrate. This language parallels changes in Rule 4 and reflects the view that time is of the essence. The Committee intends no change in practice. In using the term, the Committee recognizes that on occasion there may be necessary delay in presenting the defendant, for example, due to weather conditions or other natural causes. A second change is non-stylistic, and reflects the stated preference (as in other provisions throughout the rules) that the defendant be brought before a federal judicial officer. Only if a magistrate judge is not available should the defendant be taken before a state or local officer.

The third sentence in current Rule 5(a), which states that a magistrate judge must proceed in accordance with the rule where a defendant is arrested without a warrant or given a summons, has been deleted because it is unnecessary.

Rule 5(a)(1)(B) codifies the caselaw reflecting that the right to an initial appearance applies not only when a person is arrested within the United States but also when the an arrest occurs outside the United States. See, e.g., United States v. Purvis, 768 F.2d 1237 (11th Cir. 1985); United States v. Yunis, 859 F.2d 953 (D.C. Cir. 1988). In these circumstances, the Committee believes — and the rule so provides — that the initial appearance should be before a federal magistrate judge rather than a state or local judicial officer. Rule 5(a)(1)(B) has also been amended by adding the words, “unless a federal statute provides otherwise,” to reflect recent enactment of the Military Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Act (Pub. L. No. 106-523, 114 Stat. 2488) that permits certain persons overseas to appear before a magistrate judge by telephonic communication.

Rule 5(a)(2)(A) consists of language currently located in Rule 5 that addresses the procedure to be followed where a defendant has been arrested under a warrant issued on a complaint charging solely a violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1073 (unlawful flight to avoid prosecution). Rule 5(a)(2)(B) and 5(a)(2)(C) are new provisions. They are intended to make it clear that when a defendant is arrested for violating probation or supervised release, or for failing to appear in another district, Rules 32.1 or 40 apply. No change in practice is intended.

Rule 5(a)(3) is new and fills a perceived gap in the rules. It recognizes that a defendant may be subjected to an initial appearance under this rule if a summons was issued under Rule 4, instead of an arrest warrant. If the defendant is appearing pursuant to a summons in a felony case, Rule 5(d) applies, and if the defendant is appearing in a misdemeanor case, Rule 5(e) applies.

Rule 5(b) carries forward the requirement in former Rule 5(a) that if the defendant is arrested without a warrant, a complaint must be promptly filed.

Rule 5(c) is a new provision and sets out where an initial appearance is to take place. If the defendant is arrested in the district where the offense was allegedly committed, under Rule 5(c)(1) the defendant must be taken to a magistrate judge in that district. If no magistrate judge is reasonably available, a state or local judicial officer may conduct the initial appearance. On the other hand, if the defendant is arrested in a district other than the district where the offense was allegedly committed, Rule 5(c)(2) governs. In those instances, the defendant must be taken to a magistrate judge within the district of arrest, unless the appearance can take place more promptly in an adjacent district. The Committee recognized that in some cases, the nearest magistrate judge may actually be across a district's lines. The remainder of Rule 5(c)(2) includes material formerly located in Rule 40.

Rule 5(d), derived from current Rule 5(c), has been retitled to more clearly reflect the subject of that subdivision and the procedure to be used if the defendant is charged with a felony. Rule 5(d)(4) has been added to make clear that a defendant may only be called upon to enter a plea under the provisions of Rule 10. That language is intended to reflect and reaffirm current practice.

The remaining portions of current Rule 5(c) have been moved to Rule 5.1, which deals with preliminary hearings in felony cases.

The major substantive change is in new Rule 5(e), which permits video teleconferencing for an appearance under this rule if the defendant consents. This change reflects the growing practice among state courts to use video teleconferencing to conduct initial proceedings. A similar amendment has been made to Rule 10 concerning arraignments.

In amending Rules 5, 10, and 43 (which generally requires the defendant's presence at all proceedings), the Committee carefully considered the argument that permitting a defendant to appear by video teleconferencing might be considered an erosion of an important element of the judicial process. Much can be lost when video teleconferencing occurs. First, the setting itself may not promote the public's confidence in the integrity and solemnity of a federal criminal proceeding; that is the view of some who have witnessed the use of such proceedings in some state jurisdictions. While it is difficult to quantify the intangible benefits and impact of requiring a defendant to be brought before a federal judicial officer in a federal courtroom, the Committee realizes that something is lost when a defendant is not required to make a personal appearance. A related consideration is that the defendant may be located in a room that bears no resemblance whatsoever to a judicial proceeding and the equipment may be inadequate for high-quality transmissions.

Second, using video teleconferencing can interfere with counsel's ability to meet personally with his or her client at what, at least in that jurisdiction, might be an important appearance before a magistrate judge. Third, the defendant may miss an opportunity to meet with family or friends, and others who might be able to assist the defendant, especially in any attempts to obtain bail. Finally, the magistrate judge may miss an opportunity to accurately assess the physical, emotional, and mental condition of a defendant—a factor that may weigh on pretrial decisions, such as release from detention.

On the other hand, the Committee considered that in some jurisdictions, the court systems face a high volume of criminal proceedings. In other jurisdictions, counsel may not be appointed until after the initial appearance and thus there is no real problem with a defendant being able to consult with counsel before or during that proceeding. The Committee was also persuaded to adopt the amendment because in some jurisdictions delays may occur in travel time from one location to another—in some cases requiring either the magistrate judge or the participants to travel long distances. In those instances, it is not unusual for a defense counsel to recognize the benefit of conducting a video teleconferenced proceeding, which will eliminate lengthy and sometimes expensive travel or permit the initial appearance to be conducted much sooner. Finally, the Committee was aware that in some jurisdictions, courtrooms now contain high quality technology for conducting such procedures, and that some courts are already using video teleconferencing—with the consent of the parties.

The Committee believed that, on balance and in appropriate circumstances, the court and the defendant should have the option of using video teleconferencing, as long as the defendant consents to that procedure. The question of when it would be appropriate for a defendant to consent is not spelled out in the rule. That is left to the defendant and the court in each case. Although the rule does not specify any particular technical requirements regarding the system to be used, if the equipment or technology is deficient, the public may lose confidence in the integrity and dignity of the proceedings.

The amendment does not require a court to adopt or use video teleconferencing. In deciding whether to use such procedures, a court may wish to consider establishing clearly articulated standards and procedures. For example, the court would normally want to insure that the location used for televising the video teleconferencing is conducive to the solemnity of a federal criminal proceeding. That might require additional coordination, for example, with the detention facility to insure that the room, furniture, and furnishings reflect the dignity associated with a federal courtroom. Provision should also be made to insure that the judge, or a surrogate, is in a position to carefully assess the defendant's condition. And the court should also consider establishing procedures for insuring that counsel and the defendant (and even the defendant's immediate family) are provided an ample opportunity to confer in private.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication was to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 5 was one of those rules. In revising Rule 5, the Committee decided to also propose a substantive change that would permit video teleconferencing of initial appearances. Another version of Rule 5, which does not include proposed Rule 5(f) is included in what has been referred to as the "style" package.

62 Rule 5.1. Preliminary Hearing

63 (a) In General. If a defendant is charged with an offense
64 other than a petty offense, a magistrate judge must 65 conduct a preliminary hearing unless:

66 (1) the defendant waives the hearing;

22 FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

- 67 (2) the defendant is indicted;
- 68 (3) the government files an information under Rule 7(b)
69 charging the defendant with a felony;
- 70 (4) the government files an information charging the 71 defendant with a misdemeanor; or
- 72 (5) the defendant is charged with a misdemeanor and 73 consents to trial before a magistrate judge.
- 74 (b) Selecting a District. A defendant arrested in a district
75 other than where the offense was allegedly committed 76 may elect to have the preliminary hearing conducted in 77 the district where the prosecution is pending.
- 78 (c) Scheduling. The magistrate judge must hold the 79 preliminary hearing within a reasonable time, but no later
80 than 10 days after the initial appearance if the defendant
81 is in custody and no later than 20 days if not in custody.
- 82 (d) Extending the Time. With the defendant's consent and 83 upon a showing of good cause — taking into account the

84 public interest in the prompt disposition of criminal 85 cases — a magistrate judge may extend the time limits in 86 Rule 5.1(c) one or more times. If the defendant does not 87 consent, the magistrate judge may extend the time limits
88 only on a showing that extraordinary circumstances exist
89 and justice requires the delay.

90 (e) Hearing and Finding. At the preliminary hearing, the 91 defendant may cross-examine adverse witnesses and may 92 introduce evidence but may not object to evidence on the 93 ground that it was unlawfully acquired. If the magistrate
94 judge finds probable cause to believe an offense has 95 been committed and the defendant committed it, the 96 magistrate judge must promptly require the defendant to 97 appear for further proceedings.

98 (f) Discharging the Defendant. If the magistrate judge
99 finds no probable cause to believe an offense has been 100 committed or the defendant committed it, the magistrate

101 judge must dismiss the complaint and discharge the 102 defendant. A discharge does not preclude the 103 government from later prosecuting the defendant for the 104 same offense.

105 (g) Recording the Proceedings. The preliminary hearing
106 must be recorded by a court reporter or by a suitable 107 recording device. A recording of the proceeding may be 108 made available to any party upon request. A copy of the 109 recording and a transcript may be provided to any party
110 upon request and upon any payment required by 111 applicable Judicial Conference regulations.

112 (h) Producing a Statement.

113 (1) In General. Rule 26.2(a)-(d) and (f) applies at any 114 hearing under this rule, unless the magistrate judge
115 for good cause rules otherwise in a particular case.

116 (2) Sanctions for Not Producing a Statement. If a
117 party disobeys a Rule 26.2 order to deliver a

118 statement to the moving party, the magistrate judge 119 must not consider the testimony of a witness whose 120 statement is withheld.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 5.1 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic, except as noted below.

First, the title of the rule has been changed. Although the underlying statute, 18 U.S.C. § 3060, uses the phrase preliminary examination, the Committee believes that the phrase preliminary hearing is more accurate. What happens at this proceeding is more than just an examination; it includes an evidentiary hearing, argument, and a judicial ruling. Further, the phrase preliminary hearing predominates in actual usage.

Rule 5.1(a) is composed of the first sentence of the second paragraph of current Rule 5(c). Rule 5.1(b) addresses the ability of a defendant to elect where a preliminary hearing will be held. That provision is taken from current Rule 40(a).

Rule 5.1(c) and (d) include material currently located in Rule 5(c): scheduling and extending the time limits for the hearing. The Committee is aware that in most districts, magistrate judges perform these functions. That point is also reflected in the definition of "court" in Rule 1(b), which in turn recognizes that magistrate judges may be authorized to act.

Rule 5.1(d) contains a significant change in practice. The revised rule includes language that expands the authority of a United States magistrate judge to grant a continuance for a preliminary hearing conducted under the rule. Currently, the rule authorizes a magistrate judge to grant a continuance only in those cases in which the defendant has consented to the continuance. If the defendant does not consent, then the government must present the matter to a district court judge, usually on the same day. The proposed amendment conflicts with 18 U.S.C. § 3060, which tracks the original language of the rule and permits only district court judges to grant continuances when the defendant objects. The Committee believes that this restriction is an anomaly and that it can lead to needless consumption of judicial and other resources. Magistrate judges are routinely required to make probable cause determinations and other difficult decisions regarding the defendant's liberty interests, reflecting that the magistrate judge's role has developed toward a higher level of responsibility for pre-indictment matters. The Committee believes that the change in the rule will provide greater judicial economy and that it is entirely appropriate to seek this change to the rule through the Rules Enabling Act procedures. See 28 U.S.C. § 2072(b). Under those procedures, approval by Congress of this rule change would supersede the parallel provisions in 18 U.S.C. § 3060.

Rule 5.1(e), addressing the issue of probable cause, contains the language currently located in Rule 5.1(a), with the exception of the sentence, "The finding of probable cause may be based upon hearsay evidence in whole or in part." That language was included in the original promulgation of the rule in 1972. Similar language was added to Rule 4 in 1974. In the Committee Note on the 1974 amendment, the Advisory Committee explained that the language was included to make it clear that a finding of probable cause may be based upon hearsay, noting that there had been some uncertainty in the federal system about the propriety of relying upon hearsay at the preliminary hearing. See Advisory Committee Note to Rule 5.1 (citing cases and commentary). Federal law is now clear on that proposition. Thus, the Committee believed that the reference to hearsay was no longer necessary. Further, the Committee believed that the matter was best addressed in Rule 1101(d)(3), Federal Rules of Evidence. That rule explicitly states that the Federal Rules of Evidence do not apply to "preliminary examinations in criminal cases, ... issuance of warrants for arrest, criminal summonses, and search warrants." The Advisory Committee Note accompanying that rule recognizes that: "The nature of the proceedings makes application of the formal rules of evidence inappropriate and impracticable." The Committee did not intend to make any substantive changes in practice by deleting the reference to hearsay evidence.

Rule 5.1(f), which deals with the discharge of a defendant, consists of former Rule 5.1(b).

Rule 5.1(g) is a revised version of the material in current Rule 5.1(c). Instead of including detailed information in the rule itself concerning records of preliminary hearings, the Committee opted simply to direct the reader to the applicable Judicial Conference regulations governing records. The Committee did not intend to make any substantive changes in the way in which those records are currently made available.

Finally, although the rule speaks in terms of initial appearances being conducted before a magistrate judge, Rule 1(c) makes clear that a district judge may perform any function in these rules that a magistrate judge may perform.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication is to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 5.1 was one of those rules. In revising Rule 5.1, the Committee decided to also propose a substantive change that would permit a United States magistrate judge to grant a continuance for a preliminary hearing conducted under the rule where the defendant has not consented to such a continuance. Another version of Rule 5.1 that does not include that proposed change is presented in what has been referred to as the "style" package.

1 Rule 10. Arraignment

2 ~~— Arraignment shall be conducted in open court and shall~~
3 ~~consist of reading the indictment or information to the~~ 4 ~~defendant or stating to the defendant the substance of the~~ 5 ~~charge and calling on the defendant to plead thereto. The~~ 6 ~~defendant shall be given a copy of the indictment or~~
7 ~~information before being called upon to plead.~~

8 Rule 10. Arraignment

9 (a) In General. An arraignment must be conducted in open

10 court and must consist of:

11 (1) ensuring that the defendant has a copy of the 12 indictment or information;

13 (2) reading the indictment or information to the 14 defendant or stating to the defendant the substance
15 of the charge; and then

16 (3) asking the defendant to plead to the indictment or 17 information.

18 (b) Waiving Appearance. A defendant need not be present
19 for the arraignment if:

20 (1) the defendant has been charged by indictment or 21 misdemeanor information;

22 (2) the defendant, in a written waiver signed by both the 23 defendant and defense counsel, has waived
24 appearance and has affirmed that the defendant
25 received a copy of the indictment or information and 26 that the plea is not guilty; and

30 FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

27 (3) the court accepts the waiver.

28 (c) Video Teleconferencing. Video teleconferencing may 29 be used to arraign a defendant if the defendant consents.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 10 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Read together, Rules 10 and 43 require the defendant to be physically present in court for the arraignment. See, e.g., Valenzuela-Gonzales v. United States, 915 F.2d 1276, 1280 (9th Cir. 1990) (Rules 10 and 43 are broader in protection than the Constitution). The amendments to Rule 10 create two exceptions to that requirement. The first provides that the court may hold an arraignment in the defendant's absence when the defendant has waived the right to be present in writing and the court consents to that waiver. The second permits the court to hold arraignments by video teleconferencing when the defendant is at a different location. A conforming amendment has also been made to Rule 43.

In amending Rule 10 and Rule 43, the Committee was concerned that permitting a defendant to be absent from the arraignment could be viewed as an erosion of an important element of the judicial process. First, it may be important for a defendant to see and experience first-hand the formal impact of the reading of the charge. Second, it may be necessary for the court to personally see and speak with the defendant at the arraignment, especially when there is a real question whether the defendant actually understands the gravity of the proceedings. And third, there may be difficulties in providing the defendant with effective and confidential assistance of counsel if counsel, but not the defendant, appears at the arraignment.

The Committee nonetheless believed that in appropriate circumstances the court, and the defendant, should have the option of conducting the arraignment in the defendant's absence. The question of when it would be appropriate for a defendant to waive an appearance is not spelled out in the rule. That is left to the defendant and the court in each case.

A critical element to the amendment is that no matter how convenient or cost effective a defendant's absence might be, the defendant's right to be present in court stands unless he or she waives that right in writing. Under the amendment, both the defendant and the defendant's attorney must sign the waiver. Further, the amendment requires that the waiver specifically state that the defendant has received a copy of the charging instrument.

If the trial court has reason to believe that in a particular case the defendant should not be permitted to waive the right, the court may reject the waiver and require that the defendant actually appear in court. That might be particularly appropriate when the court wishes to discuss substantive or procedural matters in conjunction with the arraignment and the court believes that the defendant's presence is important in resolving those matters. It might also be appropriate to reject a requested waiver where an attorney for the government presents reasons for requiring the defendant to appear personally.

The amendment does not permit waiver of an appearance when the defendant is charged with a felony information. In that instance, the defendant is required by Rule 7(b) to be present in court to waive the indictment. Nor does the amendment permit a waiver of appearance when the defendant is standing mute (see Rule 11(a)(4)), or entering a conditional plea (see Rule 11(a)(2)), a nolo contendere plea (see Rule 11(a)(3)), or a guilty plea (see Rule 11(a)(1)). In each of those instances the Committee believed that it was more appropriate for the defendant to appear personally before the court.

It is important to note that the amendment does not permit the defendant to waive the arraignment itself, which may be a triggering mechanism for other rules.

Rule 10(c) addresses the second substantive change in the rule. That provision permits the court to conduct arraignments through video conferencing, if the defendant waives the right to be arraigned in court. Although the practice is now used in state courts and in some federal courts, Rules 10 and 43 have generally prevented federal courts from using that method for arraignments in criminal cases. See, e.g., Valenzuela-Gonzales v. United States, supra (Rules 10 and 43 mandate physical presence of defendant at arraignment and that arraignment take place in open court; thus, pilot program for video conferencing not permitted). A similar amendment was proposed by the Committee in 1993 and published for public comment. The amendment was later withdrawn from consideration in order to consider the results of several planned pilot programs. Upon further consideration, the Committee believed that the benefits of using video conferencing outweighed the costs of doing so. This amendment also parallels an amendment in Rule 5(f) that would permit initial appearances to be conducted by video conferencing.

In amending Rules 5, 10, and 43 (which generally requires the defendant's presence at all proceedings), the Committee carefully considered the argument that permitting a defendant to appear by video conferencing might be considered an erosion of an important element of the judicial process. Much can be lost when video teleconferencing occurs. First, the setting itself may not promote the public's confidence in the integrity and solemnity of a federal criminal proceeding; that is the view of some who have witnessed the use of such proceedings in some state jurisdictions. While it is difficult to quantify the intangible benefits and impact of requiring a defendant to be brought before a federal judicial officer in a federal courtroom, the Committee realizes that something is lost when a defendant is not required to make a personal appearance. A related consideration is that the defendant may be located in a room that bears no resemblance whatsoever to a judicial proceeding and the equipment may be inadequate for high-quality transmissions. Second, using video teleconferencing can interfere with counsel's ability to meet personally with his or her client at what, at least in that jurisdiction, might be an important appearance before a magistrate judge. Third, the defendant may miss an opportunity to meet with family or friends, and others who might be able to assist the defendant, especially in any attempts to obtain bail. Finally, the magistrate judge may miss an opportunity to accurately assess the physical, emotional, and mental condition of a defendant—a factor that may weigh on pretrial decisions, such as release from detention.

On the other hand, the Committee considered that in some jurisdictions, the courts face a high volume of criminal proceedings. The Committee was also persuaded to adopt the amendment because in some jurisdictions delays may occur in travel time from one location to another—in some cases requiring either the magistrate judge or the participants to travel long distances. In those instances, it is not unusual for a defense counsel to recognize the benefit of conducting a video teleconferenced proceeding, which will eliminate lengthy and sometimes expensive travel or permit the arraignment to be conducted much sooner. Finally, the Committee was aware that in some jurisdictions, courtrooms now contain high quality technology for conducting such procedures, and that some courts are already using video teleconferencing—with the consent of the parties.

The Committee believed that, on balance and in appropriate circumstances, the court and the defendant should have the option of using video teleconferencing for arraignments, as long as the defendant consents to that procedure. The question of when it would be appropriate for a defendant to consent is not spelled out in the rule. That is left to the defendant and the court in each case. Although the rule does not specify any particular technical requirements regarding the system to be used, if the equipment or technology is deficient, the public may lose confidence in the integrity and dignity of the proceedings.

The amendment does not require a court to adopt or use video teleconferencing. In deciding whether to use such procedures, a court may wish to consider establishing clearly articulated standards and procedures. For example, the court would normally want to insure that the location used for televising the video teleconferencing is conducive to the solemnity of a federal criminal proceeding. That might require additional coordination, for example, with the detention facility to insure that the room, furniture, and furnishings reflect the dignity associated with a federal courtroom. Provision should also be made to insure that the judge, or a surrogate, is in a position to carefully assess the condition of the defendant. And the court should also consider establishing procedures for insuring that counsel and the defendant (and even the defendant's immediate family) are provided an ample opportunity to confer in private.

Although the rule requires the defendant to waive a personal appearance for an arraignment, the rule does not require that the waiver for video teleconferencing be in writing. Nor does it require that the defendant waive that appearance in person, in open court. It would normally be sufficient for the defendant to waive an appearance while participating through a video teleconference.

The amendment leaves to the courts the decision first, whether to permit video arraignments, and second, the procedures to be used. The Committee was satisfied that the technology has progressed to the point that video teleconferencing can address the concerns raised in the past about the ability of the court and the defendant to see each other and for the defendant and counsel to be in contact with each other, either at the same location or by a secure remote connection.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication was to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 10 was one of those rules. This proposed revision of Rule 10 includes an amendment that would permit the defendant to waive any appearance at an arraignment and a second amendment that would permit use of video teleconferencing for arraignments. Another version of Rule 10, which does not include these significant amendments is presented in what has been referred to as the "style" package.

