I write to support the proposed amendment to Rule 3001 and new Rule 3002.1.

As a consumer bankruptcy attorney, I see daily the problems and potential for (and actual) abuse caused by the current lack of documentation for debt buyer proofs of claim. The proposed rule would greatly help reduce these difficulties.

Proposed Rule 3002.1 would truly allow debtors to receive a fresh start upon discharge, rather than emerging from bankruptcy protections into immediate problems with their mortgages demanding payment for unknown fees, costs and charges allegedly incurred during the case.

Take care.
