Comments:

I oppose the proposed amendments to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure as related to electronic discovery. These rules would permit corporate giants to destroy valuable evidence, without any recourse. They could and would develop policies to destroy information on a regular basis just to avoid liability. So companies that now get rid of information will continue to do so. Companies that do not have a policy of destroying information, will develop such a policy. Nothing good can come of this for a little guy. Thank you for considering my comments.