- 2 of Defendant's Mental Condition

36. FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

3 ~~(a) Defense of Insanity.~~ If a defendant intends to rely upon
4 the defense of insanity at the time of the alleged offense,
5 the defendant shall, within the time provided for the 6 filing of pretrial motions or at such later time as the court
7 may direct, notify the attorney for the government in 8 writing of such intention and file a copy of such notice

51 Rule 12.2. Notice of an Insanity Defense; Mental 52 Examination

53 (a) Notice of an Insanity Defense. A defendant who intends 54 to assert a defense of insanity at the time of the alleged 55 offense must so notify an attorney for the government in 56 writing within the time provided for filing a pretrial
57 motion, or at any later time the court sets. A defendant
58 who fails to do so cannot rely on an insanity defense. The 59 court may, for good cause, allow the defendant to file the 60 notice late, grant additional trial-preparation time, or 61 make other appropriate orders.

62 (b) Notice of Expert Evidence of a Mental Condition. If 63 a defendant intends to introduce expert evidence relating 64 to a mental disease or defect or any other mental 65 condition of the defendant bearing on either (1) the issue
66 of guilt or (2) the issue of punishment in a capital case,
67 the defendant must — within the time provided for filing
68 a pretrial motion or at any later time the court sets —
69 notify an attorney for the government in writing of this

87 (2) Disclosing Results and Reports of Capital
88 Sentencing Examination. The results and reports
89 of any examination conducted solely under Rule 90 12.2 (c)(1) after notice under Rule 12.2(b)(2) must 91 be sealed and must not be disclosed to any attorney
92 for the government or the defendant unless the 93 defendant is found guilty of one or more capital
94 crimes and the defendant confirms an intent to offer
95 during sentencing proceedings expert evidence on 96 mental condition.

97 (3) Disclosing Results and Reports of the Defendant's
98 Expert Examination. After disclosure under 99 Rule 12.2(c)(2) of the results and reports of the 100 government's examination, the defendant must 101 disclose to the government the results and reports of 102 any examination on mental condition conducted by

103 the defendant's expert about which the defendant
104 intends to introduce expert evidence.

105 (4) *Inadmissibility of a Defendant's Statements. No
106 statement made by a defendant in the course of any 107 examination conducted under this rule (whether 108 conducted with or without the defendant's consent),
109 no testimony by the expert based on the statement,
110 and no other fruits of the statement may be admitted
111 into evidence against the defendant in any criminal 112 proceeding except on an issue regarding mental 113 condition on which the defendant:

114 (A) has introduced evidence of incompetency or 115 evidence requiring notice under Rule 12.2(a) or 116 (b)(1), or

117 (B) has introduced expert evidence in a capital
118 sentencing proceeding requiring notice under 119 Rule 12.2(b)(2).

- 120 (d) Failure to Comply. If the defendant fails to give notice
121 under Rule 12.2(b) or does not submit to an examination
122 when ordered under Rule 12.2(c), the court may exclude 123 any expert evidence from the defendant on the issue of 124 the defendant's mental disease, mental defect, or any 125 other mental condition bearing on the defendant's guilt
126 or the issue of punishment in a capital case.
- 127 (e) Inadmissibility of Withdrawn Intention. Evidence of 128 an intention as to which notice was given under 129 Rule 12.2(a) or (b), later withdrawn, is not, in any civil or 130 criminal proceeding, admissible against the person who 131 gave notice of the intention.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 12.2 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

The substantive changes to Rule 12.2 are designed to address five issues. First, the amendments clarify that a court may order a mental examination for a defendant who has indicated an intention to raise a defense of mental condition bearing on the issue of guilt. Second, the defendant is required to give notice of an intent to present expert evidence of the defendant's mental condition during a capital sentencing proceeding. Third, the amendments address the ability of the trial court to order a mental examination for a defendant who has given notice of an intent to present evidence of mental condition during capital sentencing proceedings and when the results of that examination may be disclosed. Fourth, the amendment addresses the timing of disclosure of the results and reports of the defendant's expert examination. Finally, the amendment extends the sanctions for failure to comply with the rule's requirements to the punishment phase of a capital case.

Under current Rule 12.2(b), a defendant who intends to offer expert testimony on the issue of his or her mental condition on the question of guilt must provide a pretrial notice of that intent. The amendment extends that notice requirement to a defendant who intends to offer expert evidence, testimonial or otherwise, on his or her mental condition during a capital sentencing proceeding. As several courts have recognized, the better practice is to require pretrial notice of that intent so that any mental examinations can be conducted without unnecessarily delaying capital sentencing proceedings. See, e.g., United States v. Beckford, 962 F. Supp. 748, 754-64 (E.D. Va. 1997); United States v. Haworth, 942 F. Supp. 1406, 1409 (D.N.M. 1996). The amendment adopts that view.

Revised Rule 12.2(c)(1) addresses and clarifies the authority of the court to order mental examinations for a defendant — to determine competency of a defendant to stand trial under 18 U.S.C. § 4241; to determine the defendant's sanity at the time of the alleged offense under 18 U.S.C. § 4242; or in those cases where the defendant intends to present expert testimony on his or her mental condition. Rule 12.2(c)(1)(A) reflects the traditional authority of the court to order competency examinations. With regard to examinations to determine insanity at the time of the offense, current Rule 12.2(c) implies that the trial court may grant a government motion for a mental examination of a defendant who has indicated under Rule 12.2(a) an intent to raise the defense of insanity. But the corresponding statute, 18 U.S.C. § 4242, requires the court to order an examination if the defendant has provided notice of an intent to raise that defense and the government moves for the examination. Revised Rule 12.2(c)(1)(B) now conforms the rule to § 4242. Any examination conducted on the issue of the insanity defense would thus be conducted in accordance with the procedures set out in that statutory provision.

Revised Rule 12.2(c)(1)(B) also addresses those cases where the defendant is not relying on an insanity defense, but intends to offer expert testimony on the issue of mental condition. While the authority of a trial court to order a mental examination of a defendant who has registered an intent to raise the insanity defense seems clear, the authority under the rule to order an examination of a defendant who intends only to present expert testimony on his or her mental condition on the issue of guilt is not as clear. Some courts have concluded that a court may order such an examination. See, e.g., United States v. Stackpole, 811 F.2d 689, 697 (1st Cir. 1987); United States v. Buchbinder, 796 F.2d 910, 915 (1st Cir. 1986); and United States v. Halbert, 712 F.2d 388 (9th Cir. 1983). In United States v. Davis, 93 F.3d 1286 (6th Cir. 1996), however, the court in a detailed analysis of the issue concluded that the district court lacked the authority under the rule to order a mental examination of a defendant who had provided notice of an intent to offer evidence on a defense of diminished capacity. The court noted first that the defendant could not be ordered to undergo commitment and examination under 18 U.S.C. § 4242, because that provision relates to situations when the defendant intends to rely on the defense of insanity. The court also rejected the argument that the examination could be ordered under Rule 12.2(c) because this was, in the words of the rule, an "appropriate case." The court concluded, however, that the trial court had the inherent authority to order such an examination.

The amendment clarifies that the authority of a court to order a mental examination under Rule 12.2(c)(1)(B) extends to those cases when the defendant has provided notice, under Rule 12.2(b), of an intent to present expert testimony on the defendant's mental condition, either on the merits or at capital sentencing. See, e.g., United States v. Hall, 152 F.3d 381 (5th Cir. 1998), cert. denied, 119 S. Ct. 1767 (1999).

The amendment to Rule 12.2(c)(1) is not intended to affect any statutory or inherent authority a court may have to order other mental examinations.

The amendment leaves to the court the determination of what procedures should be used for a court-ordered examination on the defendant's mental condition (apart from insanity). As currently provided in the rule, if the examination is being ordered in connection with the defendant's stated intent to present an insanity defense, the procedures are dictated by 18 U.S.C. § 4242. On the other hand, if the examination is being ordered in conjunction with a stated intent to present expert testimony on the defendant's mental condition (not amounting to a defense of insanity) either at the guilt or sentencing phases, no specific statutory counterpart is available. Accordingly, the court is given the discretion to specify the procedures to be used. In so doing, the court may certainly be informed by other provisions, which address hearings on a defendant's mental condition. See, e.g., 18 U.S.C. § 4241, et. seq.

Additional changes address the question when the results of an examination ordered under Rule 12.2(b)(2) may, or must, be disclosed. The Supreme Court has recognized that use of a defendant's statements during a court-ordered examination may compromise the defendant's right against self-incrimination. See Estelle v. Smith, 451 U.S. 454 (1981) (defendant's privilege against self-incrimination violated when he was not advised of right to remain silent during court-ordered examination and prosecution introduced statements during capital sentencing hearing). But subsequent cases have indicated that the defendant waives the privilege if the defendant introduces expert testimony on his or her mental condition. See, e.g., Powell v. Texas, 492 U.S. 680, 683-84 (1989); Buchanan v. Kentucky, 483 U.S. 402, 421-24 (1987); Presnell v. Zant, 959 F.2d 1524, 1533 (11th Cir. 1992); Williams v. Lynaugh, 809 F.2d 1063, 1068 (5th Cir. 1987); United States v. Madrid, 673 F.2d 1114, 1119-21 (10th Cir. 1982). That view is reflected in Rule 12.2(c), which indicates that the statements of the defendant may be used against the defendant only after the defendant has introduced testimony on his or her mental condition. What the current rule does not address is if, and to what extent, the prosecution may see the results of the examination, which may include the defendant's statements, when evidence of the defendant's mental condition is being presented solely at a capital sentencing proceeding.

The proposed change in Rule 12.2(c)(2) adopts the procedure used by some courts to seal or otherwise insulate the results of the examination until it is clear that the defendant will introduce expert evidence about his or her mental condition at a capital sentencing hearing; i.e., after a verdict of guilty on one or more capital crimes, and a reaffirmation by the defendant of an intent to introduce expert mental-condition evidence in the sentencing phase. See, e.g., United States v. Beckford, 962 F. Supp. 748 (E.D. Va. 1997). Most courts that have addressed the issue have recognized that if the government obtains early access to the accused's statements, it will be required to show that it has not made any derivative use of that evidence. Doing so can consume time and resources. See, e.g., United States v. Hall, supra, 152 F.3d at 398 (noting that sealing of record, although not constitutionally required, "likely advances interests of judicial economy by avoiding litigation over [derivative use issue]").

Except as provided in Rule 12.2(c)(3), the rule does not address the time for disclosing results and reports of any expert examination conducted by the defendant. New Rule 12.2(c)(3) provides that upon disclosure under subdivision (c)(2) of the results and reports of the government's examination, disclosure of the results and reports of the defendant's expert examination is mandatory, if the defendant intends to introduce expert evidence relating to the examination.

Rule 12.2(c), as previously written, restricted admissibility of the defendant's statements during the course of an examination conducted under the rule to an issue respecting mental condition on which the defendant "has introduced testimony" — expert or otherwise. As amended, Rule 12.2(c)(4) provides that the admissibility of such evidence in a capital sentencing proceeding is triggered only by the defendant's introduction of expert evidence. The Committee believed that, in this context, it was appropriate to limit the government's ability to use the results of its expert mental examination to instances in which the defendant has first introduced expert evidence on the issue.

Rule 12.2(d) has been amended to extend sanctions for failure to comply with the rule to the penalty phase of a capital case. The selection of an appropriate remedy for the failure of a defendant to provide notice or submit to an examination under subdivisions (b) and (c) is entrusted to the discretion of the court. While subdivision (d) recognizes that the court may exclude the evidence of the defendant's own expert in such a situation, the court should also consider "the effectiveness of less severe sanctions, the impact of preclusion on the evidence at trial and the outcome of the case, the extent of prosecutorial surprise or prejudice, and whether the violation was willful." Taylor v. Illinois, 484 U.S. 400, 414 n.19 (1988) (citing Fendler v. Goldsmith, 728 F.2d 1181 (9th Cir. 1983)).

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication was to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 12.2 was one of those rules. As outlined in the Committee Note, this proposed revision of Rule 12.2 includes five substantive amendments. Another version of Rule 12.2, which does not include these significant amendments, appears in what has been referred to as the "style" package.

- 1 (a) Who Must File.
- 2 (1) Nongovernmental Corporate Party. Any
- 3 nongovernmental corporate party to a proceeding in
- 4 a district court must file a statement that identifies

5 any parent corporation and any publicly held 6 corporation that owns 10% or more of its stock or 7 states that there is no such corporation.

8 (2) Organizational Victim. If an organization is a 9 victim of the alleged criminal activity, the 10 government must file a statement identifying the 11 victim. If the organizational victim is a corporation,
12 the statement must also disclose the information
13 required by Rule 12.4(a)(1) to the extent it can be 14 obtained through due diligence.

15 (b) Time for Filing; Supplemental Filing. A party must:
16 (1) file the Rule 12.4(a) statement upon the defendant's
17 initial appearance; and 18 (2) promptly file a supplemental statement upon any 19 change in the information that the statement
20 requires.

COMMITTEE NOTE

Rule 12.4 is a new rule modeled after Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 26.1 and parallels similar provisions being proposed in new Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 7.1. The purpose of the rule is to assist judges in determining whether they must recuse themselves because of a "financial interest in the subject matter in controversy." Code of Judicial Conduct, Canon 3C(1)(c)(1972). It does not, however, deal with other circumstances that might lead to disqualification for other reasons.

Under Rule 12.4(a)(1), any nongovernmental corporate party must file a statement that indicates whether it has any parent corporation that owns 10% or more of its stock or indicates that there is no such corporation. Although the term "nongovernmental corporate party" will almost always involve organizational defendants, it might also cover any third party that asserts an interest in property to be forfeited under new Rule 32.2.

Rule 12.4(a)(2) requires an attorney for the government to file a statement that lists any organizational victims to the alleged criminal activity; the purpose of this disclosure is to alert the court to the fact that a possible ground for disqualification might exist. Further, if the organizational victim is a corporation, the statement must include the same information required of any nongovernmental corporate party. The rule requires an attorney for the government to use due diligence in obtaining that information from a corporate organizational victim, recognizing that the timing requirements of Rule 12.4(b) might make it difficult to obtain the necessary information by the time the initial appearance is conducted.

Although the disclosures required by Rule 12.4 may seem limited, they are calculated to reach the majority of circumstances that are likely to call for disqualification on the basis of information that a judge may not know or recollect. Framing a rule that calls for more detailed disclosure is problematic and will inevitably require more information than is necessary for purposes of automatic recusal. Unnecessary disclosure of volumes of information may create the risk that a judge will overlook the one bit of information that might require disqualification, and may also create the risk that courts will experience unnecessary disqualifications rather than attempt to unravel a potentially difficult question.

The same concerns about overbreadth are potentially present in any local rules that might address this topic. Rule 12.4 does not address the promulgation of any local rules that might address the same issue, or supplement the requirements of the rule. However, the authority granted to the Judicial Conference to require additional disclosures provides authority to preempt any local rules on the same topic.

The rule does not cover disclosure of all financial information that could be relevant to a judge's decision whether to recuse himself or herself from a case. The Committee believes that with the various disclosure practices in the federal courts and with the development of technology, more comprehensive disclosure may be desirable and feasible. The Committee further believes that the Judicial Conference is in the best position to develop any additional requirements and to adjust those requirements as technological and other developments warrant. Accordingly, Rule 12.4(a)(1)(B) authorizes the Judicial Conference to promulgate more detailed financial disclosure requirements for criminal cases.

Rule 12.4(b)(1) indicates that the time for filing the disclosure statement is at the point when the defendant enters an initial appearance under Rule 5. Although there may be other instances where an earlier appearance of a party in a civil proceeding would raise concerns about whether the presiding judicial officer should be notified of a possible grounds for recusal, the Committee believed that in criminal cases, the most likely time for that to occur is at the initial appearance and that it was important to set a uniform triggering event for disclosures under this rule.

Finally, Rule 12.4(b)(2) requires the parties to file supplemental statements with the court if there are any changes in the information required in the statement.

1 ~~Rule 26. Taking of Testimony~~

2 ~~— In all trials the testimony of witnesses shall be taken~~
 3 ~~orally in open court, unless otherwise provided by an Act of~~ 4 ~~Congress or by these rules, the Federal Rules of Evidence, or~~
 5 ~~other rules adopted by the Supreme Court.~~

6 Rule 26. Taking Testimony

7 (a) In General. In every trial the testimony of witnesses
 8 must be taken in open court, unless otherwise provided
 9 by a statute or by rules adopted under 28 U.S.C. §§ 2072-
 10 2077.

11 (b) Transmitting Testimony from a Different Location.

- 12 In the interest of justice, the court may authorize 13 contemporaneous, two-way video presentation in open
14 court of testimony from a witness who is at a different 15 location if:
- 16 (1) the requesting party establishes exceptional
17 circumstances for such transmission;
- 18 (2) appropriate safeguards for the transmission are used;
19 and
- 20 (3) the witness is unavailable within the meaning of 21 Federal Rule of Evidence 804(a)(4)-(5).

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 26 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Rule 26(a) is amended, by deleting the word "orally," to accommodate witnesses who are not able to present oral testimony in open court and may need, for example, a sign language interpreter. The change conforms the rule, in that respect, to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 43.

A substantive change has been made to Rule 26(b). That amendment permits a court to receive the video transmission of an absent witness if certain conditions are met. As currently written, Rule 26 indicates that normally only testimony given in open court will be considered, unless otherwise provided by these rules, an Act of Congress, or any other rule adopted by the Supreme Court. An example of a rule that provides otherwise is Rule 15. That Rule recognizes that depositions may be used to preserve testimony if there are exceptional circumstances in the case and it is in the interest of justice to do so. If the person is "unavailable" under Federal Rule of Evidence 804(a), then the deposition may be used at trial as substantive evidence. The amendment to Rule 26(b) extends the logic underlying that exception to contemporaneous video testimony of an unavailable witness. The amendment generally parallels a similar provision in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 43.

The Committee believed that permitting use of video transmission of testimony only in those instances when deposition testimony could be used is a prudent and measured step. A party against whom a deposition may be introduced at trial will normally have no basis for objecting if contemporaneous testimony is used instead. Indeed, the use of such transmitted testimony is in most regards superior to other means of presenting testimony in the courtroom. The participants in the courtroom can see for themselves the demeanor of the witness and hear any pauses in the testimony, matters that are not normally available in non-video deposition testimony. Although deposition testimony is normally taken with all counsel and parties present with the witness, there may be exceptions. See, e.g., United States v. Salim, 855 F.2d 944, 947-48 (2d Cir. 1988) (conviction affirmed where deposition testimony, taken overseas, was used although defendant and her counsel were not permitted in same room with witness, witness's lawyer answered some questions, lawyers were not permitted to question witness directly, and portions of proceedings were not transcribed verbatim).

The revised rule envisions several safeguards to address possible concerns about the Confrontation Clause rights of a defendant. First, under the rule, the court is authorized to use "contemporaneous two-way" video transmission of testimony. Thus, this rule envisions procedures and techniques very different from those used in Maryland v. Craig, 497 U.S. 836 (1990) (transmission of one-way closed circuit television of child's testimony). Two-way transmission ensures that the witness and the persons present in the courtroom will be able to see and hear each other. Second, the court must first find that there are "exceptional circumstances" for using video transmissions, a standard used in United States v. Gigante, 166 F.3d 75, 81 (2nd Cir. 1999). While it is difficult to catalog examples of circumstances considered to be "exceptional," the inability to the defendant and the defense counsel to the witness's location would normally be an exceptional circumstance. Second, arguably the exceptional circumstances test, when combined with the requirement in Rule 26.2(b)(3) that the witness be unavailable, is as least as stringent as the standard set out in Maryland v. Craig, 497 U.S. 836 (1990). In that case the Court indicated that a defendant's confrontation rights "may be satisfied absent a physical, face-to-face confrontation at trial only where denial of such confrontation is necessary to further an important government public policy and only where the reliability of the testimony is otherwise assured." Craig, 497 U.S. at 850. In Gigante, the court noted that because the video system in Craig was a one-way closed circuit transmission, the use of a two-way transmission made it unnecessary to apply the Craig standard.

The Committee recognized that there is a need for the trial court to impose appropriate safeguards and procedures to insure the accuracy and quality of the transmission, the ability of the jurors to hear and view the testimony, and the ability of the judge, counsel, and the witness to hear and understand each other during questioning. See, e.g., United States v. Gigante, 166 F.3d 75 (2d Cir. 1999).

Deciding what safeguards are appropriate is left to the sound discretion of the trial court. The Committee envisions that in establishing those safeguards the court will be sensitive to a number of key issues. First, it is important that the procedure maintain the dignity and decorum normally associated with a federal judicial proceeding. That would normally include ensuring that the witness's testimony is transmitted from a location where there are no, or minimal, background distractions, such as persons leaving or entering the room. Second, it is important to insure the quality and integrity of the two-way transmission itself. That will usually mean employment of technologies and equipment that are proven and reliable. Third, the court may wish to use a surrogate, such as an assigned marshal or special master, as used in Gigante, supra, to appear at the witness's location to ensure that the witness is not being influenced from an off-camera source and that the equipment is working properly at the witness's end of the transmission. Fourth, the court should ensure that the court, counsel, and jurors can clearly see and hear the witness during the transmission. And it is equally important that the witness can clearly see and hear counsel, the court, and the defendant. Fifth, the court should ensure that the record reflects the persons who are present at the witness's location. Sixth, the court may wish to require that representatives of the parties to be present at the witness's location. Seventh, the court may inquire of counsel, on the record, whether additional safeguards might be employed. Eighth, the court should probably preserve any recording of the testimony, should a question arise about the quality of the transmission. Finally, the court may consider issuing a pretrial order setting out the appropriate safeguards employed under the rule. See

United States v. Gigante, 971 F. Supp. 755, 759-60 (E.D.N.Y. 1997) (court order setting out safeguards and procedures).

The Committee believed that including the requirement of "unavailability" as that term is defined in Federal Rule of Evidence 804(a)(4) and (5) will insure that the defendant's Confrontation Clause rights are not infringed. In deciding whether to permit contemporaneous transmission of the testimony of a government witness, the Supreme Court's decision in Maryland v. Craig, 497 U.S. 836 (1990) is instructive. In that case, the prosecution presented the testimony of a child sexual assault victim from another room by one-way closed circuit television. The Court outlined four elements that underlie Confrontation Clause issues: (1) physical presence; (2) the oath; (3) cross-examination; and (4) the opportunity for the trier-of-fact to observe the witness's demeanor. Id. at 847. The Court rejected the notion that a defendant's Confrontation Clause rights could be protected only if all four elements were present. The trial court had explicitly concluded that the procedure was necessary to protect the child witness, i.e., the witness was psychologically unavailable to testify in open court. The Supreme Court noted that any harm to the defendant resulting from the transmitted testimony was minimal because the defendant received most of the protections contemplated by the Confrontation Clause, i.e., the witness was under oath, counsel could cross-examine the absent witness, and the jury could observe the demeanor of the witness. See also United States v. Gigante, supra (use of remote transmission of unavailable witness's testimony did not violate confrontation clause).

