I have been practicing law for 38 years. I represent consumers in bankruptcy matters.

I have read the above proposals and agree that they will improve the efficiency of processing cases. In the vast majority of cases the creditors' proofs of claim are poorly documented or not at all. It is not possible to verify the basis of the amount of the claim without filing an objection. And that just causes the loss of more time and expense for the parties and the court.

Please adopt these changes. A little more preparation by the creditors on the front end can save everyone more work on the back end.