Although the amendment is not limited to instances such as those encountered in Craig, it is limited to situations when the witness is unavailable for any of the reasons set out in Federal Rule of Evidence 804(a)(4) and (5). Whether under particular circumstances a proposed transmission will satisfy some, or all, of the four protective factors identified by the Supreme Court in Craig, is a decision left to the trial court.

The amendment provides an alternative to the use of depositions, which are permitted under Rule 15. The choice between these two alternatives for presenting the testimony of an otherwise unavailable witness will be influenced by the individual circumstances of each case, the available technology, and the extent to which each alternative serves the values protected by the Confrontation Clause. See Maryland v. Craig, supra.

REPORTER'S NOTES

In publishing the "style" changes to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, the Committee decided to publish separately any rule that includes what it considered at least one major substantive change. The purpose for this separate publication was to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 26 was one of those rules. This proposed revision of Rule 26 includes an amendment that would authorize a court to receive testimony from a remote location. Another version of Rule 26, which does not include this significant amendment, is presented in what has been referred to as the "style" package.

- 1 Rule 30-Instructions
- 2 ~~At the close of the evidence or at such earlier time during~~
- 3 ~~the trial as the court reasonably directs, any party may file~~
- 4 ~~written requests that the court instruct the jury on the law as~~

5 ~~set forth in the requests. At the same time copies of such~~ 6 ~~requests shall be furnished to all parties. The court shall~~
7 ~~inform counsel of its proposed action upon the requests prior~~
8 ~~to their arguments to the jury. The court may instruct the jury~~
9 ~~before or after the arguments are completed or at both times.~~
10 ~~No party may assign as error any portion of the charge or~~ 11 ~~omission therefrom unless that party objects thereto before the~~ 12 ~~jury retires to consider its verdict, stating distinctly the matter~~
13 ~~to which that party objects and the grounds of the objection.~~
14 ~~Opportunity shall be given to make the objection out of the~~ 15 ~~hearing of the jury and, on request of any party, out of the~~ 16 ~~presence of the jury.~~

17 Rule 30. Jury Instructions

18 (a) In General. Any party may request in writing that the 19 court instruct the jury on the law as specified in the 20 request. The request must be made at the close of the 21 evidence or at any earlier time that the court reasonably

22 sets. When the request is made, the requesting party must 23 furnish a copy to every other party.

24 (b) Ruling on a Request. The court must inform the parties
25 before closing arguments how it intends to rule on the 26 requested instructions.

27 (c) Time for Giving Instructions. The court may instruct 28 the jury before or after the arguments are completed, or 29 at both times.

30 (d) Objections to Instructions. A party who objects to any 31 portion of the instructions or to a failure to give a 32 requested instruction must inform the court of the 33 specific objection and the grounds for the objection
34 before the jury retires to deliberate. An opportunity must 35 be given to object out of the jury's hearing and, on 36 request, out of the jury's presence. Failure to object in 37 accordance with this rule precludes appellate review,
38 except as permitted under Rule 52(b).

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 30 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

Rule 30(a) reflects a change in the timing of requests for instructions. As currently written, the trial court may not direct the parties to file such requests before trial without violating Rules 30 and 57. While the amendment falls short of requiring all requests to be made before trial in all cases, the amendment permits a court to do so in a particular case or as a matter of local practice under local rules promulgated under Rule 57. The rule does not preclude the practice of permitting the parties to supplement their requested instructions during the trial.

Rule 30(d) clarifies what, if anything, counsel must do to preserve a claim of error regarding an instruction or failure to instruct. The rule retains the requirement of a contemporaneous and specific objection (before the jury retires to deliberate). As the Supreme Court recognized in Jones v. United States, 527 U.S. 373 (1999), read literally, current Rule 30 could be construed to bar any appellate review absent a timely objection when in fact a court may conduct a limited review under a plain error standard. The amendment does not address the issue of whether objections to the instructions must be renewed after the instructions are given, in order to preserve a claim of error. No change in practice is intended by the amendment.

23 ~~assistance involves information or evidence not known~~
24 ~~by the defendant until one year or more after sentence is~~

26 ~~been rendered, the court may consider the defendant's~~

27 pre-sentence assistance. In applying this subdivision, the 28 court may reduce the sentence to a level below that 29 established by statute as a minimum sentence.

30 ~~(c) Correction of Sentence by Sentencing Court.~~ The 31 court, acting within 7 days after the imposition of 32 sentence, may correct a sentence that was imposed as a
33 result of arithmetical, technical, or other clear error.

34 Rule 35. Correcting or Reducing a Sentence

35 (a) Definition. For purposes of this rule, “sentencing”
36 means the entry of the judgment.

37 (b) Correcting Clear Error. Within 7 days after 38 sentencing, the court may correct a sentence that resulted 39 from arithmetical, technical, or other clear error.

40 (c) Reducing a Sentence for Substantial Assistance.

41 (1) In General. Upon the government’s motion made 42 within one year of sentencing, the court may reduce 43 a sentence if:

66 FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

44 (A) the defendant, after sentencing, provided
45 substantial assistance in investigating or 46 prosecuting another person; and

47 (B) reducing the sentence accords with the 48 Sentencing Commission's guidelines and policy
49 statements.

50 (2) Later Motion. Upon the government's motion made
51 more than one year after sentencing, the court may 52 reduce a sentence if the defendant's substantial
53 assistance involved:

54 (A) information not known to the defendant until 55 one year or more after sentencing;

56 (B) information provided by the defendant to the 57 government within one year of sentencing, but 58 which did not become useful to the government
59 until more than one year after sentencing; or

60 (C) information the usefulness of which could not 61 reasonably have been anticipated by the 62 defendant until more than one year after 63 sentencing and which was promptly provided to 64 the government after its usefulness was 65 reasonably apparent to the defendant.

66 (3) Evaluating Substantial Assistance. In evaluating 67 whether the defendant has provided substantial
68 assistance, the court may consider the defendant's
69 presentence assistance.

70 (4) Below Statutory Minimum. When acting under 71 Rule 35(b), the court may reduce the sentence to a 72 level below the minimum sentence established by 73 statute.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The language of Rule 35 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Criminal Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules.

These changes are intended to be stylistic only, except as noted below.

The Committee deleted current Rule 35(a) (Correction on Remand). Congress added that rule, which currently addresses the issue of the district court's actions following a remand on the issue of sentencing, in the Sentencing Reform Act of 1984. Pub. L. No. 98-473. The rule cross-references 18 U.S.C. § 3742, also enacted in 1984, which provides detailed guidance on the various options available to the appellate courts in addressing sentencing errors. In reviewing both provisions, the Committee concluded that Rule 35(a) was no longer needed. First, the statute clearly covers the subject matter and second, it is not necessary to address an issue that would be very clear to a district court following a decision by a court of appeals. In the place of current Rule 35(a), the Committee has inserted a definition of sentencing, to indicate that for the purposes of Rule 35, "sentencing" means the entry of the judgment.

Former Rule 35(c), which addressed the authority of the court to correct certain errors in the sentence, is now located in Rule 35(b). In the current version of Rule 35(c), the sentencing court is authorized to correct errors in the sentence if the correction is made within seven days of the imposition of the sentence. Although the term "imposition of sentence" was not defined in the rule, the courts that addressed the issue were split. The majority view was that the term meant the oral announcement of the sentence and the minority view was that it meant the entry of the judgment. See United States v. Aguirre, 214 F.3d 1122, 1124-25 (9th Cir. 2000) (discussion of Rule 35(c) and citing cases). The Committee was persuaded that the more appropriate term, in the context of Rule 35, was the term "sentencing" and that it should be defined as the point when judgment is entered. Although the Committee recognizes that the amendment may cause a change in practice (at least in those circuits that read current Rule 35(c) to mean the oral announcement of the sentence) that approach makes Rule 35 consistent with other rules, including the Rules of Appellate Procedure, which treat the entry of the judgment as the triggering event for appellate timetables.

A substantive change has been made in revised Rule 35(c). Under current Rule 35(b), if the government believes that a sentenced defendant has provided substantial assistance in investigating or prosecuting another person, it may move the court to reduce the original sentence; ordinarily, the motion must be filed within one year of sentencing. In 1991, the rule was amended to permit the government to file such motions after more than one year had elapsed if the government could show that the defendant's substantial assistance involved "information or evidence not known by the defendant" until more than one year had elapsed. The current rule, however, did not address the question whether a motion to reduce a sentence could be filed and granted in those instances when the defendant's substantial assistance involved information provided by the defendant within one year of sentence but that did not become useful to the government until more than one year after sentencing (e.g., when the government starts an investigation to which the information is pertinent). The courts were split on the issue. Compare United States v. Morales, 52 F.3d 7 (1st Cir. 1995) (permitting filing and granting of motion) with United States v. Orozco, 160 F.3d 1309 (11th Cir. 1998) (denying relief and citing cases). Although the court in Orozco felt constrained to deny relief under Rule 35(b), the court urged an amendment of the rule to:

address the apparent unforeseen situation presented in this case where a convicted defendant provides information to the government prior to the expiration of the jurisdictional, one-year period from sentence imposition, but that information does not become useful to the government until more than one year after sentence imposition: Id. at 1316, n. 13.

Nor does the existing rule appear to allow a substantial assistance motion under equally deserving circumstances where a defendant, who fails to provide information within one year of sentencing because its usefulness could not reasonably have been anticipated, later provides the information to the government promptly upon its usefulness becoming apparent.

Revised Rule 35(c) is intended to address both of those situations. First, Rule 35(c)(2)(B) makes clear that a sentence reduction motion is permitted in those instances identified by the court in Orozco. Second, Rule 35(c)(2)(C) recognizes that a post-sentence motion is also appropriate in those instances where the defendant did not provide any information within one year of sentencing, because its usefulness was not reasonably apparent to the defendant during that period. But the rule requires that once the defendant realizes the importance of the information the defendant promptly provide the information to the government. What constitutes "prompt" notification will depend on the circumstances of the case.

The rule's one-year restriction generally serves the important interests of finality and of creating an incentive for defendants to provide promptly what useful information they might have. Thus, the proposed amendment would not eliminate the one-year requirement as a generally operative element. But where the usefulness of the information is not reasonably apparent until a year or more after sentencing, no sound purpose is served by the current rule's removal of any incentive to provide that information to the government one year or more after the sentence (or if previously provided, for the government to seek to reward the defendant) when its relevance and substantiality become evident.

By using the term “involves” in Rule 35(c)(2) in describing the sort of information that may result in substantial assistance, the Committee recognizes that a court does not lose jurisdiction to consider a Rule 35(c)(2) motion simply because other information, not covered by any of the three provisions in Rule 35(c)(2), is presented in the motion.

The purpose for this separate publication is to highlight for the bench and the bar any proposed amendments that the Committee believes will result in significant changes in current practice. Rule 35 was one of those rules. This proposed revision of Rule 35 includes an amendment that would authorize a court to hear a motion to reduce a sentence, more than one year after sentence was imposed, when the defendant’s substantial assistance involved information known to the defendant within one year after sentencing, but no motion was filed because the significance or usefulness of the information was not apparent until after the one-year period had elapsed. Another version of Rule 35, which does not include this amendment, is presented in what has been referred to as the “style” package.

65 following circumstances:

66 (A) when the defendant is voluntarily absent after 67 the trial has begun, regardless of whether the 68 court informed the defendant of an obligation to 69 remain during trial;

70 (B) in a noncapital case, when the defendant is 71 voluntarily absent during sentencing; or

76 FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

72 (C) when the court warns the defendant that it will 73 remove the defendant from the courtroom for 74 disruptive behavior, but the defendant persists
75 in conduct that justifies removal from the 76 courtroom.

77 (2) Waiver's Effect. If the defendant waives the right to 78 be present, the trial may proceed to completion, 79 including the verdict's return and sentencing, during 80 the defendant's absence.

COMMITTEE NOTE

The first substantive change is reflected in Rule 43(a), which recognizes several exceptions to the requirement that a defendant must be present in court for all proceedings. In addition to referring to exceptions that might exist in Rule 43 itself, the amendment recognizes that a defendant need not be present when the court has permitted video teleconferencing procedures under Rules 5 and 10 or when the defendant has waived the right to be present for the arraignment under Rule 10. Second, by inserting the word "initial" before "arraignment," revised Rule 43(a)(1) reflects the view that a defendant need not be present for subsequent arraignments based upon a superseding indictment.

The Rule has been reorganized to make it easier to read and apply; revised Rule 43(b) is former Rule 43(c).

PROPOSED SUBSTANTIVE AMENDMENTS TO
THE FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE
MAY 2001

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 4

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 4

One commentator expressed his views on the proposed amendment to Rule 4; he urged the Committee to consider amending the rule to make provision for a magistrate judge to issue a warrant via fax.

III. COMMENTS: Rule 4

Judge Bernard Zimmerman (CR-015)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court, ND California
January 26, 2001

In a short comment, Judge Zimmerman urges the Committee to consider amending Rule 4 to clarify the ability of the judge to issue warrants via facsimile transmission.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 5

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 5

Thirty-nine (39) commentators presented written comments on proposed amendments to Rule 5, most of them addressing the proposal regarding video teleconferencing. Of those commenting on the issue, twenty-five (25) expressed general approval of the amendment, especially if video teleconferencing was conducted with the defendant's consent. Federal judges and magistrate judges, including the Magistrate Judges Association, submitted most of the positive comments. Twelve (12) commentators objected to the proposal to permit video teleconferencing, for a variety of reasons. Of those expressing a negative response, several represented organizations, such as the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers. At least one federal judge expressed the view that permitting a court to use video teleconferencing with the consent of the defendant was a reasonable step. Judge Cauthron, Chair of the Committee on Defender Services recommends deferral of the amendment, pending discussion on the impact of the amendment.

At a hearing held in Washington, D.C., four witnesses testified in opposition to the amendment. Of those, three objected to any form of video teleconferencing. The fourth would agree with the change if the video teleconferencing was conducted with the defendant's consent.

III. LIST OF WITNESSES: Rule 5

Judge Paul D. Borman, United States District Judge, Detroit, Michigan

IV. COMMENTS: Rule 5

Guy Miller Struve CR-003

On behalf of the Committee on Federal Courts, NY Bar Assn.

New York, N.Y.

September 28, 2000

Writing on behalf of the Federal Courts Committee of the New York City Bar Association, Mr. Struve indicates that the Committee has a favorable impression of the amendments generally. But it opposes the amendment to Rule 5 that would permit video teleconferencing of initial appearances. He provides a long list of concerns, focusing primarily on the important need for the defense counsel and defendant to meet in person and conduct critical business. The Committee does not object to using video teleconferencing for arraignments under Rule 10. That procedure, he notes, is often a formality. A rule 5 proceeding, on the other hand, is not a simple formality.

Judge Alan B. Johnson, CR-004

United States District Judge

D. Wyoming

Cheyenne, WY

October 4, 2000

Judge Johnson favors the proposed amendments to Rules 5, 5.1; 10, and 26 that would permit greater use of video teleconferencing and transmission of live testimony. He notes that in Wyoming the courts face problems with requiring prisoners and security personnel to travel great distances for relatively short appearances. That process is expensive and inefficient, given that at least two persons are detailed to transport prisoners. He adds that such movements are usually on short notice and do not provide an adequate opportunity for United States Marshals to screen and develop information on the general health of the individual. This presents special problems in light of exposure to resistant strains of tuberculosis. He notes that the Wyoming courts are equipped with excellent technology to use video teleconferencing.

Jack E. Horsley, Esq. (CR-007)
Mattoon, Illinois
October 13, 2000

Mr. Horsley recommends that Rule 5(d) be amended by adding the words "or any other document," before the words "filed with it."

Andrew M. Franck, Esq. (CR-009)
Williamsburg, VA
November 8, 2000

Mr. Franck opposes the amendments to Rules 5, 10, and 43 that would permit video teleconferencing—even if the defendant consents. First, he notes, because the preliminary hearing and arraignment are administrative in nature, there is no practical problem of permitting video teleconferencing. But it is important for the defendant to be subjected to a personal appearance before the judge and realize the full impact of what he is facing. Also, it is important for the judge to observe the defendant personally. He observes that there are always nuances involved in such proceedings and that it is critical that both parties are in each other's presence.

Judge Paul D. Borman (CR-011)
United States District Judge
Detroit, Michigan
January 2, 2001

Judge Borman has requested the opportunity to present testimony to the Committee, noted below.

Elizabeth Phillips Marsh (CR-013)
Professor of Law
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
January 10, 2001

Professor Marsh has requested the opportunity to present testimony to the Committee, noted below.

Judge Bernard Zimmerman (CR-015)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court, ND California
January 26, 2001

Judge Zimmerman supports the amendments that would permit video teleconferencing. In his view, the amendments are long overdue. He also urges the Committee to consider amending Rule 4 to clarify the ability of the judge to issue warrants via facsimile transmission.

Judge Robin J. Cauthron (CR-017)
Chair, Committee on Defender Services
Judicial Conference of the United States
January 30, 2001

Judge Cauthron notes that her predecessor, Judge Diamond, had expressed concern in 1994 (when the Committee had last proposed video teleconferencing) that costs would not be saved by implementing video teleconferencing. Although the Committee's proposals were withdrawn pending the results of pilot programs, to date there has not been an analysis of cost or quality concerns. She requests that the Committee defer action on the video teleconferencing amendments until the Committee on Defender Services can discuss the impact of those amendments.

Judge Robert P. Murrian (CR-018)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Tennessee
February 5, 2001

Judge Murrian supports the amendments that would provide for video teleconferencing—with or without the defendant's consent. He believes, however, that the judge should have the prerogative to require the defendant to appear in court. In his division, considerable time and resources are spent transporting defendants eighteen miles to the court for routine initial appearances and arraignments that are little more than scheduling conferences.

Judge Thomas W. Phillips (CR-019)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Tennessee
February 5, 2001

Judge Phillips writes that he agrees with the views of Judge Murrian, supra.

Judge James E. Seibert (CR-022)
United States Magistrate Judge
Northern District of West Virginia
Wheeling West Virginia
February 7, 2001

Judge Seibert strongly disagrees that the defendant should be allowed to determine whether video teleconferencing is used. He notes that it is a two, three, or four hour drive to the three other cities covered by the court and that it is often not possible to plan far enough in advance to have all of the defendants at a particular location ready to appear before the court. He notes that every lawyer and defendant who has appeared before him by video conference has been "extremely grateful for the prompt hearing that wastes neither time nor money of anyone." He states that he has never had any objection to appearance by video conference. On another matter, he strongly agrees that portions of Rules 32.1 and 40 belong in Rule 5.

Judge William G. Hussmann (CR-023)
United States Magistrate Judge
Indianapolis, Indiana
February 5, 2001

Judge Hussmann believes that video teleconferencing should occur only with the consent of the defendant. Although initial proceedings, etc have limited importance, they can have great impact on some practical issues. Because of increased caseloads and crowded jails, it is common to hear complaints from defendants that they are unable to talk to their lawyer or to talk to family members about bail or other pressing family matters. Appearing in person often presents an opportunity for communication. Although video technology has improved, in his view, it does not provide an appropriate venue for communications between counsel and family.

Judge Robert Collings (CR-024)
United States Magistrate Judge
Boston, Mass.
February 14, 2001.

Writing on behalf of Magistrate Judges Lawrence P. Cohen and Judith G. Dein, Judge Collings offers a revision to proposed Rule 5(c)(2)(A). They suggest that that provision be divided into two parts to deal with different situations. They approve of the proposed revision that allows a person arrested in one district to be brought before a magistrate judge in an adjacent district if the initial appearance can be held more promptly in that district. They believe, however, that provision should be made to allow a defendant arrested in one district to be brought before a magistrate in an adjacent district "if the adjacent district is the district in which the prosecution is pending and if the initial appearance will be held in that district on the same day as the arrest." In summary, they suggest carving out a different rule when the adjacent district is the district of prosecution.

Dean A. Stang (CR-025)
Federal Defender
Eastern District of Wisconsin
Milwaukee, Wisconsin
February 12, 2001.

Mr. Stang opposes the proposed amendments involving video teleconferencing. He indicates that initial appearances and arraignments are not pro forma events and that those proceedings provide both parties with an opportunity to discuss very important matters. Using teleconferencing will result in lost plea bargains, early cooperation, and prompt release decisions. He notes a number of practical problems that will arise and that teleconferencing makes no practical accommodation for interpreters. Mr. Hillier notes that he is not aware of any special danger to law enforcement officers or court personnel by requiring in-court appearances. Further, teleconferencing will interfere with the critical stages of forming an attorney-client relationship. Finally, teleconferencing will undermine both the dignity of the federal courts and Sixth Amendment values.

Judge Michael J. Watanabe (CR-026)
United States Magistrate Judge
Denver, Colorado
February 13, 2001

Judge Watanabe briefly writes that he strongly favors use of video teleconferencing. He states that he has used it in civil cases and that it works very well.

Thomas W. Hillier, II (CR-027)
Federal Public Defender
Western District of Washington
February 12, 2001

Mr. Hillier presents a detailed objection to the video teleconferencing amendments, on behalf of the Federal Public and Community Defenders. He notes that the current practice works well and that the initial appearance is not a pro forma proceeding. He presents a careful overview of the important decisions that are made in the face-to-face meetings between the defendant, the defense counsel, and the prosecutor. Those meetings, he asserts, assure prompt processing of the case. Mr. Hillier believes that video teleconferencing is impractical and presents difficult situations for both the defendant and the defense counsel who must decide whether to remain at the courthouse, with the judge and the prosecutor or travel to where the defendant is located. He notes that the system is likely to result in increased costs and that no in-depth study has been conducted. Further, he observes that in Rule 10, the ability of the defendant to waive presence at the arraignment negates the need for teleconferencing in that rule. Finally, he identifies a list of unresolved issues and urges the Committee to table its proposals pending further study.

Judge Cynthia Imbrogno (CR-029)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Washington
February 12, 2001

Judge Imbrogno enthusiastically supports the video teleconferencing amendments. She writes that there are only two magistrate judges covering the Eastern District of Washington and that they often drive over three hours (one way) to conduct proceedings in other cities within the district. As a result, some duty stations are not covered because of the need to spend time traveling. She notes that the technology is sufficiently advanced to maintain the integrity of the proceedings. Defense counsel, she writes, are very supportive of teleconferencing because it gives them greater flexibility in scheduling. She would support video teleconferencing without requiring the defendant's consent.

Judge William A. Knox (CR-030)
United States Judge
February 13, 2001

Judge Knox favors video teleconferencing. He says that he has used it in civil proceedings, including trials, and finds it to be "reliable, practical, efficient, and [has had] no difficulty protecting the rights of the parties." Judge Knox states that if the equipment is poor it is a waste of time to use it.

Judge Leslie G. Foschio (CR-031)
United States Magistrate Judge
Buffalo, New York
February 13, 2001

Judge Foschio favors video teleconferencing for arraignments, especially for superseding arraignments, where the defendant has been already arraigned and bail has been set.

Larry Propes (CR-033)
Clerk of Court
United States District Court, South Carolina
February 13, 2001

Mr. Propes indicates that the judges in both the Greenville and Florence divisions are interested in using video teleconferencing for initial appearances because the courthouses are not in convenient or close proximity to the county jails being used by the US Marshals Service. He observes that if the rule requires the consent of the defendant, few, if any, will consent. He therefore recommends that video teleconferencing not be contingent on the defendant's consent.

Judge Lorenzo F. Garcia (CR-034)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court
Albuquerque, New Mexico
February 13, 2001

Judge Garcia favors using video teleconferencing, especially for arraignments. He notes that in New Mexico, a number of defendants are simply passing through the state when they are arrested and bringing them back to court simply for an arraignment can result in unnecessary costs; where the defendant is indigent, the court must direct advancement of travel costs for the defendant. Judge Garcia also writes that he has had experience with arraignment waivers in state court and that the system worked well.

Judge George P. Kazen (CR-035)
United States District Judge
Southern District of Texas
February 13, 2001

Judge Kazen believes that it is very important to provide for waiver of personal appearance at initial proceedings (Rules 5, 10 and 43), either by written waiver or video appearance. Citing his experience in a border court, in one of five districts they hear almost 30 percent of the criminal cases for the entire nation. The initial arraignment is largely perfunctory used to set a motions schedule. Most of the defendants plead not guilty and are housed as many as 60 to 300 miles away from a courthouse. He notes that frequently the defendants reside at a distant location and if they are released, there are problems in bringing them back for those proceedings. Judge Kazen observes that given the considerable apprehension about this proposal, it would be prudent to adopt a proposal that requires the defendant's consent.

Donna A. Bucella (CR-036)
United States Attorney
Middle District of Florida,
Tampa, Florida
February 14, 2001

Ms. Bucella observes that if the defendant is allowed to waive appearances at an arraignment, the government's consent should be required. She also notes that the Committee Note is ambiguous on just how video teleconferencing will be accomplished for initial appearances. She adds that if the purpose of the amendments is to save money, that the Committee ought to say so explicitly.

Judge James E. Bredar (CR-037)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court for Maryland
February 13, 2001

Judge Bredar opposes the use of video teleconferencing. He believes that there is much at stake in federal criminal cases and that the sooner the defendant understands the gravity of his situation, the better. He adds that from his time as a public defender, there nothing that helps to focus the mind than to walk into a federal courtroom. He believes that the overall process will be "denigrated" by reducing those appearances to a television experience.

Judge John C. Coughenour (CR-038)
Chief Judge, United States District Court
Western District of Washington
Seattle, Washington
February 6, 2001

Judge Coughenour opposes video teleconferencing in proposed Rules 5 and 10. In his view, the solemnity and fairness of the defendant's appearance in court in the presence of counsel and the judge far outweigh the security problems. The solution, he notes, is heightened vigilance and not the sacrifice of cherished traditions. His views, he notes, are based on his research into the issue: in 1990 he was a member of the Court Administration and Case Management Committee which had supervised a pilot program. As a result of that study, the Committee had believed strongly that video teleconferencing seriously eroded the full and fair examination of facts and witnesses. He urges the Committee to reject the amendments.

Judge Jerry A. Davis (CR-039)
United States Magistrate Judge
ND of Mississippi
February 12, 2001

Judge Davis endorses video teleconferencing. He notes that state courts have been using it for years and that he has been using it for prisoner cases for several years and that there are no "downsides." He observed that it is useful for security purposes and in rural areas. He concludes by noting that any perceived constitutional problems are imagined, not real.

Judge Janice M. Stewart (CR-040)
United States Magistrate Judge
Portland, Oregon
February 12, 2001

Judge Stewart favors the proposals for video conferencing. But due to concerns about separating the defendant and defense counsel and the problems that that creates, she believes video conferencing should be used only where the defendant consents.

Judge David Nuffer (CR-041)
United States Magistrate Judge
St George, Utah
February 13, 2001

Judge Nuffer, a part time magistrate judge, strongly favors video conferencing. In Utah he works 300 miles from the courthouse.

Judge William Beaman (CR-042)
February 12, 2001

Judge Beaman strongly approves of video conferencing, but would require the defendant's consent.

Judge Susan K. Gauvey (CR-043)
United States Magistrate Judge
District of Maryland
February 15, 2001

Judge Gauvey recounts her experiences in the Maryland state courts with video conferencing. She observed what she calls assembly line justice. The proceedings were held in a large room and appeared surreal and chilling. There was no communication between the judge and the defendant. In contrast, in federal courts, all parties are more focused and she is concerned that a judge could not pick up the subtle hesitations or halting speech or odd manner that may be signs of impairment.

Federal Magistrate Judges Association (CR-044)
(Draft Report—Subject to Board Ratification)
February 15, 2001

The Magistrate Judges Association supports the proposed video conferencing. The Association recounts the benefits of using such procedures and suggests that some of the concerns about the erosion of the process might be addressed if the judge visits the detention facility and determines if that facility as a room suitable for conducting teleconferencing, along with a private telephone line and a room where the defendant can consult in private with his or her attorney. The Association favors video conferencing without requiring the defendant's consent.

Judge Tommy Miller (CR-045)
United States Magistrate Judge, Eastern District of Virginia
(Law Student Comments from William and Mary Law School, Williamsburg, Virginia)
February 12, 2001

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, Kimberly Marinoff, expresses concern about the video conferencing provision. She believes that it "eviscerates the utility" of the proceedings "as a wake-up call by insulating the accused from the physical presence of the judge." She concludes, however, that if the amendment is to remain, she would support the alternate version that requires the defendant's consent.

Another student, Tom Brzowski, applauds the style changes to the rules, but suggests that the Committee include a provision in Rule 5 that would make clear what the remedy is for failure to comply with the timing requirements of the rule. He provides a summary of the conflicting caselaw and statutory provisions and argues that whatever remedy the Committee chooses would provide predictability to practitioners.

A third student, James Ewing, addresses the video teleconferencing provisions. He cites the historical arguments for the right of the defendant to appear personally in court and believes that even if a defendant consents to video teleconferencing, there may be problems with the perception of fairness. Thus, video conferencing should be the exception rather than the general rule, even where the defendant consents.

Judge Ronald E. Longstaff (CR-046)
Chief Judge, Southern District of Iowa
February 15, 2001

On behalf of the judges of his district, Judge Longstaff indicates that they agree with the comments submitted by Magistrate Judges Cohen, Dien, and Collings, supra concerning taking defendants to a magistrate in an adjacent district. They also support the changes for video teleconferencing and would comport to court technology procedures already in place, including both districts in Iowa.

Judge Catherine A. Walter (CR-047)
United States Magistrate Judge

Topeka, Kansas
February 15, 2001

Although she has not used video teleconferencing, Judge Walter supports its use, especially for initial appearances. She notes that the facility used to house pretrial detainees (an hour's drive from her court) has recently installed videoconferencing equipment. In her view the opportunity for the earliest time for the hearing is more important than a face-to-face appearance before a judge. She notes that there have been occasions where the availability of video conferencing would have resulted in an earlier initial appearance.

Judge Mikel H. Williams (CR-048)
February 15, 2001

Judge Williams commends the Committee for its thorough reorganization of the criminal rules and fully endorses the use of video teleconferencing for initial criminal proceedings. He notes that for the last four years his courts have used such procedures for initial criminal proceedings; they adopted the program because of concerns for serious delays in scheduling the various parties for the hearings. The district court for Idaho covers the entire state and the 400 miles distances make automobile transportation impractical and air travel can be delayed by weather. Transporting the defendants presents similar problems. He describes the process used in his district--the defendant is taken to the closest federal courthouse where he meets his CJS counsel and within two or three hours the defendant appears with counsel before the magistrate judge via video. He cannot recall a single instance where the defendant objected to that procedure; he considers the program to be a resounding success. The defendant's rights are immediately addressed and the proceeding is conducted with the same formality as if the defendant were in the judge's court. Although he would prefer to have a rule not requiring the defendant's consent, he believes that obtaining consent is not a burden.

Judge Richard A. Schell (CR-049)
Chief Judge, Eastern District of Texas
Beaumont, Texas
February 12, 2001

Judge Schell supports the proposed amendments for video teleconferencing. Although he would prefer the version that does not require consent, a rule that requires the defendant's consent is imminently reasonable. He urges the Committee to consider extending video conferencing to pleas and sentencing. He notes the long distances involved in his district and the fact that he has been using video teleconferencing for several years for sentencing and for guilty pleas, with the defendant's consent.

Fredric F. Kay (CR-050)
Federal Public Defender, District of Arizona

Tucson, Arizona
February 15, 2001

Mr. Kay writes that in the District of Arizona there are four lawyers in his office and that in FY 2000 they were appointed to represent about 8000 indigent defendants. Many of those were immigration cases. He agrees with the views expressed by Mr. Tom Hillier, supra, and strongly urges the Committee to reject the amendments. He knows of no serious cost and security concerns that would support the proposed amendments and that they should not outweigh the important aspects of having the defendant and counsel appear personally before the judge. He has watched video proceedings in the state system and has observed the defendant sitting by himself in a chair answering the judge's questions. The judges he notes, may have questions about the defendant's capacity and they have to ask a guard whether the defendant appears to be sober. Using video conferencing is something that one might expect in a weird third world country where there is no concept of presumption of innocence.

William J. Genego & Peter Goldberger (CR-055)
National Assn' of Criminal Defense Lawyers
Washington, D.C.
February 28, 2001

Mr. Genego and Mr. Goldberger, writing on behalf of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, strongly object to the proposed amendment to permit video teleconferencing of initial appearances, with or without the consent of the defendant. They observe that the Committee Note does not indicate why the amendment is necessary, other than for administrative convenience. They believe that using video teleconferencing will simply shift the costs to the defense bar and that it would seriously threaten the justice system by reducing the initial appearance to a "rote proceeding on a television screen..." They highlight a number of reasons why the initial appearance is important and state that they believe that using video will have a discriminatory impact on minorities.

Mr. Ralph Martin (CR-056)
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, DC
March 2, 2001.

Mr. Martin, writing on behalf of the American Bar Association's Criminal Justice Section, expresses opposition to the amendments to Rule 5, 10, and 43 that would permit video teleconferencing. He notes first, that although the rule does not define video teleconferencing, its use is increasing. He details a number of "costs" of requiring a defendant to be physically present, and offers a number of reasons why Rules 5 and 10 should not permit video teleconferencing—at least not without consent of the defendant. The biggest hurdle, he claims, is that use of video teleconferencing will adversely impact on the ability of the defendant to confer with counsel. He indicates that if the Committee is going to proceed with video teleconferencing, that the ABA would recommend that it be done only with the consent of the defendant.

V. TESTIMONY: Rule 5

Judge Paul D. Borman (CR-011)
United States District Judge
Detroit, Michigan
Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Judge Borman testified at a hearing in Washington, D.C. and expressed his personal views that no video teleconferencing should be used, either under Rule 5 or Rule 10. He expressed concern that doing so would reduce the criminal justice system to a series of talking heads on a television monitor. Simply because the state courts use video teleconferencing is not a sufficient reason for adopting its use in federal courts, he testified. He noted in particular that the federal courtroom is a “neutral” site and that a detention center—where the defendant is usually located during video teleconferencing—is not a neutral site. He also testified that because white-collar criminals are not normally incarcerated at the time of the initial appearance, using video teleconferencing would create a two-tiered system of criminal justice, between those who are incarcerated and those who are not.

Peter Goldberger & Greg Smith
Hearing--Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Testifying on behalf of the NADCL at a hearing in Washington, D.C., Mr. Goldberger and Mr. Greg Smith expressed strong reservations about the proposed amendments governing video teleconferencing. They noted in particular that the constitutional challenges to video teleconferencing have yet to be addressed and worked out. They believe that the amendment will inhibit justice and that its essential that there be a transition from police custody to the courtroom procedures. The proceedings are cheapened, they testified, if a defendant is not brought to the courtroom. Further, it sends a subtle message that the defendant is not worthy of an in-court proceeding. Finally, they noted that the procedure would simply shift the associated costs to the defense bar.

Elizabeth Phillips Marsh
Professor of Law
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Professor Marsh testified before the Committee in Washington, D.C. and expressed deep concerns, on behalf of the ABA, to the proposed amendments concerning video teleconferencing. In particular, she noted that using such a system separates the parties from each other and makes it difficult for the judge to assess the defendant's mental and physical condition. She observed that if the amendment were to go forward, it should require the defendant's consent, perhaps with an affirmative waiver or consent

Ms. Shelley Stark
Federal Public Defender, on behalf of Federal Public Defenders
W.D. of Pennsylvania
Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Ms. Stark testified that the Federal Public Defenders were opposed to the proposed amendments that would permit video teleconferencing in Rule 5, but was not opposed to such procedures for Rule 10 arraignments. She observed that the rule would basically shift the costs of conducting initial appearances, from the Marshal's service to the Federal Public Defenders. She noted that in those districts where counsel is not appointed to represent a defendant until after the initial appearance, there may be no legal advice as to what procedures should be consented to. She also testified that a major issue is developing a level of trust with defendants and that using video teleconferencing will simply delay that process and that if counsel do not have the trust of the defendant, it is harder to plea bargain. In effect, she added, there is no real opportunity to conduct private conversations with a client. Finally, she expressed concern that using video teleconferencing would lead to racial and economic disparity in the federal criminal justice system.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 5.1

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 5.1

Only three commentators presented written statements concerning the proposed amendment to Rule 5.1 that would permit magistrate judges to grant a continuance in a preliminary hearing over the objection of the defendant. All three were generally in support of the amendment. Of particular note were the comments from the Magistrate Judge's Assn., which indicated that it has supported the proposed amendment since 1996.

II. LIST OF COMMENTATORS: Rule 5.1

- CR-004 Judge Alan B. Johnson, United States District Judge, D. Wyoming
 Cheyenne, WY, October 4, 2000
- CR-005 Professor Harry I. Subin, New York Univ. of Law, New York, N.Y.,
 October 6, 2000.
- CR-044 Federal Magistrate Judges Association (Draft Report—Subject to Board Ratification), February 15, 2001

III. COMMENTS: Rule 5.1

Judge Alan B. Johnson, CR-004
United States District Judge
D. Wyoming
Cheyenne, WY
October 4, 2000

Judge Johnson favors the proposed amendments to Rules 5, 5.1, 10, and 26 that would permit greater use of video conferencing and transmission of live testimony. He notes that in Wyoming the courts face problems with requiring prisoners and security personnel to travel great distances for relatively short appearances. That process is expensive and inefficient, given that at least two persons are detailed to transport prisoners. He adds that such movements are usually on short notice and do not provide an adequate opportunity for United States Marshals to screen and develop information on the general health of the individual. This presents special problems in light of exposure to resistant strains of tuberculosis. He notes that the Wyoming courts are equipped with excellent technology to use video conferencing.

Professor Harry I. Subin (CR-005)
New York Univ. of Law
New York, N.Y.
October 6, 2000.

Professor Subin has no objection to the language of Rule 5.1, but urges the Committee to confront the fact that the hearing itself is virtually irrelevant in current practice, especially in large urban areas where grand juries are constantly in session. The prosecutor and avoid the need for a Rule 5.1 hearing by simply presenting the case to a grand jury. He suggests that if the Committee agrees that the ability of a defendant to present an adversarial challenge to the government's case, then it should make the hearing available to the defendant.

Federal Magistrate Judges Association (CR-044)
(Draft Report—Subject to Board Ratification)
February 15, 2001

The Association also supports the substantive amendment to Rule 5.1 that would permit magistrate judge to grant a continuance without the consent of the defendant--a change it has supported since 1996.

Ms. Stegman states that proposed Rule 6(a) is not gender neutral. The rule, she says, assumes that all judges are male.

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 7

One commentator, a law student, questions whether the requirement that a defendant waive an indictment in open court is satisfied by video teleconferencing—as proposed in Rules 5 and 10.

III. COMMENTS: Rule 7

Judge Tommy Miller (CR-045)
United States Magistrate Judge, Eastern District of Virginia
(Law Student Comments from William and Mary Law School, Williamsburg, Virginia)
February 12, 2001

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, James Ewing, notes a possible inconsistency in Rule 7(b) with the video teleconferencing provisions in Rules 5 and 10. He observes that Rule 7(b) provides that a defendant may be prosecuted for a felony on an information, if the defendant waives the right to an indictment in open court. He questions whether "in open court" could include video teleconferencing. He notes that the Committee Notes are silent on this point.

III. COMMENTS: Rule 9

Judge James E. Seibert (CR-022)
United States Magistrate Judge
Northern District of West Virginia
Wheeling West Virginia
February 7, 2001

Judge Seibert agrees with the change in Rule 9(b)(1). But he points out that he has "lost" some defendants because other magistrate judges viewed the risk of flight differently.

Judge William Beaman (CR-042)
February 12, 2001

Judge Beaman disagrees with the deletion of the last sentence of Rule 9(b)(1). He notes that if the warrant is executed out of the district, the magistrate should have some indication what the charging district believes the bail should be.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 10

Of the thirty-six (36) commentators submitting comments on the proposed amendments to Rule 10, almost all of them addressed the issue of using video teleconferencing for arraignments. Twenty four (24) generally approved of the proposal; some would support an amendment permitting the court to proceed with video teleconferencing even without the defendant's consent. Of the positive comments, many of them were from district and magistrate judges. The Magistrate Judge's Association expressed its approval of the amendment. Twelve (12) commentators were opposed to any use of video teleconferencing, but two would generally approve its use, if the defendant consented. Of the negative comments, several were filed by defense organizations.

In addition, the Committee heard testimony from four witnesses, who expressed opposition or concern about using video teleconferencing for arraignments.

IV. COMMENTS: Rule 10

Judge Alan B. Johnson, CR-004
United States District Judge
D. Wyoming
Cheyenne, WY
October 4, 2000

Judge Johnson favors the proposed amendments to Rules 5, 5.1, 10, and 26 that would permit greater use of video conferencing and transmission of live testimony. He notes that in Wyoming the courts face problems with requiring prisoners and security personnel to travel great distances for relatively short appearances. That process is expensive and inefficient, given that at least two persons are detailed to transport prisoners. He adds that such movements are usually on short notice and do not provide an adequate opportunity for United States Marshals to screen and develop information on the general health of the individual. This presents special problems in light of exposure to resistant strains of tuberculosis. He notes that the Wyoming courts are equipped with excellent technology to use video conferencing.

Andrew M. Franck, Esq. (CR-009)
Williamsburg, VA
November 8, 2000

Mr. Franck opposes the amendments to Rules 5, 10 and 43 that would permit video conferencing—even if the defendant consents. First, he notes, because the preliminary hearing and arraignment are administrative in nature, there is no practical problem of permitting video conferencing. But it is important for the defendant to be subjected to a personal appearance before the judge and realize the full impact of what he is facing. Also, it is important for the judge to observe the defendant personally. He observes that there are always nuances involved in such proceedings and that it is critical that both parties are in each other's presence.

Judge Paul D. Borman (CR-011)
United States District Judge
Detroit, Michigan
January 2, 2001

Judge Borman has requested the opportunity to present testimony to the Committee. See a summary of his testimony, below.

Elizabeth Phillips Marsh (CR-013)
Professor of Law
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
January 10, 2001

Professor Marsh has requested the opportunity to present testimony to the Committee. Her testimony is summarized below.

Judge Bernard Zimmerman (CR-015)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court, ND California
January 26, 2001

Judge Zimmerman supports the amendments that would permit video teleconferencing. In his view, the amendments are long overdue. He also urges the Committee to consider amending Rule 4 to clarify the ability of the judge to issue warrants via facsimile transmission.

Judge Robin J. Cauthron (CR-017)
Chair, Committee on Defender Services
Judicial Conference of the United States
January 30, 2001

Judge Cauthron notes that her predecessor, Judge Diamond, had expressed concern in 1994 (when the Committee had last proposed video teleconferencing) that costs would not be saved by implementing video teleconferencing. Although the Committee's proposals were withdrawn pending the results of pilot programs, to date there has not been an analysis of cost or quality concerns. She requests that the Committee defer action on the video teleconferencing amendments until the Committee on Defender Services can discuss the impact of those amendments.

Judge Robert P. Murrian (CR-018)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Tennessee
February 5, 2001

Judge Murrian supports the amendments that would provide for video teleconferencing—with or without the defendant's consent. He believes, however, that the judge should have the prerogative to require the defendant to appear in court. In his division, considerable time and resources are spent transporting defendants eighteen miles to the court for routine initial appearances and arraignments that are little more than scheduling conferences.

Judge Thomas W. Phillips (CR-019)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Tennessee
February 5, 2001

Judge Phillips writes that he agrees with the views of Judge Murrian, supra.

Judge James E. Seibert (CR-022)
United States Magistrate Judge
Northern District of West Virginia
Wheeling West Virginia
February 7, 2001

Judge Seibert strongly disagrees that the defendant should be allowed to determine whether video teleconferencing is used. He notes that it is a two, three, or four hour drive to the three other cities covered by the court and that it is often not possible to plan far enough in advance to have all of the defendants at a particular location ready to appear before the court. He notes that every lawyer and defendant who has appeared before him by video conference has been "extremely grateful for the prompt hearing that wastes neither time nor money of anyone." He states that he has never had any objection to appearance by video conference.

Judge William G. Hussmann (CR-023)
United States Magistrate Judge
Indianapolis, Indiana
February 5, 2001

Judge Hussmann believes that video teleconferencing should occur only with the consent of the defendant. Although initial proceedings, etc. have limited importance, they can have great impact on some practical issues. Because of increased caseloads and crowded jails, it is common to hear complaints from defendants that they are unable to talk to their lawyer or to talk to family members about bail or other pressing family matters. Appearing in person often presents an opportunity for communication. Although video technology has improved, in his view, it does not provide an appropriate venue for communications between counsel and family.

Dean A. Stang (CR-025)
Federal Defender
Eastern District of Wisconsin
Milwaukee, Wisconsin
February 12, 2001.

Mr. Stang opposes the proposed amendments involving video teleconferencing. He indicates that initial appearances and arraignments are not pro forma events and that those proceedings provide both parties with an opportunity to discuss very important matters. Using teleconferencing will result in lost plea bargains, early cooperation, and prompt release decisions. He notes a number of practical problems that will arise and that teleconferencing makes no practical accommodation for interpreters. Mr. Hillier notes that he is not aware of any special danger to law enforcement officers or court personnel by requiring in-court appearances. Further, teleconferencing will interfere with the critical stages of forming an attorney-client relationship. Finally, teleconferencing will undermine both the dignity of the federal courts and Sixth Amendment values.

Judge Michael J. Watanabe (CR-026)
United States Magistrate Judge
Denver, Colorado
February 13, 2001

Judge Watanabe briefly writes that he strongly favors use of video teleconferencing. He states that he has used it in civil cases and that it works very well.

Thomas W. Hillier, II (CR-027)
Federal Public Defender
Western District of Washington
February 12, 2001

Mr. Hillier presents a detailed objection to the video teleconferencing amendments, on behalf of the Federal Public and Community Defenders. He notes that the current practice works well and that the initial appearance is not a pro forma proceeding. He presents a careful overview of the important decisions that are made in the face-to-face meetings between the defendant, the defense counsel, and the prosecutor. Those meetings, he asserts, assure prompt processing the case. Mr. Hillier believes that video teleconferencing is impractical and presents difficult situations for both the defendant and the defense counsel who must decide whether to remain at the courthouse, with the judge and the prosecutor or travel to where the defendant is located. He notes that the system is likely to result in increased costs and that no in-depth study has been conducted. Further, he observes that in Rule 10, the ability of the defendant to waive presence at the arraignment negates the need for teleconferencing in that rule. Finally, he identifies a list of unresolved issues and urges the Committee to table its proposals pending further study.

Judge Cynthia Imbrogno (CR-029)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Washington
February 12, 2001

Judge Imbrogno enthusiastically supports the video teleconferencing amendments. She writes that there are only two magistrate judges covering the Eastern District of Washington and that they often drive over three hours (one way) to conduct proceedings in other cities within the district. As a result, some duty stations are not covered because of the need to spend time traveling. She notes that the technology is sufficiently advanced to maintain the integrity of the proceedings. Defense counsel, she writes, are very supportive of teleconferencing because it gives them greater flexibility in scheduling. She would support video teleconferencing without requiring the defendant's consent.

Judge William A. Knox (CR-030)
United States Judge
February 13, 2001

Judge Knox favors video teleconferencing. He says that he has used it in civil proceedings, including trials, and finds it to be "reliable, practical, efficient, and [has had] no difficulty protecting the rights of the parties. Judge Knox states that if the equipment is poor it is a waste of time to use it.

Judge Leslie G. Foschio (CR-031)
United States Magistrate Judge
Buffalo, New York
February 13, 2001

Judge Foschio favors video teleconferencing for arraignments, especially for superseding arraignments, where the defendant has been already arraigned and bail has been set.

Larry Propes (CR-033)
Clerk of Court
United States District Court, South Carolina
February 13, 2001

Mr. Propes indicates that the judges in both the Greenville and Florence divisions are interested in using video teleconferencing for initial appearances because the courthouses are not in convenient or close proximity to the county jails being used by the US Marshals Service. He observes that if the rule requires the consent of the defendant, few, if any, will consent. He therefore recommends that video teleconferencing not be contingent on the defendant's consent.

Judge Lorenzo F. Garcia (CR-034)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court
Albuquerque, New Mexico
February 13, 2001

Judge Garcia favors using video teleconferencing, especially for arraignments. He notes that in New Mexico, a number of defendants are simply passing through the state when they are arrested and bringing them back to court simply for an arraignment can result in unnecessary costs; where the defendant is indigent, the court must direct advancement of travel costs for the defendant. Judge Garcia also writes that he has had experience with arraignment waivers in state court and that the system worked well.

Judge George P. Kazen (CR-035)
United States District Judge
Southern District of Texas
February 13, 2001

Judge Kazen believes that it is very important to provide for waiver of personal appearance at initial proceedings (Rules 5, 10 and 43), either by written waiver or video appearance. Citing his experience in a border court, in one of five districts they hear almost 30 percent of the criminal cases for the entire nation. The initial arraignment is largely perfunctory used to set a motions schedule. Most of the defendants plead not guilty and are housed as many as 60 to 300 miles away from a courthouse. He notes that frequently the defendants reside at a distant location and if they are released, there are problems in bringing them back for those proceedings. Judge Kazen observes that given the considerable apprehension about this proposal, it would be prudent to adopt a proposal that requires the defendant's consent.

Donna A. Bucella (CR-036)
United States Attorney
Middle District of Florida,
Tampa, Florida
February 14, 2001

Ms. Bucella observes that if the defendant is allowed to waive appearances at an arraignment, the government's consent should be required. She also notes that the Committee Note is ambiguous on just how video teleconferencing will be accomplished for initial appearances. She adds that if the purpose of the amendments is to save money, that the Committee ought to say so explicitly.

Judge James E. Bredar (CR-037)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court for Maryland
February 13, 2001

Judge Bredar opposes the use of video conferencing. He believes that there is much at stake in federal criminal cases and that the sooner the defendant understands the gravity of his situation, the better. He adds that from his time as a public defender, there nothing that helps to focus the mind than to walk into a federal courtroom. He believes that the overall process will be "denigrated" by reducing those appearances to a television experience.

Judge John C. Coughenour (CR-038)
Chief Judge, United States District Court
Western District of Washington
Seattle, Washington
February 6, 2001

Judge Coughenour opposes video conferencing in proposed Rules 5 and 10. In his view, the solemnity and fairness of the defendant's appearance in court in the presence of counsel and the judge far outweigh the security problems. The solution, he notes, is heightened vigilance and not the sacrifice of cherished traditions. His views, he notes, are based on his research into the issue: in 1990 he was a member of the Court Administration and Case Management Committee which had supervised a pilot program. As a result of that study, the Committee had believed strongly that video conferencing seriously eroded the full and fair examination of facts and witnesses. He urges the Committee to reject the amendments.

Judge Jerry A. Davis (CR-039)
United States Magistrate Judge
ND of Mississippi
February 12, 2001

Judge Davis endorses video conferencing. He notes that state courts have been using it for years and that he has been using it for prisoner cases for several years and that there are no "downsides." He observed that it is useful for security purposes and in rural areas. He concludes by noting that any perceived constitutional problems are imagined, not real.

Judge Janice M. Stewart (CR-040)
United States Magistrate Judge
Portland, Oregon
February 12, 2001

Judge Steward favors the proposals for video teleconferencing. But due to concerns about separating the defendant and defense counsel and the problems that that creates, she believes video teleconferencing should be used only where the defendant consents.

Judge David Nuffer (CR-041)
United States Magistrate Judge
St George, Utah
February 13, 2001

Judge Nuffer, a part time magistrate judge, strongly favors video teleconferencing. In Utah he works 300 miles from the courthouse.

Judge William Beaman (CR-042)
February 12, 2001

Judge Beaman strongly approves of video teleconferencing, but would require the defendant's consent.

Judge Susan K. Gauvey (CR-043)
United States Magistrate Judge
District of Maryland
February 15, 2001

Judge Gauvey recounts her experiences in the Maryland state courts with video teleconferencing. She observed what she calls assembly line justice. The proceedings were held in a large room and appeared surreal and chilling. There was no communication between the judge and the defendant. In contrast, in federal courts, all parties are more focused and she is concerned that a judge could not pick up the subtle hesitations or halting speech or odd manner that may be signs of impairment.

Federal Magistrate Judges Association (CR-044)
(Draft Report—Subject to Board Ratification)
February 15, 2001

The Magistrate Judges Association supports the proposed video teleconferencing. The Association recounts the benefits of using such procedures and suggests that some of the concerns about the erosion of the process might be addressed if the judge visits the detention facility and determines if that facility as a room suitable for conducting teleconferencing, along with a private telephone line and a room where the defendant can consult in private with his or her attorney. The Association favors video conferencing without requiring the defendant's consent.

The Association also supports the proposed amendment that would permit a defendant to waive appearance at the arraignment. It notes that other rules already provide for waiver of various proceedings and rights. For example, Rule 40 (removal proceeding) and Rule 11 (guilty plea waives various constitutional rights).

Judge Tommy Miller (CR-045)
United States Magistrate Judge, Eastern District of Virginia
(Law Student Comments from William and Mary Law School, Williamsburg, Virginia)
February 12, 2001

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, David S. Johnson, is opposed to using video teleconferencing. He notes a number of obstacles that the courts will face, including delays in transmission. He believes that the amendment is "before its time." Only when the technology has advanced further should the amendment be adopted.

A second student, Kimberly Marinoff, expresses concern about the video conferencing provision. She believes that it "eviscerates the utility" of the proceedings "as a wake-up call by insulating the accused from the physical presence of the judge." She concludes, however, that if the amendment is to remain, she would support the alternate version that requires the defendant's consent.

Tom Brzozowski, another student, applauds the style changes to the rules, but suggests that the Committee include a provision in Rule 5 that would make clear what the remedy is for failure to comply with the timing requirements of the rule. He provides a summary of the conflicting caselaw and statutory provisions and argues that whatever remedy the Committee chooses would provide predictability to practitioners.

A fourth student, James Ewing, addresses the video teleconferencing provisions. He cites the historical arguments for the right of the defendant to appear personally in court and believes that even if a defendant consents to video teleconferencing, there may be problems with the perception of fairness. Thus, video conferencing should be the exception rather than the general rule, even where the defendant consents.

Judge Ronald E. Longstaff (CR-046)
Chief Judge, Southern District of Iowa
February 15, 2001

On behalf of the judges of his district, Judge Longstaff indicates that they agree with the comments submitted by Magistrate Judges Cohen, Dien, and Collings, supra concerning taking defendants to a magistrate in an adjacent district. They also support the changes for video teleconferencing and would comport to court technology procedures already in place, including both districts in Iowa.

Judge Catherine A. Walter (CR-047)
United States Magistrate Judge
Topeka, Kansas
February 15, 2001

Although she has not used video teleconferencing, Judge Walter supports its use, especially for initial appearances. She notes that the facility used to house pretrial detainees (an hour's drive from her court) has recently installed videoconferencing equipment. In her view the opportunity for the earliest time for the hearing is more important than a face-to-face appearance before a judge. She notes that there have been occasions where the availability of video conferencing would have resulted in an earlier initial appearance.

Judge Mikel H. Williams (CR-048)
February 15, 2001

Judge Williams commends the Committee for its thorough reorganization of the criminal rules and fully endorses the use of video teleconferencing for initial criminal proceedings. He notes that for the last four years his courts have used such procedures for initial criminal proceedings; they adopted the program because of concerns for serious delays in scheduling the various parties for the hearings. The district court for Idaho covers the entire state and the 400 miles distances make automobile transportation impractical and air travel can be delayed by weather. Transporting the defendants presents similar problems. He describes the process used in his district--the defendant is taken to the closest federal courthouse where he meets his CJS counsel and within two or three hours the defendant appears with counsel before the magistrate judge via video. He cannot recall a single instance where the defendant objected to that procedure; he considers the program to be a resounding success. The defendant's rights are immediately addressed and the proceeding is conducted with the same formality as if the defendant were in the judge's court. Although he would prefer to have a rule not requiring the defendant's consent, he believes that obtaining consent is not a burden.

Judge Richard A. Schell (CR-049)
Chief Judge, Eastern District of Texas
Beaumont, Texas
February 12, 2001

Judge Schell supports the proposed amendments for video teleconferencing. Although he would prefer the version that does not require consent, a rule that requires the defendant's consent is imminently reasonable. He urges the Committee to consider extending video conferencing to pleas and sentencing. He notes the long distances involved in his district and the fact that he has been used video teleconferencing for several years for sentencing and for guilty pleas, with the defendant's consent.

Fredric F. Kay (CR-050)
Federal Public Defender, District of Arizona
Tucson, Arizona
February 15, 2001

Mr. Kay writes that in the District of Arizona there are four lawyers in his office and that in FY 2000 they were appointed to represent about 8000 indigent defendants. Many of those were immigration cases. He agrees with the views expressed by Mr. Tom Hillier, supra, and strongly urges the Committee to reject the amendments. He knows of no serious cost and security concerns that would support the proposed amendments and that they should not outweigh the important aspects of having the defendant and counsel appear personally before the judge. He has watched video proceedings in the state system and has observed the defendant sitting by himself in a chair answering the judge's questions. The judges he notes, may have questions about the defendant's capacity and they have to ask a guard whether the defendant appears to be sober. Using video conferencing is something that one might expect in a weird third world country where there is no concept of presumption of innocence.

William J. Genego & Peter Goldberger (CR-055)
National Assn' of Criminal Defense Lawyers
Washington, D.C.
February 28, 2001

Mr. Genego and Mr. Goldberger, writing on behalf of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, state that although they have objections to video teleconferencing of arraignments, they do believe that a defendant may consent to such procedures, with the advice of a defense counsel.

Mr. Ralph Martin (CR-056)
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, DC
March 2, 2001.

Mr. Martin, writing on behalf of the American Bar Association's Criminal Justice Section, expresses opposition to the amendments to Rule 5, 10, and 43 that would permit video teleconferencing. He notes first, that although the rule does not define video teleconferencing, its use is increasing. He details a number of "costs" of requiring a defendant to be physically present, and offers a number of reasons why Rules 5 and 10 should not permit video teleconferencing—at least not without consent of the defendant. The biggest hurdle, he claims, is that use of video teleconferencing will adversely impact on the ability of the defendant to confer with counsel. He indicates that if the Committee is going to proceed with video teleconferencing, that the ABA would recommend that it be done only with the consent of the defendant.

V. TESTIMONY: Rule 10

Judge Paul D. Borman
United States District Judge
Detroit, Michigan
Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Judge Borman testified at a hearing in Washington, D.C. and expressed his personal views that no video teleconferencing should be used, either under Rule 5 or Rule 10. He expressed concern that doing so would reduce the criminal justice system to a series of talking heads on a television monitor. Simply because the state courts use video teleconferencing is not a sufficient reason for adopting its use in federal courts, he testified. He noted in particular that the federal courtroom is a "neutral" site and that a detention center—where the defendant is usually located during video teleconferencing—is not a neutral site. He also testified that because white-collar criminals are not normally incarcerated at the time of the initial appearance, using video teleconferencing would create a two-tiered system of criminal justice, between those who are incarcerated and those who are not.

Peter Goldberger & Greg Smith
Hearing--Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Testifying on behalf of the NADCL at a hearing in Washington, D.C., Mr. Goldberger and Mr. Greg Smith expressed strong reservations about the proposed amendments governing video teleconferencing. They noted in particular that the constitutional challenges to video teleconferencing have yet to be addressed and worked out. They believe that the amendment will inhibit justice and that its essential that there be a transition from police custody to the courtroom procedures. The proceedings are cheapened, they testified, if a defendant is not brought to the courtroom. Further, it sends a subtle message that the defendant is not worthy of an in-court proceeding. Finally, they noted that the procedure would simply shift the associated costs to the defense bar.

Elizabeth Phillips Marsh
Professor of Law
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Professor Marsh testified before the Committee in Washington, D.C. and expressed deep concerns, on behalf of the ABA, to the proposed amendments concerning video conferencing. In particular, she noted that using such a system separates the parties from each other and makes it difficult for the judge to assess the defendant's mental and physical condition. She observed that if the amendment were to go forward, it should require the defendant's consent, perhaps with an affirmative waiver or consent

Ms. Shelley Stark
Federal Public Defender, on behalf of Federal Public Defenders
Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Ms. Stark testified that the Federal Public Defenders were opposed to the proposed amendments that would permit video conferencing in Rule 5, but was not opposed to such procedures for Rule 10 arraignments. She observed that the rule would basically shift the costs of conducting initial appearances, from the Marshal's service to the Federal Public Defenders. She noted that in those districts where counsel is not appointed to represent a defendant until after the initial appearance, there may be no legal advice as to what procedures should be consented to. She also testified that a major issue is developing a level of trust with defendants and that using video conferencing will simply delay that process and that if counsel do not have the trust of the defendant, it is harder to plea bargain. In effect, she added, there is no real opportunity to conduct private conversations with a client. Finally, she expressed concern that using video conferencing would lead to racial and economic disparity in the federal criminal justice system.

February 12, 2001

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, Kimberly Marinoff, observes that the Committee Note reference to the fact that requiring the parties to provide phone numbers of alibi witnesses should not really be viewed as a major change. In her view this is only a nominal increase, considering our telephone-driven society. She also states that the requirement that the parties be notified of the information may be problematic if both the defendant and the defense counsel are not served. Finally, she believes that the revised version of the rule is an improvement.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 12.2

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 12.2

Only two commentators provided their views and the major substantive amendments to Rule 12.2. One of them, a law student, viewed the amendments as pro-government and the other, NADCL, pointed out a drafting error (that has since been corrected by the Advisory Committee).

February 12, 2001

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, LaRona Owens believes that the revised version of Rule 12.2 is pro-government and will frustrate a defendant's opportunities to raise the insanity defense. This is demonstrated, she notes, by the restrictions on the judge's discretion to permit the defendant to present evidence of insanity if the defendant does not meet the notice requirements of the rule.

February 12, 2001

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, Jeremy Bell, has written a paper in support of his argument that Rule 23 should specify with clarity when a defendant is entitled to a jury trial. Although the failure of Rule 23(a) to address that issue could be understandable considering that the caselaw was in flux, the problems are now pretty well settled and amending Rule 23(a) to address that issue would further the intended purpose of the rules.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 26

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 26

Although there was a small number of commentators on the proposed amendments to Rule 26, permitting remote transmission of live testimony, a majority of those who did comment were opposed to the change. Several of the commentators spoke on behalf of organizations. The NADCL, and to some extent the ABA, are opposed to the amendment. The Magistrate Judge's Association is in favor of the amendment.

Two witnesses presented testimony to the Committee in Washington, D.C. One witness raised a number of concerns about whether the published version of the rule satisfied the Confrontation Clause. The other witness reflected some concerns about whether the rule could be applied fairly to both the government and the defense.

IV. COMMENTS: Rule 26

Judge Alan B. Johnson, CR-004
United States District Judge
D. Wyoming
Cheyenne, WY
October 4, 2000

Judge Johnson favors the proposed amendments to Rules 5, 5.1, 10, and 26 that would permit greater use of video teleconferencing and transmission of live testimony. He notes that in Wyoming the courts face problems with requiring prisoners and security personnel to travel great distances for relatively short appearances. That process is expensive and inefficient, given that at least two persons are detailed to transport prisoners. He adds that such movements are usually on short notice and do not provide an adequate opportunity for United States Marshals to screen and develop information on the general health of the individual. This presents special problems in light of exposure to resistant strains of tuberculosis. He notes that the Wyoming courts are equipped with excellent technology to use video teleconferencing.

Professor Marsh has requested the opportunity to present testimony to the Committee.

Professor John B. Mitchell (CR-014)
Assoc. Prof. of Law
Seattle University School of Law
January 8, 2001

Professor Mitchell provides an in-depth critique of the proposed amendment that would permit remote transmission of live testimony. He concludes that proposed Rule 26(b) is not the constitutional equivalent of Rule 15 (depositions). That is because there is no real opportunity for effective, face-to-face, cross-examination. He believes that the decision in United States v. Gigante is wrong. He is concerned that the requirement for truly compelling circumstances will not be effective. Finally, he believes that the amendment is bad public policy.

Federal Magistrate Judges Association (CR-044)
(Draft Report—Subject to Board Ratification)
February 15, 2001

The Association supports the proposed amendment to permit remote transmission of live testimony as being a "prudent and practical concept." It believes that the defendant's rights will be preserved, considering the judge's role in imposing appropriate safeguards and procedures. Finally, it notes that in many districts it is already the practice to present videotaped testimony of unavailable witnesses—particularly with material witnesses under 18 USC 3144. Thus, the experience of the courts demonstrates the value of the proposed amendment.

Judge Tommy Miller (CR-045)
United States Magistrate Judge, Eastern District of Virginia
(Law Student Comments from William and Mary Law School, Williamsburg, Virginia)
February 12, 2001

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, Mark Ries, presents a list of reasons why the proposal for remote transmission of live testimony should be rejected: The rule fails to constrict the testimony to the same extent as that required by Rule of Evidence 804(b), that is the rule of evidence limits this type of hearsay evidence to only certain types of statements. Second, there is little in the rule to guide the trial judge in exercising his or her discretion. Third, the Committee Note brushes aside the defendant's confrontation rights, even though, as he recognizes, the rule is probably in line with recent Supreme Court decisions. Fourth, he has drafted an alternative version of Rule 26. He also includes a list of issues for potential litigation should the amendment be adopted. For example, what do the terms "interests of justice," "different location," "compelling circumstances," and "appropriate safeguards" mean? He agrees with the decision to insert the word "orally" in Rule 26(a) and he applauds the proposed stylistic changes.

A second student, Stephen F. Keane, also believes that the proposed amendment for remote transmission of testimony will deny the defendant his or her rights of confrontation. Thus, it should only occur in the most extreme circumstances. He suggests that the rule should identify more specific criteria and notes that a narrower rule will ensure that the rule is not "exploited by allowing cowardly, unsure or indifferent witnesses to testify against defendants."

Mr. Ralph Martin (CR-056)
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, DC
March 2, 2001.

Mr. Martin, writing on behalf of the American Bar Association's Criminal Justice Section, raises concerns about the proposed amendments to Rule 26, permitting video transmission of testimony. First, he notes that the Committee notes nor the rule address the issue of insuring that the participants can hear and see each other. He notes that the ABA is concerned with whether the rule adequately addresses the defendant's Sixth Amendment confrontation rights. He is concerned that the rule will become routinely used, with little or no benefit for the defense.

William J. Genego & Peter Goldberger (CR-055)
National Assn' of Criminal Defense Lawyers
Washington, D.C.
February 28, 2001

Mr. Genego and Mr. Goldberger, writing on behalf of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, offer three reasons for rejecting the proposed amendment to Rule 26. First, the rule would not limit use of remote transmission to those instances where deposition testimony is used. Second, the amendment would encourage use of video testimony as a substitute for live in-court testimony. And third, the rule would permit testimony to be used in violation of the Confrontation Clause.

Mr. Kent S. Scheidegger (CR-057)
Criminal Justice Legal Foundation
Sacramento, CA
March 16, 2001

Mr. Scheidegger, addressing the proposed amendments to Rule 26, expresses particular concern for child victims and witnesses. He notes that to the extent that Rule 26 may be an attempt to address Maryland v. Craig, there is no need for a rule because 18 USC § 3509(b) addresses that issue. He suggests that at a minimum the rule does not preclude any testimony that may be provided for by statute. In his view, the combination of the requirements of compelling circumstances and unavailability are more restrictive than that statutory provision. If the rule provides for two-way transmission, there is no constitutional issue—it is only a question of policy. Finally, he suggests that for less important witnesses the rule may be too restrictive. He suggests that the rule distinguish between one-way and two-way transmissions.

V. TESTIMONY: Rule 26

Richard D. Friedman
Professor of Law
Univ. of Michigan
Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Professor Friedman testified before the Committee in opposition to the proposed amendment that would permit remote transmission of live testimony. He detailed a number of reasons why the proposed amendment might violate the Confrontation Clause. He offered a number of suggestions for addressing those issues, including a more particularized list of grounds for finding a witness to be "unavailable."

Elizabeth Phillips Marsh
Professor of Law
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, D.C., April 25, 2001

Professor Marsh testified before the Committee and offered a few brief remarks on the proposed amendment to Rule 26. She noted that the defense counsel in the ABA were very concerned that the amendment would be used to unduly limit the ability of the defense to present testimony under the rule, where there would clearly be no Confrontation Clause issue.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 30

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 30

Three commentators, all representing associations of defense counsel, oppose the amendment to Rule 30, that would permit the court to require the parties to submit their requested instructions before trial. The general view is that permitting the court to do so would disadvantage defense counsel.

II. LIST OF COMMENTATORS: Rule 30

- CR-016 James T. Miller, Esq., on behalf of Florida Assn. of Criminal Defense Lawyers (FACDL), Jacksonville, Florida, January 24, 2001
- CR-055 William J. Genego & Peter Goldberger, National Assn' of Criminal Defense Lawyers, Washington, D.C., February 28, 2001.
- CR-056 Mr. Ralph Martin, ABA Criminal Justice Section, Washington, DC, March 2, 2001.

III. COMMENTS: Rule 30

James T. Miller, Esq. (CR-016)
On behalf of Florida Assn. of Criminal Defense Lawyers (FACDL)
Jacksonville, Florida
January 24, 2001

FACDL opposes the amendment to Rule 30 that would permit the court to require the parties to file their requested instructions earlier in the trial. They believe that the amendment is unfair and impractical and potentially creates an unfair burden on the trial counsel. Most Rule 30 conferences, they note, takes place at the close of the evidence and any attempt to require an earlier production would add unnecessary work and potentially encourage unnecessary pleadings. The current rule, they state, works well. Finally, requiring the defense to present its proposed instructions before trial may impinge on the right to a fair trial, by requiring the defense to disclose more than it needs to.

Mr. Ralph Martin (CR-056)
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, DC
March 2, 2001.

Mr. Martin, writing on behalf of the American Bar Association's Criminal Justice Section, suggests that Rule 30 be changed to permit the court to request instructions "no later than the close of the evidence or an any earlier time during the trial...." He believes that the Committee has offered an unintended change to the text and spirit of the rule.

William J. Genego & Peter Goldberger (CR-055)
National Assn' of Criminal Defense Lawyers
Washington, D.C.
February 28, 2001

Mr. Genego and Mr. Goldberger, writing on behalf of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, offer two reasons for opposing the amendment to Rule 30. First, the amendment would permit the court to place an unfair burden on the defense counsel to reveal the defense theory before trial. Second, the rule does not address the issue of whether defense counsel must restate every objection after the instructions are given.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 32

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 32

Of the eight (8) commentators submitting written comments on Rule 32, only five commented directly on the substance of the proposed amendments to the rule. Three requested the opportunity to testify before the Committee. Of those, only one focused on the rule, due in part to the fact that the Committee subsequently withdrew the substantive amendment from further consideration. Of the remaining commentators, there was general approval of the amendments. Several suggested changes in wording, some of which were adopted by the Committee.

One witness testified before the Committee on April 25, 2001, and offered several suggested changes to the rule.

IV. COMMENTS: Rule 32

Richard Crane, Esq. (CR-001)
Nashville, Tennessee
September 22, 2000

Mr. Crane notes that he is thrilled to see the requirement in Rule 32 that courts address more carefully the information in the presentence report. In his experience, it is the single most important document that the BOP considers. He adds two suggestions. First, he recommends that the definition of "material" be placed in the rule itself. And second, he recommends that the rule or the comment contain a prohibition against including information in the report that are not related to the defendant, in the absence of good cause. He notes that the practice now is to include information about co-defendant offenses and offenses on which the defendant was acquitted. Including such information can have an adverse impact on the defendant in attempting to get into drug rehab, etc.

Robert P. Longshore,
Chief Probation Officer, MD Alabama,
Montgomery Alabama
October 2, 2000.

Mr. Crane is concerned the changed wording in Rule 32(b)(4)(B), regarding the information that the probation officer should include regarding sentencing guidelines, will significantly weaken the independent inquiry that the probation officer currently provides. He indicates that the probation officer may simply become a sentence historian, reporting the facts as developed in the plea bargain, which may or may not reflect the actual offense conduct.

Judge George P. Kazen (CR-035)
United States District Judge
Southern District of Texas
February 13, 2001

Judge Kazen strongly opposes the proposal in Rule 32 that would require the judge to make findings of fact on issues that have no impact on sentencing. He observes that without reading the Committee Note it would not be clear from the rule itself what constitutes a material matter. This proposal, he states, could convert almost any sentencing hearing into a "genuine quagmire." And the impact on the appellate courts would be a problem. He appreciates the tremendous responsibility borne by the BOP and believes that judges should make sure, without the requirement of a rule, that the information in the report is accurate.

William J. Genego & Peter Goldberger (CR-055)
National Assn' of Criminal Defense Lawyers
Washington, D.C.
February 28, 2001

Mr. Genego and Mr. Goldberger, writing on behalf of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, offer a number of proposed changes to Rule 32. In particular, they urge the Committee to reconsider the various timing requirements in the rule and also recommend that the rule be further reorganized.

Mr. Ralph Martin (CR-056)
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, DC
March 2, 2001.

Mr. Martin, writing on behalf of the American Bar Association's Criminal Justice Section, offers several comments on the proposed amendments to Rule 32. First, he assumes that the proposed amendment to Rule 32(h)(1)(B) (as published) would continue to protect the identity of the person who provided the information. And second, he recommends that in Rule 32(h)(4)(C), a "good cause" requirement be added for requiring in camera sessions.

V. TESTIMONY: Rule 32

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 35

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 35

Only three commentators actually addressed the merits of the proposed amendment to Rule 35, in particular the provision for permitting the government to move for sentence reduction. While all three generally supported the change, they suggested that the rule go further in covering those situations where a defendant provides helpful information to the government, even though more than one has elapsed since sentencing.

Judge Edward R. Becker (CR-028)
Chief Judge
United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit
Philadelphia, Penn.
February 9, 2001

Judge Becker proposes a revision to Rule 35(b)(2) to read: "The court may consider a government motion to reduce a sentence made one year or more after sentencing if the defendant's substantial assistance involved at least some information not known—or the usefulness of which could not have reasonably been anticipated—until more than one year after sentencing." This suggestion, he writes, comes out of a case in the Third Circuit: United States v. Cruz-Pagan. He indicates that the current version and proposed amendment are not clear with respect to the question of "whether information known to the defendant prior to sentencing, or not known to the defendant until after sentencing but less than one year after sentence was imposed, can serve as the basis for the motion to reduce..." He offers the example of a defendant who provides information after the one year elapses—some of which he knew about before the one year elapsed and some of which he was not aware of. Judge Becker asks whether the judge has the authority to grant the motion under that example. He recommends that the Committee revise the text in accordance with his suggestions.

William J. Genego & Peter Goldberger (CR-055)
National Assn' of Criminal Defense Lawyers
Washington, D.C.
February 28, 2001

Mr. Genego and Mr. Goldberger, writing on behalf of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, offer a brief comment on the proposed amendment to Rule 35(b). They urge the Committee to further amend the rule to provide that sentence reduction may be granted for those situations where the usefulness of the defendant's helpful information cannot be fully evaluated within one year. They believe that on-going investigations should not have to be rushed to meet an artificial deadline.

Mr. Ralph Martin (CR-056)
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, DC
March 2, 2001.

Mr. Martin, writing on behalf of the American Bar Association's Criminal Justice Section, offers only a brief comment on the proposed amendment to Rule 35. He believes that the amendment does not go far enough. The one-year requirement, he notes, may not be long enough.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 41

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 41

Eleven commentators submitted written comments on the proposed amendment to Rule 41, and of those, most of the comments focused on the covert search provision—which the Committee has withdrawn from further consideration, because of concerns raised in the comments. Of those commenting on the proposal, the response was mixed. For example the NADCL was opposed to the provision but the Magistrate Judges Association endorsed the amendment.

III. COMMENTS: Rule 41

John L. Warden, Esq. (CR-006)
New York, N.Y.
October 23, 2000

Mr. Warden writes that the amendment to Rule 41, regarding "sneak and peak" warrants "appears to be an injudicious relaxation of the requirements of the Fourth Amendment. He states that "surely the courts should not be sponsoring lock-picking and climbing in windows as proper police procedures." He expresses the hope that the Judicial Conference will reject the proposal.

Professor Craig M. Bradley (CR-008)
Indiana Univ. School of Law
Bloomington, Illinois
October 27, 2000

Professor Bradley disagrees with the language in Rule 41(d)(1) to the effect that if probable cause exists, the judge must issue a warrant. He is aware of no requirement in constitutional criminal procedure that would require the judge to do so. Rather, the judge should be able to exercise discretion in deciding whether to issue a warrant. He also suggests that the rule include some guidance on what probable cause means, as well as address those situations where a warrant is not required. He has attached an article he has authored if such guidance was included.

January 10, 2001

Professor Marsh has requested the opportunity to present testimony to the Committee.

Judge Robert P. Murrian (CR-018)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Tennessee
February 5, 2001

Judge Murrian supports the substantive amendment to Rule 41 that would permit covert entries. He does not agree with Rule 41(e)(1). In his view, the warrant should not be delivered to the clerk until a return is made on the warrant. There is no need, he asserts, to have this confidential information "floating around." The clerk should get all of the papers only after the return is made.

Judge James E. Seibert (CR-022)
United States Magistrate Judge
Northern District of West Virginia
Wheeling West Virginia
February 7, 2001

Judge Seibert has mixed feelings about the covert entry provision in Rule 41. He believes that such warrants should receive the same strict scrutiny that is given to wiretap warrants. Personally, he would be reluctant to grant such applications, except in case of imminent danger to national security. He notes that it is advisable to have guidelines for such procedures.

Judge William Beaman (CR-042)
February 12, 2001

Judge Beaman agrees the amendment for covert searches. He observes that often there is a need to continue the observations beyond seven days and that reasonableness is the appropriate standard.

Federal Magistrate Judges Association (CR-044)
(Draft Report—Subject to Board Ratification)
February 15, 2001

The Association supports the amendment to Rule 41 that would address the procedures for obtain a warrant for a covert search. It will of great assistance in providing procedural guidance for searches that are already recognized in the cases. The Association also agrees with the proposed amendment that officers first attempt to obtain a warrant from a federal judicial officer. It also supports the other amendments to Rule 41.

Judge Tommy Miller (CR-045)
United States Magistrate Judge, Eastern District of Virginia
(Law Student Comments from William and Mary Law School, Williamsburg, Virginia)
February 12, 2001

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, Daniel J. Fortune, believes that the restructuring of Rule 41 is very helpful. He questions, however, whether the rule could be clearer in answering the question whether the official has to sign a faxed copy of the Duplicate Original Warrant on behalf of the judge? Or is the faxed copy good enough. He also observes that there may be an ambiguity in Rule 41(d)(3)(B)(i) on the issue of whether the rule envisions that the informant must also be involved in the phone call. Finally, he questions the language in the Rule that indicates that the magistrate must issue a warrant. Although he cannot think of any reasons why a magistrate would not want to issue a warrant, he wonders why the Committee changed the language from "shall" to "must."

Another student, Eric V.T. Nakano, states that the provision in Rule 41 for covert searches leaves out a critical third element that those warrants be granted only on a showing that there is reasonable necessity for such warrants. Permitting a covert search only on a showing of probable cause compounds any fear of government tyranny.

William J. Genego & Peter Goldberger (CR-055)
National Assn' of Criminal Defense Lawyers
Washington, D.C.
February 28, 2001

Mr. Genego and Mr. Goldberger, writing on behalf of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, strongly oppose the amendment to Rule 41 that would permit the government to obtain warrants for "covert" searches. The amendment, they argue would place the "institutional imprimatur of the federal judiciary" on such intrusions. They note that asking the Judicial Conference to Rule 41 is not the most appropriate way to seek take this significant measure. Instead, it should be vetted through the political process.

Mr. Ralph Martin (CR-056)
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
Washington, DC
March 2, 2001.

Mr. Martin, writing on behalf of the American Bar Association's Criminal Justice Section, raises a number of concerns in the proposed amendment to Rule 41. First, he notes the lack of any clear caselaw guidance on covert observations. Second, the proposed amendments do not adequately define what is meant by the term covert observation. Third, he notes that the amendment might be read expansively to cover a wide variety of other intrusions, such as silent video or computer surveillance. Fourth, he believes that the amendment will in effect approve covert observations or searches. Fifth, even though the rule requires probable cause, he believes the courts may apply only a diluted form of that requirement. Sixth, he argues that this amendment would strain other Fourth Amendment doctrines. Seventh, he believes the amendment does not sufficiently limit the scope of covert searches.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO RULE 43

I. SUMMARY OF COMMENTS: Rule 43

Thirty-three individuals or organizations submitted written comments on the proposed conforming amendment to Rule 43, which turns on approval of the amendments to Rules 5 and 10, concerning video teleconferencing and the amendment to Rule 10 that would permit the defendant to waive his or her appearance at an arraignment. The summary here is largely a duplication of the comments submitted on Rules 5 and 10, above. Most commentators simply combined their views on Rules 5, 10, and 43, as a unit.

Four witnesses testified before the Committee on the issue of video teleconferencing, although their testimony did not specifically address the conforming amendments to Rule 43. The summary of their testimony is at Rules 5 and 10, above.

III. COMMENTS: Rule 43

Andrew M. Franck, Esq. (CR-009)
Williamsburg, VA
November 8, 2000

Mr. Franck opposes the amendments to Rules 5, 10 and 43 that would permit video conferencing—even if the defendant consents. First, he notes, because the preliminary hearing and arraignment are administrative in nature, there is no practical problem of permitting video conferencing. But it is important for the defendant to be subjected to a personal appearance before the judge and realize the full impact of what he is facing. Also, it is important for the judge to observe the defendant personally. He observes that there are always nuances involved in such proceedings and that it is critical that both parties are in each other's presence.

Judge Paul D. Borman (CR-011)
United States District Judge
Detroit, Michigan
January 2, 2001

Judge Borman has requested the opportunity to present testimony to the Committee.

Elizabeth Phillips Marsh (CR-013)
Professor of Law
ABA, Criminal Justice Section
January 10, 2001

Professor Marsh has requested the opportunity to present testimony to the Committee.

Judge Bernard Zimmerman (CR-015)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court, ND California
January 26, 2001

Judge Zimmerman supports the amendments that would permit video teleconferencing. In his view, the amendments are long overdue. He also urges the Committee to consider amending Rule 4 to clarify the ability of the judge to issue warrants via facsimile transmission.

Judge Robin J. Cauthron (CR-017)
Chair, Committee on Defender Services
Judicial Conference of the United States
January 30, 2001

Judge Cauthron notes that her predecessor, Judge Diamond, had expressed concern in 1994 (when the Committee had last proposed video teleconferencing) that costs would not be saved by implementing video teleconferencing. Although the Committee's proposals were withdrawn pending the results of pilot programs, to date there has not been an analysis of cost or quality concerns. She requests that the Committee defer action on the video teleconferencing amendments until the Committee on Defender Services can discuss the impact of those amendments.

Judge Robert P. Murrian (CR-018)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Tennessee
February 5, 2001

Judge Murrian supports the amendments that would provide for video teleconferencing—with or without the defendant's consent. He believes, however, that the judge should have the prerogative to require the defendant to appear in court. In his division, considerable time and resources are spent transporting defendants eighteen miles to the court for routine initial appearances and arraignments that are little more than scheduling conferences.

Judge Thomas W. Phillips (CR-019)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Tennessee
February 5, 2001

Judge Phillips writes that he agrees with the views of Judge Murrian, supra.

Judge James E. Seibert (CR-022)
United States Magistrate Judge
Northern District of West Virginia
Wheeling West Virginia
February 7, 2001

Judge Seibert strongly disagrees that the defendant should be allowed to determine whether video teleconferencing is used. He notes that it is a two, three, or four hour drive to the three other cities covered by the court and that it is often not possible to plan far enough in advance to have all of the defendants at a particular location ready to appear before the court. He notes that every lawyer and defendant who has appeared before him by video conference has been "extremely grateful for the prompt hearing that wastes neither time nor money of anyone." He states that he has never had any objection to appearance by video conference.

Judge William G. Hussmann (CR-023)
United States Magistrate Judge
Indianapolis, Indiana
February 5, 2001

Judge Hussmann believes that video teleconferencing should occur only with the consent of the defendant. Although initial proceedings, etc. have limited importance, they can have great impact on some practical issues. Because of increased caseloads and crowded jails, it is common to hear complaints from defendants that they are unable to talk to their lawyer or to talk to family members about bail or other pressing family matters. Appearing in person often presents an opportunity for communication. Although video technology has improved, in his view, it does not provide an appropriate venue for communications between counsel and family.

Dean A. Stang (CR-025)
Federal Defender
Eastern District of Wisconsin
Milwaukee, Wisconsin
February 12, 2001.

Mr. Stang opposes the proposed amendments involving video teleconferencing. He indicates that initial appearances and arraignments are not pro forma events and that those proceedings provide both parties with an opportunity to discuss very important matters. Using teleconferencing will result in lost plea bargains, early cooperation, and prompt release decisions. He notes a number of practical problems that will arise and that teleconferencing makes no practical accommodation for interpreters. Mr. Hillier notes that he is not aware of any special danger to law enforcement officers or court personnel by requiring in-court appearances. Further, teleconferencing will interfere with the critical stages of forming an attorney-client relationship. Finally, teleconferencing will undermine both the dignity of the federal courts and Sixth Amendment values.

Judge Michael J. Watanabe (CR-026)
United States Magistrate Judge
Denver, Colorado
February 13, 2001

Judge Watanabe briefly writes that he strongly favors use of video teleconferencing. He states that he has used it in civil cases and that it works very well.

Thomas W. Hillier, II (CR-027)
Federal Public Defender
Western District of Washington
February 12, 2001

Mr. Hillier presents a detailed objection to the video teleconferencing amendments, on behalf of the Federal Public and Community Defenders. He notes that the current practice works well and that the initial appearance is not a pro forma proceeding. He presents a careful overview of the important decisions that are made in the face-to-face meetings between the defendant, the defense counsel, and the prosecutor. Those meetings, he asserts, assure prompt processing of the case. Mr. Hillier believes that video teleconferencing is impractical and presents difficult situations for both the defendant and the defense counsel who must decide whether to remain at the courthouse, with the judge and the prosecutor or travel to where the defendant is located. He notes that the system is likely to result in increased costs and that no in-depth study has been conducted. Further, he observes that in Rule 10, the ability of the defendant to waive presence at the arraignment negates the need for teleconferencing in that rule. Finally, he identifies a list of unresolved issues and urges the Committee to table its proposals pending further study.

Judge Cynthia Imbrogno (CR-029)
United States Magistrate Judge
Eastern District of Washington
February 12, 2001

Judge Imbrogno enthusiastically supports the video teleconferencing amendments. She writes that there are only two magistrate judges covering the Eastern District of Washington and that they often drive over three hours (one way) to conduct proceedings in other cities within the district. As a result, some duty stations are not covered because of the need to spend time traveling. She notes that the technology is sufficiently advanced to maintain the integrity of the proceedings. Defense counsel, she writes, are very supportive of teleconferencing because it gives them greater flexibility in scheduling. She would support video teleconferencing without requiring the defendant's consent.

Judge William A. Knox (CR-030)
United States Judge
February 13, 2001

Judge Knox favors video teleconferencing. He says that he has used it in civil proceedings, including trials, and finds it to be "reliable, practical, efficient, and [has had] no difficulty protecting the rights of the parties. Judge Knox states that if the equipment is poor it is a waste of time to use it.

Judge Leslie G. Foschio (CR-031)
United States Magistrate Judge
Buffalo, New York
February 13, 2001

Judge Foschio favors video teleconferencing for arraignments, especially for superseding arraignments, where the defendant has been already arraigned and bail has been set.

Larry Propes (CR-033)
Clerk of Court
United States District Court, South Carolina
February 13, 2001

Mr. Propes indicates that the judges in both the Greenville and Florence divisions are interested in using video conferencing for initial appearances because the courthouses are not in convenient or close proximity to the county jails being used by the US Marshals Service. He observes that if the rule requires the consent of the defendant, few, if any, will consent. He therefore recommends that video conferencing not be contingent on the defendant's consent.

Judge Lorenzo F. Garcia (CR-034)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court
Albuquerque, New Mexico
February 13, 2001

Judge Garcia favors using video conferencing, especially for arraignments. He notes that in New Mexico, a number of defendants are simply passing through the state when they are arrested and bringing them back to court simply for an arraignment can result in unnecessary costs; where the defendant is indigent, the court must direct advancement of travel costs for the defendant. Judge Garcia also writes that he has had experience with arraignment waivers in state court and that the system worked well.

Judge George P. Kazen (CR-035)
United States District Judge
Southern District of Texas
February 13, 2001

Judge Kazen believes that it is very important to provide for waiver of personal appearance at initial proceedings (Rules 5, 10 and 43), either by written waiver or video appearance. Citing his experience in a border court, in one of five districts they hear almost 30 percent of the criminal cases for the entire nation. The initial arraignment is largely perfunctory used to set a motions schedule. Most of the defendants plead not guilty and are housed as many as 60 to 300 miles away from a courthouse. He notes that frequently the defendants reside at a distant location and if they are released, there are problems in bringing them back for those proceedings. Judge Kazen observes that given the considerable apprehension about this proposal, it would be prudent to adopt a proposal that requires the defendant's consent.

Donna A. Bucella (CR-036)
United States Attorney
Middle District of Florida,
Tampa, Florida
February 14, 2001

Ms. Bucella observes that if the defendant is allowed to waive appearances at an arraignment, the government's consent should be required. She also notes that the Committee Note is ambiguous on just how video teleconferencing will be accomplished for initial appearances. She adds that if the purpose of the amendments is to save money, that the Committee ought to say so explicitly.

Judge James E. Bredar (CR-037)
United States Magistrate Judge
United States District Court for Maryland
February 13, 2001

Judge Bredar opposes the use of video teleconferencing. He believes that there is much at stake in federal criminal cases and that the sooner the defendant understands the gravity of his situation, the better. He adds that from his time as a public defender, there nothing that helps to focus the mind than to walk into a federal courtroom. He believes that the overall process will be "denigrated" by reducing those appearances to a television experience.

Judge John C. Coughenour (CR-038)
Chief Judge, United States District Court
Western District of Washington
Seattle, Washington
February 6, 2001

Judge Coughenour opposes video teleconferencing in proposed Rules 5 and 10. In his view, the solemnity and fairness of the defendant's appearance in court in the presence of counsel and the judge far outweigh the security problems. The solution, he notes, is heightened vigilance and not the sacrifice of cherished traditions. His views, he notes, are based on his research into the issue: in 1990 he was a member of the Court Administration and Case Management Committee which had supervised a pilot program. As a result of that study, the Committee had believed strongly that video teleconferencing seriously eroded the full and fair examination of facts and witnesses. He urges the Committee to reject the amendments.

Judge Jerry A. Davis (CR-039)
United States Magistrate Judge
ND of Mississippi
February 12, 2001

Judge Davis endorses video teleconferencing. He notes that state courts have been using it for years and that he has been using it for prisoner cases for several years and that there are no "downsides." He observed that it is useful for security purposes and in rural areas. He concludes by noting that any perceived constitutional problems are imagined, not real.

Judge Janice M. Stewart (CR-040)
United States Magistrate Judge
Portland, Oregon
February 12, 2001

Judge Stewart favors the proposals for video teleconferencing. But due to concerns about separating the defendant and defense counsel and the problems that that creates, she believes video teleconferencing should be used only where the defendant consents.

Judge David Nuffer (CR-041)
United States Magistrate Judge
St George, Utah
February 13, 2001

Judge Nuffer, a part time magistrate judge, strongly favors video teleconferencing. In Utah he works 300 miles from the courthouse.

Judge William Beaman (CR-042)
February 12, 2001

Judge Beaman strongly approves of video teleconferencing, but would require the defendant's consent.

Judge Susan K. Gauvey (CR-043)
United States Magistrate Judge
District of Maryland
February 15, 2001

Judge Gauvey recounts her experiences in the Maryland state courts with video teleconferencing. She observed what she calls assembly line justice. The proceedings were held in a large room and appeared surreal and chilling. There was no communication between the judge and the defendant. In contrast, in federal courts, all parties are more focused and she is concerned that a judge could not pick up the subtle hesitations or halting speech or odd manner that may be signs of impairment.

Federal Magistrate Judges Association (CR-044)
(Draft Report—Subject to Board Ratification)
February 15, 2001

The Magistrate Judges Association supports the proposed changes to Rule 43, as being consistent with the proposed rules governing video teleconferencing. The Association recounts the benefits of using such procedures and suggests that some of the concerns about the erosion of the process might be addressed if the judge visits the detention facility and determines if that facility as a room suitable for conducting teleconferencing, along with a private telephone line and a room where the defendant can consult in private with his or her attorney. The Association favors video conferencing without requiring the defendant's consent.

Judge Tommy Miller (CR-045)
United States Magistrate Judge, Eastern District of Virginia
(Law Student Comments from William and Mary Law School, Williamsburg, Virginia)
February 12, 2001

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, David S. Johnson, is opposed to using video teleconferencing. He notes a number of obstacles that the courts will face, including delays in transmission. He believes that the amendment is "before its time." Only when the technology has advanced further should the amendment be adopted.

A second student, Kimberly Marinoff, expresses concern about the video conferencing provision. She believes that it "eviscerates the utility" of the proceedings "as a wake-up call by insulating the accused from the physical presence of the judge." She concludes, however, that if the amendment is to remain, she would support the alternate version that requires the defendant's consent.

Tom Brzozowski, another student, applauds the style changes to the rules, but suggests that the Committee include a provision in Rule 5 that would make clear what the remedy is for failure to comply with the timing requirements of the rule. He provides a summary of the conflicting caselaw and statutory provisions and argues that whatever remedy the Committee chooses would provide predictability to practitioners.

A fourth student, James Ewing, addresses the video teleconferencing provisions. He cites the historical arguments for the right of the defendant to appear personally in court and believes that even if a defendant consents to video teleconferencing, there may be problems with the perception of fairness. Thus, video conferencing should be the exception rather than the general rule, even where the defendant consents.

Judge Ronald E. Longstaff (CR-046)
Chief Judge, Southern District of Iowa
February 15, 2001

On behalf of the judges of his district, Judge Longstaff indicates that they agree with the comments submitted by Magistrate Judges Cohen, Dien, and Collings, supra concerning taking defendants to a magistrate in an adjacent district. They also support the changes for video teleconferencing and would comport to court technology procedures already in place, including both districts in Iowa.

Judge Catherine A. Walter (CR-047)
United States Magistrate Judge
Topeka, Kansas
February 15, 2001

Although she has not used video teleconferencing, Judge Walter supports its use, especially for initial appearances. She notes that the facility used to house pretrial detainees (an hour's drive from her court) has recently installed videoconferencing equipment. In her view the opportunity for the earliest time for the hearing is more important than a face-to-face appearance before a judge. She notes that there have been occasions where the availability of video conferencing would have resulted in an earlier initial appearance.

Judge Mikel H. Williams (CR-048)
February 15, 2001

Judge Williams commends the Committee for its thorough reorganization of the criminal rules and fully endorses the use of video teleconferencing for initial criminal proceedings. He notes that for the last four years his courts have used such procedures for initial criminal proceedings; they adopted the program because of concerns for serious delays in scheduling the various parties for the hearings. The district court for Idaho covers the entire state and the 400 mile distances make automobile transportation impractical and air travel can be delayed by weather. Transporting the defendants presents similar problems. He describes the process used in his district--the defendant is taken to the closest federal courthouse where he meets his CJS counsel and within two or three hours the defendant appears with counsel before the magistrate judge via video. He cannot recall a single instance where the defendant objected to that procedure; he considers the program to be a resounding success. The defendant's rights are immediately addressed and the proceeding is conducted with the same formality as if the defendant were in the judge's court. Although he would prefer to have a rule not requiring the defendant's consent, he believes that obtaining consent is not a burden.

Judge Richard A. Schell (CR-049)
Chief Judge, Eastern District of Texas
Beaumont, Texas
February 12, 2001

Judge Schell supports the proposed amendments for video teleconferencing. Although he would prefer the version that does not require consent, a rule that requires the defendant's consent is imminently reasonable. He urges the Committee to consider extending video conferencing to pleas and sentencing. He notes the long distances involved in his district and the fact that he has been used video teleconferencing for several years for sentencing and for guilty pleas, with the defendant's consent.

Fredric F. Kay (CR-050)
Federal Public Defender, District of Arizona
Tucson, Arizona
February 15, 2001

Mr. Kay writes that in the District of Arizona there are four lawyers in his office and that in FY 2000 they were appointed to represent about 8000 indigent defendants. Many of those were immigration cases. He agrees with the views expressed by Mr. Tom Hillier, supra, and strongly urges the Committee to reject the amendments. He knows of no serious cost and security concerns that would support the proposed amendments and that they should not outweigh the important aspects of having the defendant and counsel appear personally before the judge. He has watched video proceedings in the state system and has observed the defendant sitting by himself in a chair answering the judge's questions. The judges he notes, may have questions about the defendant's capacity and they have to ask a guard whether the defendant appears to be sober. Using video conferencing is something that one might expect in a weird third world country where there is no concept of presumption of innocence.

Judge Miller, a member of the Criminal Rules Committee, submitted ten written comments from the law students in his Criminal Procedure class at William and Mary. One of the students, David S. Johnson, has presented an extensive written comment on amending Rule 53 to permit electronic coverage of criminal trials under the trial judge's discretion. Although he recognizes the concerns associated with broadcasting trials, he believes that the current rule goes too far. He has drafted a revised Rule 53 that includes a list of factors for the court to consider in deciding whether to broadcast the case.

COMMENTS: STYLE PACKAGE

Joe F. Spaniol, Jr., Esq. (CR-001 (Style))
Bethesda, MD.
August 24, 2000

Mr. Spaniol offers two style changes.

Rule 5. First, he recommends that Rule 5(a)(1)(B) should be clarified by adding the words "without a warrant"

Rule 11. He believes there is an inconsistency between terms used in Rule 11(e) and 28 U.S.C. § 2255. Rule 11(e) refers to an appellate court setting aside a guilty plea but § 2255 speaks in terms of a court setting aside judgments and sentences. He notes that there are thus problems using the words "the plea may be set aside" in Rule 11. He recommends that the words in Rule 11(e) should be changed to "and a judgment or sentence may be set aside."

Judge Donald C. Ashmanskas (CR-002 (Style))
United States Magistrate Judge
District of Oregon
October 4, 2000

Rule 6. Judge Ashmanskas recommends changes to Rules 6 and 53. With regard to Rule 6(f) he suggests substituting the term "presiding grand juror" for jury foreperson. And in Rule 6(f) he suggests that unless there is a provision for district judges to assume the responsibilities of a magistrate judge, that the indictment could be returned to either a federal magistrate judge or a district court judge.

Rule 53. In Rule 53 he recommends new language that would extend the prohibition of cameras, etc. to other areas in the courthouse. He also recommends that the rule be amended to permit cameras for coverage of naturalization, ceremonial, or investiture proceedings and for instructional purposes in educational institutions.

Jack E. Horsley, Esq. (CR-003 (Style))
Mattoon, Illinois
October 13, 2000

Rule 5. Mr. Horsley suggests that in referring to an affidavit, the words "or any other document" be added before the words "filed with it."

Holly Bench (CR-004 (Style))
Williamsburg, VA
November 29, 2000

Rule 4. Ms. Bench points out that in Rule 4(b)(1)(C) the words "none" may be referring to something other than the magistrate not being available. She suggests the following language: "command that the defendant be arrested and brought without unnecessary delay before a magistrate judge or, if none is available, before a state or local judicial officer."

She also suggests adding commas in Rule 4(c)(3)(C) (See her memo)

Ms. Bench also suggests that the language in Rule (c)(4)(B) be changed to read, "the person on whom the summons was served must return it" as opposed to "the person to whom a summons was delivered for service must return it."

In Rule 4(c)(4)(C), she suggests adding a comma after the word "summons."

Rule 5. She notes that there may be ambiguity in Rule 5(a)(1)(A) and (a)(1)(B) regarding who must be the one to personally take the defendant before a magistrate judge. She asks whether person executing the arrest must be the one or can that person merely have the responsibility for insuring that the defendant is taken to the magistrate.

She states that there is a possible inconsistency in Rules 5(b) and Rule 5(c)(2)(C). In (b) if the defendant is arrested without a warrant, a complaint must be filed. But in (c)(2)(C), if a defendant is arrested without a warrant, a warrant must be issued before the defendant can be transferred.

Steven W. Allen, Esq. (CR-005 (Style))
Jersey City, NJ
December 19, 2000

Rule 26.2(a). Mr. Allen, who is responsible for incorporating the new rules into MOORE'S FEDERAL PRACTICE has noticed several errors. First in regard to Rule 26.2(a), he notes that the phrase "the possession" is ungrammatical. The existing rule, he notes, uses the term "their possession" which is also ungrammatical but better than the new language. He suggests adding the words, "of the party that called the witness," after the words, "the possession."

Second, in the same rule, he states that the word "witnesses's" appears to be a typo although he notes that it might mean that production is required if it relates to the testimony of all of the witnesses.

Judge Sam A. Joyner (CR-006 (Style))
United States Magistrate Judge
Northern District of Oklahoma
January 30, 2001

Judge Joyner provides a positive endorsement for all of the rules but gives his strongest recommendation for Rules 1(b), 4, 5, 5.1, 9(b), 17(a), 32.1, 41, 43, and 55 as the most helpful.

He offers no changes to the rules.

Judge James B. Seibert (CR-007 (Style))
(Also CR-022 on the Substantive Rules)
United States Magistrate Judge
ND of West Virginia
February 7, 2001

Rule 5. Judge Seibert strongly approves the consolidation of Rules 32.1 and 40 into Rule 5.

Judge William G. Hussmann (CR-008 (Style))
(Also CR-023 on the Substantive Rules)
United States Magistrate Judge
February 5, 2001

Judge Hussmann believes that all of the rules that most directly impact his work are improvements to current practice (E.g. Rules 5, 5.1, 9, 10, 12, 41, and 43).

Judge Robert G. Doumar (CR-009 (Style))
Norfolk, VA
February 9, 2001

Judge Doumar offers style suggestions on a number of rules:

Rule 6. He suggests that in Rules 6(e)(3)(A) and 6(e)(3)(B) that the words "laws of the United States" be used instead of the "Federal criminal laws." He notes that it may be problematical on those situations where it is not clear whether the act violates the civil laws and prosecution may proceed in an indirect manner.

In Rule 6(f) he suggests that the words "federal judge" should be substituted for "magistrate judge" because it is district judges that most often receive indictments in open court.

Rule 7. In Rule 7(d) he recommends the following language, "the court may itself or on motion of any party strike surplusage from the indictment or information" instead of the proposed language.

Rule 11. He suggests substitute wording for Rule 11(b)(H): "Any maximum possible prison penalty, special assessment, criminal forfeiture, fine, term of supervised release and that restitution may be ordered as determined as a result of the commission of the offense." This wording, he notes, would eliminate other possible penalties and clarify the issue of restitution.

He also suggests that in Rule 11(b)(J) that the word "authority" should be deleted and substitute the words "that the court's ability to depart from the guidelines is severely limited." He believes that the word "authority" can create problems beyond belief.

He commends the Committee for deleting the language in Rule 11(d) concerning whether the defendant had talked with the government about a plea. He states that that portion of the inquiry has always caused problems.

In Rule 11(d)(2)(B) he recommends that it be changed to "on motion of the defendant, if the court determines good cause to have been shown, to allow withdrawal of the plea."

Rule 12.1 Rule 12.1(b)(2). He suggests adding the words, "unless the court otherwise directs." The 10-day rule may be impossible, he notes, because of the time of service of the alibi defense.

Rule 12.2 Regarding Rule 12.2(a), he recommends that the words "in the case" be added as well as Rule 12.2(b) after the words "attorney for the government."

Rule 12.3. In Rule 12.3 he would add "in the case" after the words "attorney for the government."

Rule 16. Regarding Rule 16(a)(1)(G), recommends that the experts to be disclosed be "technical or scientific" expert witnesses, not "specialized knowledge." He notes that lay witnesses sometimes have specialized knowledge and that the disclosure should be limited to technical or scientific experts.

Rule 17. He recommends that it should be a requisite to returned all served subpoenas to the clerk before trial and also those summons not served

Rule 24. Rule 24(a)(2)(A). He suggests that instead of the proposed language, that the following be substituted: "submit further questions that the court may ask if it considers them proper or with the court's permission ask further questions that the court considers proper."

Finally, in Rule 24(b) he recommends the reduction of the number of peremptory challenges to six and three instead of ten and six. Batson, he says, has eliminated the need for any peremptory challenges.

Judge William Beaman (CR-010 (Style))
February 12, 2001

Rule 41. He agrees with the language regarding covert searches but notes that often it is necessary to continue those observations beyond 7 days. Reasonableness, he states, is the appropriate test.

MINUTES [DRAFT]
of
THE ADVISORY COMMITTEE on
FEDERAL RULES OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

April 25-26, 2001
Washington, D.C.

The Advisory Committee on the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure met at Washington, D.C. on April 25 and 26, 2001. These minutes reflect the discussion and actions taken at that meeting.

Quinnipiac University School of Law
(On behalf of Criminal Justice Section, American Bar Association)
- Ms. Shelley Stark
Federal Public Defender, W.D., Pa
(On behalf of Federal Public and Community Defenders)

III. APPROVAL OF MINUTES

Judge Miller moved that the minutes of the Committee's meeting in San Diego, California in October 2000 be approved. The motion was seconded by Mr. Goldberg and following a minor correction, carried by a unanimous vote.

IV. RECENT AMENDMENTS TO CRIMINAL RULES

Professor Schlueter informed the Committee that amendments to Rules 6, 7, 11, 24(c), 32.2, and 54 (approved by the Supreme Court on April 17, 2000) had been become effective on December 1, 2000.

V. CRIMINAL RULES UNDER CONSIDERATION

A. Introductory Comments by Judge Davis, Chair

Judge Davis pointed out that the two subcommittees had met in March to discuss possible changes to the proposed rules, based in part on the public comments received on the amendments. He proposed that the Committee take each rule, in order and discuss both the style and substantive changes, in order. He also noted that the Style Subcommittee had submitted additional suggested style changes, following the subcommittee's meetings.

B. Rule by Rule Consideration of Proposed Changes.

1. Rule 1. Scope; Definitions:

The Reporter noted that the Committee had agreed to restore a reference in (F) to 28 U.S.C. § 1784.

2. Rule 2. Interpretation

Judge Carnes informed the Committee that Subcommittee A had no additional changes to Rule 2.

3. Rule 3. The Complaint

Judge Bucklew noted that no changes had been made to Rule 3

4. Rule 4. Arrest Warrant or Summons on a Complaint

Judge Bucklew reported that Subcommittee A had recommended that Rule 4(c)(2) be amended to reflect the recently enacted Military Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Act (Pub. L. No. 106-523, 114 Stat. 2488). That act now recognizes that arrest warrants may be executed outside the United States. The Committee agreed to that change

5. Rule 5. Initial Appearance

a. Substantive Amendment: Video Conferencing.

Judge Miller reported that Subcommittee A had considered a number of style changes to the rule. Judge Davis suggested that the Committee consider the major substantive amendments to Rule 5, regarding the use of video conferencing for initial appearances. Judge Carnes observed that given the public comments on the proposed changes that the Committee was probably obligated to send the amendment forward.

Judge Miller moved that the Committee forward the version of Rule 5 that would permit the court to use teleconferencing without the consent of the defendant. Judge Roll seconded the motion. The Committee engaged in an extensive discussion of the motion. The Reporter provided a brief overview of the history of similar amendments that had been considered by the Committee in 1994 that led to a pilot program..

One member questioned whether there might be a way to accommodate those districts that would really use the technology, because of security concerns or extremely heavy dockets, without adopting a national rule. Mr. Campbell reminded the Committee that if video teleconferencing was used, that the costs saved by the court and marshals in not having to transport defendants to the courthouse would be shifted to the offices of the public defenders that might have to travel to the defendant's location. Several members also noted concerns expressed by members of the public that video teleconferencing is being used in state courts and that the quality of those proceedings may fall short.

Mr. Pauley spoke in favor of the motion, noting that a rule requiring consent would not really add anything because some federal courts are already using video teleconferencing procedures with the consent of the defendant; he reiterated that virtually every rule can be waived by the defendant. Judge Trager questioned whether it might be advisable to amend the rule to impose a mileage limit before a court could use video teleconferencing. Judge Roll observed that whatever system was used the court should take steps to maintain the dignity of the proceedings. And Professor Stith indicated that a court should take steps to put the defendant and the defense counsel in the same location.

Following additional discussion, the Committee rejected the motion by a vote of 5 to 6.

Judge Carnes moved that Rule 5 be amended to permit video teleconferencing with the consent of the defendant. Judge Roll seconded the motion. Following additional discussion, the Committee voted 7 to 4 to forward the amendment to the Standing Committee. (The Committee also voted at this point, by a vote of 8 to 3, to permit the court to use video teleconferencing for arraignments, with the consent of the accused).

b. Proposed Style Changes

Turning to proposed style changes to Rule 5, the Reporter indicated that Subcommittee A had recommended that Rule 5(a)(1)(B) be amended to reflect the recently enacted Military Extraterritorial Jurisdiction Act (Pub. L. No. 106-523, 114 Stat. 2488).

Judge Miller also pointed out that the rule was inconsistent in its use of the terms "where the offense was allegedly committed" and "where the prosecution is pending." Following brief discussion, the Committee decided to use the former reference, for clarity and consistency.

Judge Miller also noted that there was a potential gap relating to preliminary hearings vis a vis proceedings before a magistrate. Following brief discussion, Mr. Campbell, Mr. Pauley, and Judge Miller proposed language to address the issue.

6. Rule 5.1. Preliminary Hearing in a Felony Case

The Committee briefly discussed Subcommittee A's minor style changes to Rule 5.1, and approved them. The Committee also discussed briefly the proposed substantive change to Rule 5.1 that would permit magistrate judges to grant a continuance, over the objection of the defendant. Judge Miller moved that the Committee approve and forward the proposed substantive amendment. Judge Carnes seconded the motion, which carried by a unanimous vote.

7. Rule 6. The Grand Jury

Professor Stith lead the discussion on the proposed style changes to Rule 6 and that Subcommittee A had recommended that a new subdivision (iii) be added that would provide an exception for disclosures authorized under 18 U.S.C. § 3322 (authorizing disclosures for civil forfeiture and civil banking laws, etc. The Committee approved the change.

8. Rule 7. The Indictment and the Information

Professor Stith also reported that Subcommittee A had recommended a change to Rule 7 (inserting a parenthetical) that would clarify that the rule does not apply in criminal contempt proceedings. The Committee agreed to the change.

9. Rule 8. Joinder of Offenses or Defendants

Judge Friedman reported that Subcommittee A had recommended only minor style changes to Rule 8, which were accepted by the Committee.

10. Rule 9. Warrant or Summons Upon Indictment or Information

Judge Friedman also reported that Subcommittee A recommended minor style changes; the Committee agreed to those changes.

11. Rule 10. Arraignment

The Committee discussed the proposed substantive amendment to Rule 10, which would permit the defendant to waive his or her appearance at the arraignment. Following a brief discussion, Judge Miller moved that the amendment be approved and forwarded to the Standing Committee. Judge Roll seconded the motion, which carried by a unanimous vote. (The Committee had previously discussed and voted to go forward with the proposed substantive amendment that would permit use of video conferencing for arraignments).

12. Rule 11. Pleas

Mr. Campbell pointed out that Subcommittee B had recommended some style changes to Rule 11, including a change to Rule 11(b)(1)(A) to clarify the government's use of statements made by a defendant. He also noted that in Rule 11(e), Subcommittee B recommended that the reference to 28 U.S.C. § 2255 be changed to "collateral attack" to recognize that a plea may be set aside during some other form of collateral attack and just under § 2255, as noted in United States v. Jeffers, 234 F3d 277 (5th Cir. 2000). Mr. Campbell also pointed out that the Subcommittee recommended that Rule 11(f) be revised to simply state that "The admissibility or inadmissibility of a plea, plea discussion, and any related statement is governed by Federal Rule of Evidence 410." That will avoid the possible drafting problems of restyling that provision, which was originally intended to mirror Rule of Evidence 410.

Mr. Pauley questioned whether Rule 11(b)(1) could be clarified to more accurately distinguish between the judge's advice to the defendant concerning maximum and mandatory minimum sentences. In particular, he noted that the current restyled version included the punishment of forfeiture in the section dealing with maximum sentences when in fact, he believed, that punishment should be listed in the subsection dealing with mandatory minimum sentences. Following some additional discussion, Mr. Campbell offered a possible amendment that was accepted by the Committee.

13. Rule 12. Pleadings and Motions Before Trial; Defenses and Objections

Judge Roll informed the Committee that Subcommittee B had proposed additional, minor, style changes to Rule 12. The Committee accepted those changes.

14. Rule 12.1. Notice of Alibi Defense

Judge Roll also stated that Subcommittee B had proposed some style changes to Rule 12.1. The Committee also discussed the question of whether the rules should use the word "intention" or "intent" in Rules 12.1, 12.2, etc. It ultimately agreed to accept the recommendations of the Subcommittees, which had recommended using the term "intent."

15. Rule 12.2. Notice of Insanity Defense or Expert Testimony of Defendant's Mental Condition.

The Committee discussed the style changes proposed by Subcommittee B and the proposed substantive amendment. Mr. Pauley moved, and Judge Roll seconded, a motion to approve and forward that substantive amendment. The motion carried by a unanimous vote.

16. Rule 12.3. Notice of Public Authority Defense

In discussing Rule 12.3, Judge Roll pointed out that Subcommittee B had recommended some additional minor style changes. The Committee accepted those changes.

17. Rule 12.4. Disclosure Statement (New Rule)

Turning to new Rule 12.4, in the substantive package of amendments, Judge Roll informed the Committee that Subcommittee B had recommended several changes. offer several recommended changes. First, regarding Rule 12.4(a)(2), the subcommittee recommended adding the words, "to the extent it can be obtained through due diligence" at the end of that section. Second, he pointed out that the language in Rule 12.4(b)(1) was intended to track similar language in the Civil Rules counterpart to this rule but creates problems in applying the requirements to a criminal proceeding. Thus, the subcommittee recommended modifying Rule 12.4(b)(1) to indicate that the disclosure requirements are triggered with the defendant's initial appearance. The Committee accepted those proposed changes.

Second, Judge Scirica pointed out that in discussing the issue with the other Advisory Committees, there was a consensus that the reference to the Judicial Conference in Rule 12.4, should probably be deleted and conformed to the other rules. The Committee agreed, with the understanding that the Standing Committee would probably offer conforming changes to Rule 12.4.

18. Rule 13. Joint Trial of Separate Cases

Judge Roll reported that Subcommittee B had no additional changes to Rule 13, which was approved by the Committee.

19. Rule 14. Relief from Prejudicial Joinder

The Committee made only a minor style correction to Rule 14.

20. Rule 15. Depositions

Mr. Campbell noted that Subcommittee B had recommended a number of minor stylist changes to Rule 15, following brief discussion, the proposed changes were accepted by the Committee.

21. Rule 16. Discovery and Inspection

Mr. Campbell also reported that Subcommittee B recommended additional style changes to Rule 16. The changes were adopted by the Committee, following discussion.

22. Rule 17. Subpoena

In discussing proposed style changes to Rule 17, Mr. Pauley noted that Subcommittee B had recommended a change to Rule 17(g) concerning the ability of magistrate judges to find a person in contempt. The Committee accepted the proposed changes.

23. Rule 17.1. Pretrial Conference

Mr. Pauley reported that Subcommittee B recommended only a minor style change to Rule 17, which was accepted by the Committee.

24. Rule 18. Place of Prosecution and Trial

Mr. Pauley also informed the Committee that Subcommittee B had recommended only a minor style change to Rule 18, which was accepted by the Committee.

25. Rule 19. Rescinded or Reserved.

The Reporter informed the Committee that Rule 19, which had been listed as a "rescinded" rule would carry the designation as "reserved." He noted that the rule was rescinded years ago and appears in the published versions of the rules as "rescinded." He noted, however, that using the word "rescinded" might give the reader the incorrect impression that it was rescinded by the style project amendments. The Committee accepted the change.

26. Rule 20. Transfer for Plea and Sentence

Mr. Pauley stated that Subcommittee B had recommended several style changes to Rule 20, which were accepted by the Committee.

27. Rule 21. Transfer for Trial

Mr. Pauley next informed the Committee that Subcommittee B had offered several minor corrections to Rule 21. Those changes were accepted by the Committee.

28. Rule 22. Time to File Motion to Transfer [Transferred]

Finally, Mr. Pauley noted that Subcommittee B recommended that because the substance of this rule was transferred to Rule 21, the rule should carry the designation of "transferred" and explained in the Committee Note.

29. Rule 23. Jury or Nonjury Trial

Judge Carnes informed the Committee that Subcommittee A had no additional changes or corrections to Rule 23.

30 Rule 24. Trial Jurors

Regarding Rule 24, Judge Miller reported that Subcommittee A had proposed only several minor changes to the Rule.

31. Rule 25. Judge's Disability

Judge Friedman indicated that Subcommittee A had offered only several minor changes to Rule 25. Those changes were accepted by the Committee.

32. Rule 26. Taking Testimony

a. Substantive Amendments: Remote Transmission of Live Testimony

The Reporter noted that the style version of Rule 26 includes the word "orally," which is technically a substantive change and that change is reflected in the substantive package version of Rule 26. Subcommittee A had recommended that the term "orally" be deleted from the restyled version as well and that the Committee Note be amended to reflect the purpose of that amendment. He also noted that Subcommittee A had recommended that the term "two-way" be inserted in line 13 of Rule 26 and that he had drafted additional language for Committee Note to address some of the concerns raised in the public comments, e.g., insuring the integrity of testimony and the quality of the transmission. The Committee accepted those changes.

Judge Carnes raised several questions about the possible Confrontation Clause issues presented in the proposed substantive amendments to Rule 26, i.e., permitting remote transmission of testimony. He recommended that the term "compelling circumstances" be changed to "exceptional circumstances" to more closely following the standard for taking depositions under Rule 15. The Reporter concurred, noting that the term "exceptional circumstances" had been used in at least one Supreme Court decision and that originally, the term "compelling circumstances" had been used to parallel a similar rule in the Rules of Civil Procedure. The Committee also discussed whether to retain the reference to Federal Rule of Evidence 804, and after some discussion on the matter, decided to retain the reference in lieu of drafting new language that might, or might not, capture the essence of that rule.

Judge Carnes moved that the substantive change to Rule 26 be approved and forwarded to the Standing Committee. Judge Miller seconded the motion, which carried by a unanimous vote. The Committee also discussed suggested language for the Committee Note.

b. Style Changes.

The Committee also discussed and approved several style changes to Rule 26.

33. Rule 26.1. Foreign Law Determination

Judge Friedman reported that Subcommittee A had made no changes to Rule 26.1

34. Rule 26.2. Producing a Witness's Statement

Turning to Rule 26.2, Judge Friedman indicated that Subcommittee A had recommended several style changes to Rule 26.2, which were accepted by the Committee.

35. Rule 26.3. Mistrial

The Committee made no changes to Rule 26.3

36. Rule 27. Proof of Official Record

Judge Friedman indicated that Subcommittee A recommended only one minor style change to Rule 27. The Committee accepted the change.

37. Rule 28. Interpreters.

Judge Friedman also reported that Subcommittee A had recommended a minor style change to Rule 28, which was accepted by the Committee.

38. Rule 29. Motions for Judgment of Acquittal

Judge Bucklew stated that Subcommittee A recommended a number of style changes to Rule 29. Following brief discussion, the Committee accepted the changes.

39. Rule 29.1. Closing Argument

The Committee made no changes were made to Rule 29.1.

40. Rule 30. Jury Instructions

Regarding proposed amendments to Rule 30, Professor Stith indicated that Subcommittee A had unanimously voted to recommend that the Committee defer any further action of the substantive amendment to Rule 30 that would permit the court to request the parties to submit their requested jury instructions before trial. The Subcommittee had expressed concern, as pointed out in some of the public comments, that requiring the defense to reveal the theory of its case before trial might pose problems. Judge Miller moved that the substantive amendment be deferred. The motion, which was seconded by Mr. Campbell, was defeated by a vote of 6 to 7 (the chair cast the tie-breaking vote).

In addressing the proposed amendment, several members of the Committee expressed the view that one of the problems with the plain language of the rule was that it did not appear to accommodate those situations where counsel may wish to supplement their requested instructions during the trial. On that point, the Committee considered the draft of a proposed amendment to Rule of Civil Procedure 51. Following additional discussion, the Committee agreed that the sense of that draft should be included in the Committee Note to Rule 30, and not in the Rule itself.

Judge Roll moved that the Committee approve and forward both the style and substantive amendments to Rule 30. The motion was seconded by Mr. Fiske and carried by a vote of 9 to 2, with one abstention.

41. Rule 31. Jury Verdict

Mr. Pauley informed the Committee that Subcommittee A had recommended style changes to Rule 31. He also noted that the Subcommittee had considered whether to add the word "federal" before the word "judge," to avoid the possibility that the rule might be read to permit a state judge to accept the verdict. Following discussion, the Committee decided not add the term.

42. Rule 32. Sentencing and Judgment

a. Substantive Amendment: Ruling on Material Matter

Professor Stith commented that Subcommittee had considered the major substantive amendment to Rule 32 that would require the sentencing judge to rule on any unresolved objections to material matters in the PSR, even if those matters would not otherwise affect the sentence. She noted that the Subcommittee had spoken to representatives from the Bureau of Prisons regarding the role that the PSR may or may not play in decisions regarding the defendant's incarceration. She noted that the Bureau indicated that potentially everything in the PSR could be considered "material." The Committee discussion focused on the fact that even assuming there is a problem with objected-to, and possibly incorrect, information might remain in the PSR, the problem should not be addressed in the rule itself, but instead in the Committee Note.

Following additional discussion, Judge Miller moved that the substantive change in Rule 32(h)(3)(B) be withdrawn. The motion was seconded by Mr. Pauley and carried by a vote of 11 to 1.

Judge Miller moved that the issue of resolving objections to matters that might be considered important for purposes of the BOP not be included in the Committee Note. The motion was seconded by Judge Roll but failed by a vote of 5 to 6. Subsequently, the Committee considered proposed revisions to the Committee Note, pointing out the problem of important, unresolved, information remaining in the PSR that might impact on post-sentencing decisions by the Bureau of Prisons. The Committee ultimately voted 7 to 3 to include the language in the Note.

b. Style Changes.

The Reporter pointed out that Subcommittee B had recommended a number of style changes to Rule 32. First, the Subcommittee recommended a revised version of Rule 32(d), concerning the contents of the presentence report. Second, the subcommittee had recommended a revised version of Rule 32(h) and had designated it as subdivision (h) and redesignated the remaining provisions (Subdivision (h) is now what had been Rule 32(h)(5) in the restyled version published for comment). Third, Rule 32(i) (formerly 32(h) also includes a change in (i)(B) to reflect a recommendation by Mr. Pauley that Rule 32(h)(1)(B) be amended to include a requirement that the judge provide the excluded information to the government as well as to the defendant. Fourth, Subcommittee B recommended that Rule 32(i)(4)(C) (currently (h)(4)(C) in the published version) include a "good cause" requirement as recommended by Mr. Pauley.

43. Rule 32.1. Revoking or Modifying Probation or Supervised Release.

Professor Stith noted that Subcommittee B recommended style changes to Rule 32.1. Those style changes were accepted.

Mr. Pauley urged the Committee to delete Rule 32.1(a)(3)(D) that would require the judge to apprise a person of their right to remain silent. He argued that the Constitution does not require the warnings, and that even assuming some judges are currently giving some rights warnings did not necessarily rise to the level of requiring such warnings. He also noted that the change would result in a major change in practice and that the change probably should have been published in the substantive package of amendments. By not doing so, he pointed out, the public may have not had adequate notice of the proposed change. Several Committee members noted that the rule simply captures the procedure already used in Rule 5 initial appearances and that although a person standing before the judge is not necessarily in a coercive environment, it would be better for the judge to appear to be neutral in considering whatever evidence is presented. Ultimately, Mr. Pauley moved that the rights warnings provision be deleted from the rule. The motion was seconded by Judge Trager and carried on a vote of 8 to 4.

Judge Friedman questioned whether all of the material in Rule 32.1(a), regarding initial appearances for revocation proceedings, should be withdrawn. He pointed out that some districts do not hold initial appearances for those proceedings and that in those districts the judge moves immediately into the revocation hearing itself. Judge Miller responded that early in the style project the Committee had decided to include provision in Rule 32.1 for initial appearances, reflecting the practice in a number of districts. The Reporter added that this amendment reflected the sorts of decisions the Committee had dealt with throughout the Style Project—whether to adopt the current practice in a number of districts as a national rule. He noted that withdrawing Rule 32.1(a) would not require major redrafting of the rule, and perhaps other rules, such as Rule 40. Other members noted that a point could be made in the Committee Note that a court could collapse both the initial appearance and the revocation hearing into one proceeding. That view was ultimately adopted as a consensus of the Committee.

44. Rule 32.2. Criminal Forfeiture

The Reporter indicated that Subcommittee B recommended minor style changes to Rule 32.2, which were accepted by the Committee.

45. Rule 33. New Trial

Mr. Pauley noted that Subcommittee B recommended several style changes to Rule 33. The Committee adopted those changes.

46. Rule 34. Arresting Judgment

Turning to Rule 34, Mr. Pauley reported that Subcommittee B had recommended several style changes. After a brief discussion, the Committee accepted the proposed changes.

47. Rule 35. Correcting or Reducing Sentence.

a. Substantive Amendment: Reduction of Sentence

Mr. Pauley reported that Subcommittee B had recommended new language to the substantive amendments to Rule 35(b), to cover the issue raised in United States v. Orozco and the situation where a defendant does not learn of the helpful information until more than one year has elapsed. Mr. Pauley moved that the change be made. Judge Miller seconded the motion, which carried by a unanimous vote. Judge Friedman questioned why the Committee had decided to change the word “sentencing” in Rule 35(a) to “oral announcement of the sentence.” The Reporter explained that the Appellate Rules Committee had pointed out the ambiguity in the term "sentencing" and had recommended last year that the Committee address the issue. At the Committee's October 2000, meeting, the Committee voted to change the term to "oral announcement" to reflect the majority view of the circuits that had addressed the meaning of "sentencing" for purposes of triggering the time for correcting clear errors. Some members of the Committee pointed out that the better term might be to refer to the entry of the judgment, which serves as a triggering event for appeals, etc. Following additional discussion, the Committee voted to change Rule 35. Rule 35(a) will be a new definitional provision indicating that sentencing refers to entry of the written judgment. Rule 35(a) will become (b) and Rule 35(b), will become (c).

48. Rule 36. Clerical Mistakes

Judge Miller reported that Subcommittee B had no additional changes to Rule 36.

49. Rule 37. [Reserved]

The Reporter indicated that because Rule 37 was abrogated in 1968, it should be labeled as "reserved." The Committee agreed with that recommendation.

50. Rule 38. Staying a Sentence or a Disability

Judge Miller indicated that Subcommittee B had recommended minor style changes to Rule 38. The Committee agreed with those changes.

51. 39. [Reserved]

As with Rule 37, the Reporter indicated that because Rule 39 was abrogated in 1968, it should be labeled as "reserved." The Committee agreed with that recommendation.

52. Rule 40. Arrest for Failing to Appear in Another District

Judge Miller informed the Committee that Subcommittee B had recommended several minor style changes to Rule 40. Those changes were accepted by the Committee.

53. Rule 41. Search and Seizure

a. Substantive Amendment: Covert Searches

Judge Bucklew pointed out that Subcommittee A discussed questions raised by the public comments on the proposed substantive change to Rule 41 that would govern warrants for covert searches. The subcommittee recommended that the proposed amendment be deferred, and considered further in conjunction with pending proposals governing warrants for tracking devices. She ultimately moved to defer further action on the covert searches provisions in Rule 41. Judge Miller seconded the motion, which carried by a unanimous vote.

b. Style Changes

Finally, Judge Bucklew reported that Subcommittee B had recommended additional style changes, which were accepted by the Committee.

54. Rule 42. Criminal Contempt

Judge Bucklew reported that Subcommittee A recommended style changes to Rule 42 and an amendment to Rule 42(b) to reflect the authority of magistrate judges to hold contempt proceedings—per the recent Federal Courts Improvement Act. The Committee accepted the proposed changes.

55. Rule 43. Defendant's Presence

Regarding Rule 43, Judge Bucklew reported that Subcommittee A had recommended several minor style changes. Those changes were accepted by the Committee.

56. Rule 44. Right to and Appointment of Counsel

Judge Friedman indicated that there were no suggested changes to Rule 44.

57. Rule 45. Computing and Extending Time

Judge Friedman also indicated that Subcommittee A had recommended style changes to Rule 45, and that the term "President's Day" has been changed to "Washington's Birthday" in accordance with the discussion at the October 2000, Committee meeting. The Committee accepted those changes.

58. Rule 46. Release from Custody; Supervising Detention

Judge Carnes reported to the Committee that Subcommittee A had not recommended any additional style changes to Rule 46.

59. Rule 47. Motions and Supporting Affidavits

The Committee made a minor style change to Rule 47.

60. Rule 48. Dismissal

Judge Carnes indicated that Subcommittee A had suggested several minor style changes to Rule 48. The Committee accepted those changes.

61. Rule 49. Serving and Filing Papers

Judge Carnes also reported that Subcommittee A recommended minor style changes to Rule 49; the Committee adopted those proposed changes.

62. Rule 50. Prompt Disposition.

No changes were made to Rule 50.

63. Rule 51. Preserving Claimed Error.

Mr. Pauley reported that there were no recommended changes to Rule 50.

64. Rule 52. Harmless and Plain Error

Mr. Pauley reported that Subcommittee A had not recommended any style changes. He urged the Committee, however, to clarify an ambiguity in the wording "A plain error or defect..." in Rule 52(b). He pointed out that the Supreme Court has concluded that that wording should be read more simply as meaning "error." As he noted, the Court has indicated that the use of the disjunctive is misleading. He recommended that the words "or defect" be deleted from the rule. Following discussion, the Committee voted 11 to 1 to delete the words, "or defect."

65. Rule 53. Courtroom Photographing and Broadcasting Prohibited

No changes were made to Rule 53.

66. Rule 54. [Transferred]

The Reporter informed the Committee that Subcommittee A recommended that because this rule was transferred to Rule 1 it should carry the designation of "transferred" rather than "reserved." He also indicated that a Committee Note would be prepared for the rule.

67. Rule 55. Records

Judge Friedman indicated that no additional changes had been proposed for Rule 55.

68. Rule 56. When Court is Open

Turning to Rule 56, Judge Friedman reported that Subcommittee A had recommended style changes to Rule 56, to conform it to Rule 45, supra.

69. Rule 57. District Court Rules

Judge Friedman pointed out that Subcommittee A had proposed several minor style changes to Rule 57. The Committee accepted the changes.

70. Rule 58. Petty Offenses and Other Misdemeanors

Judge Miller reported that Subcommittee A had suggested a number of proposed changes—several of them to represent recent statutory changes. In addition, the Committee modified Rule 58(b)(2) (rights warnings) to parallel a similar provision in Rule 5(d).

71. Rule 59. [Deleted]

The Reporter stated that because Rule 59 is being deleted as being unnecessary, the reference should be “deleted.” The Committee agreed.

72. Rule 60. Title

Judge Miller suggested that the Committee consider restoring Rule 60, which had been deleted in the early stages of the drafting process. He pointed out that without the rule, there may be a real question as to the “official” designation of the rules. Following brief discussion, the Committee adopted that recommendation.

C. Rules Governing § 2254 and § 2255 Proceedings

Judge Carnes reported that the Subcommittees had recommended deferring any further action on Rules Governing § 2254 and § 2255 Proceedings, pending further research on the substantive questions and consideration of a “restyled” version of the rules. The Committee agreed with that proposal.

Judge Davis reported that Professor Robbins was being retained as a special consultant on the habeas rules, and that the Style Subcommittee had prepared an initial restyled draft of the rules. He indicated that the matter would probably be on the agenda for the Fall 2001 meeting.

VI. DESIGNATION OF TIME AND PLACE OF NEXT MEETING

The Committee tentatively agreed to hold its next meeting in October 2001, either at Santa Fe, New Mexico or at San Francisco, California, depending on availability of accommodations.
